and the expressmen have had about all they could do this week, taking care of trunks.

tion of Mr. Henry Orne Ryler, our New-

—Some people complain of the occasional muddiness of the city water, which is due to the sewer men using the hydrants and stirring up things generally. But where do the shrimps come from?
—Mr. J. Wallace Goodrich will be at Elliot church on Wednesday and Saturday mornings, on and after Sept. 8th, from ten

—The Carson excavator on Elmwood street has finally begun operations, but there seems to be a good deal of framework and engine and apparatus for only two luckets. In most other places half a dozen at least are used.
—Donations for the Pomroy Home during the month of August were as follows:
Newton, pears, apples, berries, vegetables,
clothing; Newton Centre, apples, milk,
vegetables, clothing; Worcester, clothing;
Everett, candy, nuts; Watertown, clothing.
—On Wednesday evening three of the flowers of the night blooming cereus opened on a plant owned by Mrs. A. W. B. Huff, and they attracted much attention from the neighbors and passers-by. The flowers remained open till next forenoon, when they closed for good.
—When the sewers are finally completed
there is no question but that they will be appreciated, and then we shall also know how to appreciate clean and passable streets. Evidently the work is being done with great care, judging from the number of weeks many of the streets are blocked up.
—Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Harwood of Hotel
Hunnewell will have the sympathy of all in the sudden death of their only child, which occurred on Thursday. Death came so suddenly that it found the parents all unprepared, which makes the affliction one harder to be borne. The funeral will be held at Hotel Hunnewell, tomorrow at 2 o'clock.
—Thomas Sinclair has returned to 72
Elmwood street, Elliot Block, where he has a larger store nicely fitted up, and more conveniences for doing all kinds of upholstery work. All orders given him will be promptly filled, and as is well known the work entrusted to him is done in the most thorough manner.

—While the sub-drain pipe was being laid in the Church street sewer, at the corner of Centre street, a large stone slipped towards the sewer, smashing down
the shoring and filling the sewer with dirt.
One man was in the ditch and escaped injury. The stone was a part of the cover of an old dry well, formerly used by the fire department, and was ten feet long,
three feet broad, and one foot thick.

—Miss Caroline L. Hills was married
Wednesday afternoon to Mr. Benjamin L.
Leeds, at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Chas. S. Holbrook, Arlington street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Calkins. Only relatives of the contracting parties were present, Mr. and Mrs. Leeds left the same evening for a tour through the White Mountains, and on their return will reside on Bennington street.

—The Young Men's Christian Association will inaugurate its winter work by a series of special meetings for young men to be conducted by the successful evangelist,
C. H. Yatman. It is expected that Mrs. I.
S. Kress, the singer of New York, who has been associated with him during the last winter in the west, and this summer at Cottage City and Ocean Grove, will come with him to Newton. The first of these meetings will be held in the Association
Hall, Bacon's block, Monday evening, Sept. 8th.

—The Newton Tennis Club will hold a club tournament on the club courts, Richardson street, on Labor Day. Many entries have been received in singles, doubles and mixed doubles and many more
are expected before nine o'clock Monday morning when the lists close and playing commences. Only one day will be needed to finish the tournament. The prizes will be a Sears' special racquet, first singles;
gold medal watch chain, first doubles;
silver medal watch chain, mixed doubles.
The second prizes in singles and doubles will be tennis balls. Some fine playing is expected, especially in singles as three men are pretty evenly matched.

We feel quite sure that those who, like
About-ben-Aches, "love their fellow-men and fellow-women," will rejoice to hear that the little sale held by the pupils of Miss Spear's school, early in the season, was a great success, not only because the comfortable round sum of one hundred dollars was gained on the occasion, but also because that sum, being wisely and carefully
expended, procured a little rest and change
and pleasure for some to whom the word best, as far as the country was young, and when things moved slowly, and people were calm of temperament and vigorous in body, perhaps nobody needed a vacation; but now-a-days, when we are crowded closely together and the mill-wheel of life is whirling around with such fearful rapidity, everybody needs one. It is needless to say that the successful carrying out of this little vacation scheme has not been unattended
by care and labor for her who originated it.
Those, however, who have attended or assisted at her annual Christmas party for the children, to whom the word
best, though not so meaningless
as the word vacation, signifies far less sense of joy than it ought to do, will understand readily that labor and care have no power to deter her from doing the work that she loves and that her own comfort is never considered if she can but succeed in making others happy.

—Mrs. Nellie V. Walker died Saturday evening last at her late home, 119 Washington street. Mrs. Walker, who was born in Newton, was the daughter of the late Charles B. Russell, and was 38 years of age. She was the widow of the late Commander Edward A. Walker, U. S. N., and a woman of remarkable artistic taste and ability for many years widely known for her skillful execution of beautiful watercolors and oil sketches. Her work had won favorable mention in art circles in Boston,
New York and elsewhere in America. She was also an author of no little ability, and both in prose and poetry a work of her pen had found many admirers and a volume of her writings has been published. She possessed a large circle of friends and was known as a woman who gave liberally of her means to the poor. She was regarded as a woman of unusual business ability and had acquired a large amount of real estate in this city. She was a member of Grace church. The funeral will be held at her late residence Tuesday afternoon. Rev.
Dr. Shinn read the Episcopal service and spoke of the life of the deceased. Mrs. H.
Hunt read a prayer. The Rev. W. Wetherbee rendered "O Paradise! O Paradise!" and "Gently Lord Oh Gently Lead Us." The floral tributes included a profusion of white roses and Easter lilies. At the head of the casket a portrait of the deceased was placed, trimmed with Easter lilies.
Resting in front of the portrait were numerous wreaths, stars and a mound from relatives and friends. These included a wreath from her nieces with bars inscribed
"Aunt Nellie" in immortalized on pure white ground. The remains were interred in the Newton Cemetery.

Teacher of Singing.

Mr. Arthur Burnett is ready to receive pupils in singing at his rooms, 88 Clar-don street, Boston. As the tenor in the Channing Church quartette, Mr. Burnett's excellence as a singer is well known in Newton, and he has the ability to impart his own knowledge to others,
and has been very successful as a teacher. His method is founded on sound principles and a clear insight into the capabilities and requirements of each pupil, bringing out the best of which they are capable. Those wishing to cultivate their voices would do well to call upon him.

The Cheltenham

Is the name of an elegant brass bedstead
of a most desirable design, offered at a reasonable price by Putnam & Spooner of 546 Washington street, Boston, opposite the Adams House. Mr. Spooner has long been in charge of the retail store, and is well known to Newton people, who will be glad to hear of his interest in the firm. Besides this bedstead, the firm have a great variety of other styles, at all prices, also a fine assortment of bedding. See adv.

Ex-Congressman Charles Allen is doing himself and the Republican party a positive harm in allowing a few of his over zealous friends to still speak of him
as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. The plain people, and a vast majority of them too, want Mr.
Crane. Why will Mr. Allen allow a handful of his friends to create a dis-sentiment. It is not many; it is not good politics.—Hudson Republican.

Maj. J. H. Gould has decided to enter the field as candidate for the nomination of state auditor upon the Republican ticket, and has so written to Gen. Draper.
This is an interesting bit of news. It is seldom that a man discarded under the circumstances which marked Mr. Gould's discharge last year wants to try his luck again. This may be regarded as a new entry in the comedy part of the campaign.—Springfield Republican.

A VISIT TO NAPLES.

Como and Lugano, Aug. 16, 1891.

We went to Naples. About twenty intended to do it, but after five went from Genoa (a long, hot tiresome ride) and met us again in Rome, their adverse criticisms so discouraged the aspirants that only one lady remained faithful to me.
We knew what we wanted, and were willing to pay for it. So we left Rome Friday afternoon at 4.30, and after a delightful ride in company with a Roman matron who posted us on the charitable works of her city, we reached Naples at 10 p. m. We had as defenders, a judge from Wisconsin, a clergyman from Canada, one from Providence, one from St. Louis, and the Rev. Arthur Little of Dorchester, which quintette, with one "little man," reversed the usual proportion of six ladies to two men. We found we could go in landaus as cheaply
as by train, and chose the drive of sixteen miles, around the lovely Bay of Naples, through the homes of the populace, who were preparing for a fete; (Italy is either preparing for or celebrating some festival, everywhere we go.)

We drove first to the Grand Museum of Naples, where we bravely limited ourselves to one hour, though we should have enjoyed a week; we saw there a vast collection of objects of art, household utensils, relics of all kinds, disinterred from the buried cities. Then with our laps full of the luscious peaches and plums of Italy, we drove toward Pompeii. Truth compels me to say that at two places where the road was under repairs, we drove for one half mile through deep, light dust; but I resent
the imputation of one of the gentlemen
in the other carriage, who declared we had continuously waded through two feet of sand. Ministers should never exaggerate. We saw much of the low Neapolitan life en route. Beggers chased our carriage, two boys turned hand-springs for our benefit, and pinched the "little man's" bare legs for pay, and we saw no less than five perfectly naked
children of four or five years, contented playing in the streets. On the whole,
the poor Neapolitans were much better fed and less villainous looking than the Genoese and Romans.

Pompeii deserves more time than I can give it here. Full of intense interest we wandered up and down the streets, in and out of all sorts of houses and temples,
led by an old soldier guide, who attached himself to "ye umble servant," who acted as interpreter for the party. At many houses there were modern wooden doors of which the guide carried the keys. Admission was denied to Virgie and myself, and one of our escorts told us that he had no doubts, from what he saw in the wall frescoes, that the city was justly destroyed for its sins. Three hours we wandered, in the hot sun, over stone pavements, into the Arrium of Panza's house, through the immense baths, temples, theatres. Little man filled his pockets with marble cubes from the broken mosaic pavement in the temple of Venus, which may prove agreeable souvenirs to friends at home.
We tossed our coppers to the cripple at the gate, afterwards heard he was worth 25,000 francs, and drove back toward Naples, through holiday clad streets,
arched with flowers and gas lights for the Festa.

We retired soon after dinner to beds
which soon became scenes of hot battles with fleas and mosquitoes.
It took us all next day to catch up on our party. Evening travel is very cool and comfortable here, though I have not suffered a day as I did the day I went from Boston to New York in June.

We drove constantly in Florence, the dear lovely Florence of Romagna. We saw Savonarola's cell and cloisters, the Duomo, St. Mark's, and the museum of the same site, drove to San Miniato and viewed the city with St. Croce in the foreground, where George Eliot was married. We also made a pilgrimage to the graves of Walter Savage Landor, Mrs.
Browning and Theodore Parker, and gathered leaves from each place. On the ground near Mr. Parker's grave were two huge bases, containing base and monument to be erected in place of the plain granite slab, on Aug. 24, the anniversary of his birth. It is the gift of American residents in Rome. The slab bears a life size medallion portrait of the man whose chief fault was in living
thirty years ahead of his times.

We had a charming time in Venice, bar
the vermin, which swarms on every side.
We bathed at the Lido, shopped in St.
Mark's square, gondola to our heart's content, and left it just in time to escape satire. But Como, lovely Como, bears away the palm. The green of its surrounding hills, dotted with villas and shrines was very grateful to eyes weary of stone plaster and canals. The feast of the Assumption occurred yesterday,
and the town was out in full force.
Little man wondered at the number of biers born through the Piazza in front of our hotel, until we learned that a wharf crowded with natives had broken in and five persons drowned. Still the merry making went on. We rowed for two hours in the glorious moonlight, between green clad hills, on which beacon lights
and illuminated shrines shone at frequent intervals. We were awakened at six this morning by one of the cornet bands peculiar to this government. It embarked on a crowded steamer and went away up the lake. Three other laden boats followed in quick succession. I understand six trains a day come from Milan, loaded with pleasure seekers.
I do not wonder; Como and Lugano will rank with Lausanne and Interlaken in my memory. This hotel "Washington" stands on a high terraced hill overlooking the lake Lugano; surrounded by charming gardens in which bloom loads of pansies, geraniums, heliotropes,
dahlias, and others of our home favorites, it betrays many of our ladies into breaking more than one commandment.
It is a place for a week's sojourn, instead of a single Sabbath day. The green of the lake and the vine clad hills is offset by the sterner cliffs opposite. It is a quiet, charming section, more Italian than Swiss. L. A. CHAPMAN.

Kitty Winslow—Physical culture is quite a fad of mine; see for instance how well Mr. Van Nobs stands. Tom de Witt
—Oh, yes; he stands better against a dark-blue portiere than he does financially.—Puck.

THE MORNING STAR.

THE CAREER OF THE GREAT GOSPEL SHIP—
COMMANDER GARLAND WEDS A MIS-SIONARY OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC ISLANDS.

The career of the great missionary ship Morning Star and of its devoted commander, Captain George F. Garland, is of much interest, and especially at the present time, as he was this week wedded to a lady whose life has so far been devoted to the self-sacrificing and arduous work of spreading the Gospel among the heathen. The missionary ship and its work as the instrument of the American Board of Foreign Missions is known among Christian people all over the world, and its work has plowed the harbors of hundreds of islands, and its welcome hull has been anchored off many towns and villages where the blessed Word had been hitherto almost, if not entirely, unknown. It has been one of the greatest missionaries of the world, and of its career Christianity may well be proud.

The Morning Star now lies in the harbor at San Francisco undergoing repairs. It was built at Bath, Me., in 1854, and is the fourth vessel bearing that name. It is 150 feet long, 26 feet beam and is registered at 470 tons. The third Morning Star, the predecessor of the present boat, was lost in a gale off the island of Kusaie in February of 1883, and the second was, singularly enough, wrecked off the same dangerous island. The present missionary ship is barkentine rigged, and is the pride of her commander and crew. Capt. Garland, who took charge of the ship in 1887, had been an officer on the third vessel of that name for four years. He is a man of fine appearance and excellent address, a perfect gentleman, and no one, to look at him, would suspect that he had followed a seafaring life for upward of a score of years. He is now 40 years of age, is a gentleman whose mind and heart seem devoted to the work in which he is engaged. His initial voyage was on the ship Horatio Harris, on which he was a "sailor before the mast," and he tells many interesting anecdotes of his voyage to San Francisco. Since he took command of the Morning Star his cruises have been successfully made, and he is highly regarded by all with whom he has had dealings.

He is now away "on leave," and is stopping with relatives at Dedham. He was married Thursday of this week to Miss Sarah L. Smith of Newton Centre at the residence of her mother at that place, and the ceremony, which was strictly private. The lady, of whose choice is the daughter of Mrs. H. B. Smith and was a missionary in charge of a girls' training school for the Gilbert and Marshall Islands in the Southern Pacific, and which was located on the Kusaie Islands for five years from 1886. She returned to her mother's home at Newton last July, on account of ill-health. She had been very successful in her chosen work. The school over which she presided often had as many as 33 pupils—eleven from each of the islands above mentioned. The young lady was only 21 when she responded to the call of the board for missionaries, and it was made especially to supply the school for women at this group of islands, as a men's school had been enjoying vigorous growth for several years previous. The little lady was slender, dark-eyed, and seemed quite delicate, but her heart was in the work before her, and she sailed away for her mission, and there she remained, among the ignorant women of the Southern seas. At first the task seemed impossible of accomplishment, but her courage was indomitable, her devotion entire and her determination sufficient to surmount all obstacles. Once a year the gladness of the missionary ship brought tidings from home and friends, and the laborer for the Lord continued her work year after year, and finally was rewarded to witness beneficial results, and find that the dark-skinned members of her sex were slowly but surely benefiting from her teachings and becoming able to teach their sisters the glorious truths of the Gospel and to spread among them the refining influences of civilization. From uncouth savages they have learned to attire themselves neatly, preserve proper deportment and teach others how to be civilized. The women have even been found better students than their brothers of the men's school, and they have more easily discovered the value of the changed manner of dress and behavior. The departure of their beloved teacher was very painful to the pupils, as well as to Miss Smith, and as an illustration of the influence wielded over them for good, Capt. Garland mentioned a recent surprise given their teacher. They had learned the date of her birthday, and quietly and swiftly they gathered masses of flowers and gigantic ferns. The former they arranged in tasteful banks and pyramids. With the latter—veritable giants of the tropics—they made a great arch at one end of the room. The tall heads of the ferns and palm-trees were covered with the folds of the American flag, which, gracefully looped, surmounted all, while just at its apex hung a picture of the Morning Star under full sail. Then the girls, each clad in a light chintz dress, seated themselves, as was the custom, on the low straw mats, and while their faces beamed with pleasure, greeted their teacher with a song which she had translated and taught them. It was a typical and touching picture, the tall palm-trees, over them the red, white and blue, so dear to every American heart, and, guarded by its folds, the noble ship that had brought knowledge and truth and kindness to these children of the tropics. The successors of Miss Smith, who later had been assisted by Miss Crosby, are Misses Hopkin and Little, two graduates of Oberlin College.

Captain Garland says that the headquarters of the Morning Star are at Honolulu, and that the regular cruises are now among the Marshall, Gilbert and Caroline Islands. The principal duties are to take supplies to the numerous missionary stations. The islands are about 2500 miles from Honolulu, and lie northeast of Australia. He says the inhabitants of the Marshall and Gilbert Islands are peaceable, and it is safe for strangers to venture among them, but that in some part of the Caroline Islands, while it is not understood that they practice cannibalism, yet they have been known to eat up a prisoner and to be very dangerous acquaintances. Very few weeks pass by without a fight among the natives, and although the missionary work has progressed well among them, they have now become warlike, and for the past twelve months have been battling with the Spaniards, who have taken possession of the islands and who have sought to govern with an iron hand. When he left the islands last March fighting was in progress, and he feared it was still continuing. Missionary work was entirely suspended on the Caroline Islands and had been for over a year, but was going forward on the other islands with satisfactory results. The Germans are in possession of the Marshall Islands. In March of 1890 a terrific storm passed over the island of Kusaie, and four churches were demolished, also all the houses, and nearly all of the bread fruit trees, and the blow was a sad one for the natives. The climate is generally good, however, and is entirely free from fever and ague, also yellow fever.

He said that it was now probable that he would not go on the Morning Star on her next trip in October, although as yet he was uncertain. If he remained here the ship would leave under command of Captain Isaiah Bray, who is on board the vessel now superintending the repairs in progress. If he does not go he will enjoy a honeymoon with his wife, whose health requires several months of rest.

CALIFORNIA CORRESPONDENCE.

Oakland, August, 1891.

To the Editor of the Graphic:

In past years beet sugar has been so successfully made in California that agriculturists have become deeply interested in beet culture. The present year a very large factory for manufacturing beets into sugar has been established at Chino, San Bernardino county. It is reported to be the largest of its kind in the world. The machinery alone has cost some $380,000. It was brought from Stuttgart, Germany, and was transported from New Orleans, the mass filling 115 cars. Also 20 German experts in sugar making have recently arrived, and the force of men employed in and around the factory and refinery number 200. Four thousand acres of beets are now maturing for use at the factory, and another year many more acres will, doubtless, be planted with beets. The Chino factory is the third in the state, the others being at Watsonville and Alvarado. The average saccharine qualities of the California beet are considerably higher than in the European beet, and the climate allows several successive crops per year, so that the working season of the factory may be extended much longer than in Europe. The sugar markets of this state are mostly supplied at present from the Hawaiian Islands, but the projected factories and those already in operation will doubtless soon be able to supply California with all its sugar, which will be gathered from its extensive beet fields.

Although it is often asserted that California's light wines make no one intoxicated, yet old residents believe to the contrary. A story was told recently of a man in Fresno county who was so intoxicated from wine drunk that he came near being drowned in a wine bath.

His much-tried wife found her husband in a drunken state in the wine cellar of their home and a bowl of wine by his side. In her disgust and wrath she thought she would give him all the wine he wanted for once. So she turned the faucets of the twelve full barrels of wine, also half a dozen vinegar barrels, and as if this were not enough the molasses barrel also was allowed to empty itself. Then the wife perched herself on a barrel to enjoy the husband's antics, and he, as the intoxicated to help himself. As the liquid poured forth his garments became soaked and his howlings were pitiful, while the cellar was rapidly filling, the fluid rising higher and higher. But fortunately when the door-sill was reached the wine mixture flowed out the door, thus saving the man's life.

There is a conflict of opinion as to the wisdom displayed by our last legislature in offering a reward of $500 per head for coyote scalps. The fruit and vineyard men prefer the coyote to the numberless rabbits that infest the orchards when there's no coyotes to destroy them. The sheep men want the coyote killed because it loves the tender lamb for its breakfast. In short, the coyote is a friend of the horticulturist, and an enemy of the sheep grower. Doubtless the law will be repealed, but while it remains the claims upon the state will be enormous. In July only eleven of the fifty-four counties had been heard from at Sacramento, and the first quarter's claims from these aggregated $10,890 for 2,175 scalps. It is stated that even the Indians in Southern California have formed coyote hunting expeditions. In some places coyote farm raising is said to have been started, and a custom is reported of recently discovered land where the coyote skins near the southern line of the state; the owner was endeavoring to bring them across the line in order to receive the bounty.

On a certain farm near San Jose there will shortly be a curiosity in the shape of a tree-fountain. The owner of the place has several years since tied a pipe of well pipe about six feet in length to a willow tree. The tree in growing has gradually inclosed the pipe. One end stands out, but the pipe is now almost in the centre of the trunk. Soon, where two branches separate about eight feet from the ground, water will be forced through the tube from an artesian well, and a pretty fountain from the centre of the willow tree will be the result.

The Salton lake of the desert, spoken of in a former correspondence, shows few signs of subsidence, and the water still continues to flow into the desert from the Colorado river. It is believed that if the great body of water remains it may modify greatly the climate of that region. Already there has been a cloud burst in the eastern portion of San Bernardino county, this was followed later by another severe storm, and farther south Campo, in San Diego county, was nearly destroyed by a sudden rain storm. Rain has also fallen in San Diego city, a thing unknown there for twenty years during the summer months. It is believed by some that there may be some connection between the desert lake and these severe rains at this time of the year.

Deafness Can't Be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound in your ears, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are cured by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that can not be cured by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Where Rest is Found.

Nature always demands rest, and so does human nature long for a change, and something different from what lies in his long and continuous rut, in which he has been living for the whole winter. He drops his labor and looks about him for a cool and shady nook, where he may forget his tasks, and rest his weary mind and body under the shade of some cozy clumps of trees; or languidly drifting in a boat over some still and glassy lake.

But where shall this restful place be found? It cannot be the beach, where the hot sun is ever beating down upon the sand, which tires and blinds the eye. There is no rest there. It is a continual sameness, with no variety to interest the life and prevent it from becoming restless and discontented.

Can it be the fashionable summer resort? Rest cannot be found there. There are no secluded spots where one may withdraw himself from the never changing gaiety, no place to escape the ever gazing and critical eye, no place to be oneself. One must always be dressed in his best; there is a hop to attend nearly every night in the week, and when at a late hour he throws his exhausted body upon the bed, he is too tired for sleep, and the excitement keeps him awake a greater part of the night. This is only one of many nights, some call rest. It is not in this kind of life that one finds rest of body, nor rest of heart, for there is no comfort, no freedom. There is a place, however, where nature can be found in her greatest glory, and where we may learn beautiful lessons from everything we look at. Seek some little rambling country village, hidden away in the mountains. Do not long to meet your own race there, but live among the birds and study their modes of living. Look up at the towering mountains as they rise up all around you, and at the shadows, as from the farthest peak they race and chase one another, until the winner has reached your resting spot, and now you are under the shady victory robe; then at the beautiful crystal lakes which by chance you may find in your rambles, and recognize them as the creations of God's wonderful hand. Think how the same hand made you, and how much more wonderful you are than the grand objects upon which you are looking. Thank Him that you are permitted to live in this world of His and that He has left you have such a grand feast for your eyes and soul. When at last you return home, and the tired work begins again, you will be strengthened spiritually as well as mentally and physically. You will have more vigor to take up your work again. Your mind will be more active and clearer, and you will praise God for all His wonderful works to the children of men, and for what He has done for you. E. G. N.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

Scribner's Magazine for September contains the fifth and concluding article in the successful steamship series, entitled "The Steamship Lines of the World," by Lieut. Ridgely Hunt, U. S. N. This number also contains three articles on essentially American subjects—on "Odd Homes," from the dug-out to the Adirondack cabin; "China Hunting in New England," particularly along the Connecticut River valley, with an account of many rare American plates, which it was once the custom to make as souvenirs of important events; and on "The Present Ideals of American University Life," by Professor Josiah Royce, of Harvard, who pleads for the realization of our colleges rather than their further adaptation to practical ends. Other important articles in this issue are "Browning's Asolo," by Felix Moscheles, the artist friend of Browning; a description of "The City of the Sacred Tree," by James Ricalton, a veteran traveler and photographer; and "Lang's Literature," by Among Books," a so-called literary autobiography; the second instalment of the serial story, "The Wrecker," by Robert Louis Stevenson and Lloyd Osbourne; and short stories by Thomas Nelson Page and Charles G. D. Roberts.

The Century Magazine will celebrate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by publishing a Life of Columbus written especially for that magazine by Emilio Castelar, the famous Spanish orator, statesman, and author. The work is written in Spanish, and will be carefully translated. Senor Castelar, whose interest in and admiration for America are well known, has made a careful study of the new historical material bearing upon the subject, and it is said that his papers will be very richly illustrated. Other articles dealing with the discovery of America are in course of preparation for the same magazine.

The question for debate at the colored people's academy to-night will be, "Which are of the greater advantage to the country, lawyers or buzzards?" Some of our most eloquent and logical colored orators will take part in the debate, and something rich, rare and racy is promised.—Calloun (Ga.) Courier.

"I think, sir," said the pretty girl, as she entered the cynical merchant's office, "that you engage me by my knowledge of shorthand and typewriting will be a valuable aid to you in your business." "You are too ornamental to be useful," gruffly replied the merchant, "and I am not a marrying man. A pretty typewriter would just waste her time on me." "But, sir," tearfully protested the maiden, "I have no matrimonial designs; I simply want to be an assistant to you."—Baltimore American.

The gospel sign painter, whose work is a familiar sight in Springfield, has been at Ocean Grove, N. J., and the result is that on a certain plank in a board walk one reads these inscriptions: "Repent," "Fear God," and "Use Hippopotamus Soap."

After trying many remedies for catarrh during past twelve years, I tried Ely's Cream Balm with complete success. It is over one year since I stopped using it and have had no return of catarrh. I recommend it to all my friends.—Milton T. Palm, Reading, Pa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has a speedily increasing popularity, which can only be won by an article of real merit. Give it a trial.

Of the Bank of Waverly, Iowa says: Sulphur Bitters saved my life. For ten years I suffered from Catarrh and Liver Complaint; I lost forty-five pounds and was growing worse rapidly. I had lost all faith in medicine, but hearing your letters so well recommended, I gave them a trial. Six bottles cured me.—Smith P. Hunt, Waverly, Iowa.

A Good-Looking Face
We like to see. Yet Erysipelas disfigures the features and the disease is as dangerous as it is repulsive. It is sometimes called "St. Anthony's Fire," and often ends in sudden death. S. B. Carpenter, Grandville, N. Y., had it in both legs. He was cured by Dr. J. C. Fawcett's Erysipelas Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. This medicine excels all others for the blood.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

BOSTON THEATRE.—Denman Thompson and "The Old Homestead" comes to Boston next week, opening Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 7. The play was originally produced in the Boston Theatre, April 5, 1886, and it has been an unqualified and uninterrupted success since that date. It ran four years in New York, the last three at the Academy; and when it is again presented will be found to be more attractive than ever. Mr. Thompson has been giving his personal attention to the preparatory work, and nothing will be omitted to have the coming performances in every way superior to those which have been given. To ensure full effect to the Grace church scene Mr. S. S. Hamill, the eminent organ builder of East Cambridge, has furnished one of his largest size organs, and the famous New York baritone, Mr. F. M. Bernard, has been engaged for solo numbers. The full resources of the Boston Theatre stage will be brought into requisition, and with Mr. Thompson's entire original company, it is safe to promise entertainments which will attract all classes of our people. The advance sale of seats has been very large.

GLOBE THEATRE.—The original American drama by Augustus Pitou and George H. Jessup "The Power of the Press," will have its first production in Boston at the Globe Theatre on Labor day, Sept. 7, an extra matinee beginning the engagement of the company brought here by Manager Pitou. The perils and temptations of New York city life and the experiences of a supposed convict at Sing Sing are vividly portrayed in the drama, which introduces 30 speaking characters and necessitates 14 distinct stage sets, some of which are marvels of mechanical construction. The drama will be strongly cast, and given with all the original effects of its New York run at the Star Theatre.

TREMONT THEATRE.—Next Monday night, Sept. 7, the Tremont's stage will be taken possession by the Boston favorite, Fanny Rice, who comes at the head of her own company of singers and comedians in a new musical comedy, written especially for her by Mr. Arthur Wallack, son of the late Lester Wallack, entitled "A Jolly Surprise." Miss Rice has been on the stage some eight or nine years, and has been unusually successful both in musical comedy and comic opera. Besides earning the reputation of being the most versatile and vivacious artiste on the American stage, she has won and kept the respect of every one. "A Jolly Surprise" has been rehearsed and staged under the personal direction of Mr. Jesse Williams, formerly stage manager and musical director of the New York Casino and Madison Garden Theatre. Miss Rose Becket has arranged the dances, and no expense has been spared to make the production a success. During the play Miss Rice will make many different changes of costume. Several of her imported modern dresses are said to be perfect dreams of the dressmaker's art. In fact, the costumes of the company as a whole will far surpass in point of elegance anything often seen in a musical comedy.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—"Blue Jeans" will follow "A Straight Tip" at the Hollis, opening a two weeks' engagement on Monday. The production will be equal to that of last season in every way. The cast is a star one, most of the principals being retained and all the original scenery and properties, not forgetting the brass band and bull, will be seen in the Boston production. The advance sale of tickets has been very large and the piece and exceedingly clever company will be greeted by crowded houses.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—At the Grand Opera House next week managers Proctor & Mansfield will produce the great melodrama, "My Jack," which had such a fine run at View House last year. All the notable scenic effects and realistic stage machinery, including the explosion in the lighthouse, the grand desert scene, the shipwreck, and the deck of a man-of-war, will be given with all the minute perfection of detail which justly commanded such enthusiastic applause when this admirable drama was presented last season at the Grand. Mr. Walter Sanford, who impersonates the leading role in a manner which has won the commendation of press and public, has the support of an excellent company, every member of which has been chosen with a view to special adaptability for the character assigned, and that the production in every respect will be characteristic of the able management of the house, goes without saying.

Poor people are right in getting religion, for its about the only thing a poor man can get these days without paying cash or giving mighty good security.—Bull Ground (Ga.) News.

"What is a conspiracy?" "A plot." "Why don't Henry James and Mr. Howells conspire?"—New York Sun.

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB.

The Tariff is a Tax.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff, is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms, and communications of every kind, whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

Tit for Tat.

(Boston Post.)

It seems to have occurred to our observant neighbors in Mexico that the principle of "reciprocity," as interpreted in the new tariff act, can be applied to the coercion of the United States as successfully as when used by us against other governments. The Republic of Mexico occupies commercially a relation toward the United States different in some respects from the South American countries. Hides, coffee and sugar, which are free under our tariff, form a very inconsiderable part of the products which it has to offer us, and the threat of closing our ports against these articles by a heavy tariff tax has no weight. On the other hand, Mexico is a large purchaser and consumer of our products, and by levying a heavy tax upon articles principally imported from the United States it can put us in the same attitude as that in which the South American republics would be placed if the President were ever to venture to exercise his supposed authority and restore the tariff tax on their products.

This is exactly what the new Mexican tariff now published undertakes to do. By the schedules of this tariff, the duty on all the live stock imported from the United States has been largely raised; sheep and goats from 35 cents to $1.50 each; mules from $2 to $5 each; horned cattle from $3 each to 3 cents per kilogram; swine from $2.25 each to 3 cents per kilogram. Tallow, largely imported from Kansas City for soap-making, has been advanced from 7 cents per kilogram to 10 cents; macaroni from 2 cents per kilogram to 8 cents; cottonseed oil, largely imported from the United States, from 1 cent per kilogram, gross weight, to 10 cents per kilogram net weight.

There is no concealment of the purpose of this increase of duties. The new schedules go into effect Nov. 1, and together with their publication comes the announcement of the appointment of a special negotiator on the part of Mexico to treat with Mr. Blaine, in the same manner in which Mr. Blaine has treated with the South American republics, the positions being reversed. That is to say, Mexico will exclude such products of the United States as the people there can most easily spare, but in which the trade is very profitable to us, and offers to remove the prohibition in consideration of a compensating change in our tariff which shall remove the duties laid upon Mexican products. This is the outcome of the legislation looking to the exclusion of Mexican silver-lead ores from the United States.

It may be hoped that this application of the "reciprocity" idea will be successful. It is only a few days since the administration organs applauded the beneficent operation of the same scheme as applied to Cuba, representing the relief which the inhabitants of that island would gain by the compulsory reduction of the Spanish tariff tax, the lessened cost of living which they would enjoy under a low tariff, and the impulse which their industries would receive. Although in a less degree, the people of the United States will be the gainers if the Mexican Government succeeds in compelling the removal of some of the burdens of the odious McKinley tariff. It is true that in this case the proposed arrangement is more difficult. The President can enter into no such compact, and the authorization of the legislative power is necessary. But the progress which is making toward a better understanding of the folly and waste of what is called the "protective system," and the advantages of unobstructed commercial intercourse, encourages the expectation that there will be little opposition to the plan.

Our Tariff Humorists.

(N. Y. Times.)

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Crouse either has a good deal of fun in him or none at all. A young gentleman in this city recently had returned to him an engagement ring which he had sent to a lady in London. The latter having concluded that she did not want it or him. This was bad enough, but the rejected lover was also taxed by the customs authorities $46 for the rejected ring. He paid the duties, but under protest, and appealed to the Treasury Department, stating that the ring was of American manufacture, whereupon Mr. Crouse informs the collector that he refund the duties if he is satisfied that the ring "was not improved in condition or increased in value while abroad." If this is the naked language of the statute, it is absurd; if it is meant to be humorous, it is cruel.

He Ignored the Hat.

(Washington Post.)

Mr. William Elroy Curtis has been telling the Ohio people how much Mr. Blaine admires a high tariff and what a fondness Major McKinley entertains for reciprocity. It is needless to say that Mr. Curtis did not use Mr. Blaine's crushed hat for illustrating purposes.

The Boston Journal predicts that the same thing will happen to tin plate that has happened in other branches of manufacturing, viz: that American ingenuity will devise important improvements and labor saving devices that will both improve the quality and at the same time lessen the cost of the product, so that we can make it cheaper than they can in Wales. The Journal claims this has been done in other branches of manufacturing and probably it will be done in those mythical tin-plate mills, for which the American people are now taxed some $16,000,000 a year. If that time comes, the tin plate men will do just as other protected industries have done before they go to Congress and have the tariff put up another cent or two a pound, so that they can "make large fortunes every year," according to high protectionist authority. This is the meat in the tin-plate cocoon.

The Folly of It.

(Milwaukee Journal.)

Is it not about time to stop this bounty-giving business, and let every tub stand on its own bottom? Why tax the whole community to increase the profits of one half of it? If the whole community were benefited equally, every class, every individual, then surely the folly of incurring the expense of collecting and disbursing the tax certainly would be apparent. Can the folly of the inequality of giving protection bounties to only a portion of the producers—either by direct or indirect methods—be less apparent?

SPONGING IN BAHAMA.

THE METHOD OF GATHERING AND PREPARING FOR MARKET.

The Profits of the Work—The Laborers Are Chiefly Blacks and Most of Them Earn Pretty Small Pay—The Sponges Sell at a Good Price However.

Consul Thomas J. McLain of the United States consulate at Nassau, in the Bahama Islands, in response to the direction of the state department, has furnished an interesting paper on the sponge trade of the Bahamas, in which the value of the industry and the methods of catching the sponges are given.

The vessels employed in the trade are small, varying from five to twenty-five tons, sloop or schooner rigged, and are built in the local shipyards. The construction and repair of these vessels constitute an important industry in itself. They have small cabins for sleeping purposes. The cooking is done on deck. About 600 of these vessels are engaged in gathering sponges.

The number of persons gathering sponges in the Bahamas, handling them and preparing them in various stages for market, is from 5,000 to 6,000, all of whom, except the shipowners, brokers and shippers, are black people. Hands employed in clipping, washing, packing and preparing finally for shipment abroad get from fifty to seventy-five cents per day of ten hours. The amount earned by the men who go fishing depends entirely on the number of sponges obtained.

The owner of the vessel fits her out at his own expense, and the profits of the voyage are divided up in shares among the owner, the master and the men. They are never hired by the month, nor do they ever get specified wages. The most that can be said is that the men make a tolerable living, and the sponge fisherman who earns over $300 a year is the exception.

HOW SPONGES ARE GATHERED.

The method of gathering sponges is by means of iron hooks attached to long poles. By using a waterglass the fisherman can readily discover the sponges at the bottom, and then by the pole and hook can bring up those he may select, leaving the smaller ones untouched. Some sponges adhere firmly to the bed of the sea, while others are not attached at all, these latter being known as "rollers."

About ten years ago an attempt was made to introduce dredges, but it was found that their use was likely to ruin the beds, because in passing over the bottom they dislodged and brought up not only the good sponges, but the young and unsalable ones as well, killing the spawn and working great mischief. Such an outcry was raised against dredging that an act was passed forbidding it.

When brought to the vessel the sponges are at once spread upon the deck and left exposed to the sun for several days, during which time the animal matter that covers the sponge gradually dies. This is a black, gelatinous substance of a very low order of marine life, which, during the process of decay, emits a most objectionable odor. The vessels visit what is called the kral once a week to land the load from the deck. The kral is an inclosed pen, fenced in by sticks of wood so as to allow a free circulation of water through it, usually built in a sheltered and shallow bay or cove, on one of the cays near by.

THE CROP OF 1890.

The sponges are placed in the kral and left to be soaked and washed by the action of the water from four to six days, when they are taken out and beaten with sticks until the decayed covering is entirely removed. Having been subjected to this course of exposure, soaking, beating and washing, the sponges are quite clean and are taken on board the vessel, packed in the hold, conveyed to Nassau, and in this condition are sold in the local market.

Of the larger sponges a catch of 5,000 or of the smaller ones 7,500, would be considered a fair lot. Occasionally a cargo of from 12,000 to 15,000 large sponges has been brought in, but this success is exceptional.

The principal varieties gathered in the Bahamas are as follows: Boat, grass, glove, hardhead, reef (white and dark), velvet (abaco and cay), sheep wool, and yellow, of which the most valuable is sheep wool. The total export in 1890 reached over 900,000 pounds, valued at $306,596. The crop of that year was above the average, being really the most valuable one in many years.

Of that crop there were shipped to the United States 708,000, valued at $236,000. Bahama sponges are not considered very good, but a ready market is found for all that can be obtained, and at constantly improving prices. There are no indications of any failure of the supply. —Philadelphia Ledger.

An Acrobatic Kitten.

A pet kitten follows its mistress all over the house when she is at work. Recently she was in an attic chamber, the blind of the window being shut but unfastened. The playful kitten ran across the room and leaped against the blind, which opened, and the kitten disappeared, but came crawling back, having turned in the air and caught the edge of the gutter with its forepaws. It was a feat of remarkable quickness and presence of mind, as the little animal had a very short time to recover from its surprise at being launched suddenly into space. —Portland (Me.) Transcript.

Very True.

There is much in knowing how to see sights. The discreet and skillful person, when confronted with a variety of attractions, will carefully select those that are for him the best, and then will devise means to see them with the least wear and tear. But there are excitable people who set out to see everything, tire themselves out, see only half of anything, and are dissatisfied in the end. —Detroit Free Press.

The Emperor as an After Dinner Speaker.

As an after dinner speaker the emperor has no superior in Germany. He speaks readily without notes, expresses himself with vigor, never descends to conventional commonplaces, and, above all, gives the very best assurance that his words are not prepared for him. I have heard conspicuous speakers in England and in our own country, and, if comparisons are not in this case invidious, I should say that the German emperor need not fear to meet such an audience as even a New England society dinner assembles. One of the prettiest speeches I have listened to was delivered by the emperor in answering the toast to his wife in the province where she was born. It was during the great combined naval and military maneuvers of 1890, at which the United States was represented by Commander Ward, and Great Britain by Admiral Hornby.

The emperor's words were: "I desire to express to you, my dearest sir, the gratitude felt by the empress and myself for the kind words we have just heard. At the same time our thanks to the whole for the day we have passed and for the reception which the province has prepared for us. This day was, however, not needed in order to assure us of the warm friendship we have found here."

"The bond that unites me to this province and chains me to her in a manner different from all others of my empire is the jewel that sparkles at my side, her majesty the empress. Sprung from this soil, the type of the various virtues of a German princess, it is to her that I owe it if I am able to meet the severe labors of my office with a happy spirit and make head against them."

The words of the emperor were unexpected, and to no one more so than to his wife, whose face beamed with happiness at the compliment she so publicly received. Nor did any one who listened to the speaker at that dinner think to question the spontaneity and honesty of the language. —Poultney Bigelow in Century.

Two Remarkable Marriages.

Among the romances of the last century is handed down one of a certain nobleman who was making ready for his wedding ceremony with the lady of his choice when he learned from a frightened messenger that the lady had eloped with another lover. Not at all disconcerted, he coolly continued his toilet, and when it was completed he asked his housekeeper which one of his servants was without that excellent thing in life—a lover. Learning that the kitchen maid was the only one, he sent for her, bade her don her Sunday frock, persuaded her to accompany him to the church at the time appointed for his wedding, and brought the simple country maiden back a peeress of the realm.

The marriage turned out very happily, like the more recent marriage of an English gentleman in New York, who found a young emigrant girl of his own nationality who had missed her friends and was alone in the street. He asked her after a few moments' conversation if she had come to America to find a husband, and when she answered coyly in the affirmative he took her to the nearest church, and they were wedded, and are, according to the latest reports, happy together. —New York Sun.

A Man Who Palms Things.

Two gentlemen shook hands in the street a day or two ago, and as they unclasped their hands a small wad of paper fell to the sidewalk. "What is this?" said one of the men, stooping to pick up the wad. "Oh, that is my five dollar bill," said the other man. "I made a ball of it and palmed it when I left the house in order that I would not forget to stop in at my grocer's and pay a bill. But I forgot all about the confounded thing."

"Do you mean to say that you have carried that wad in the palm of your hand for an hour or two without realizing that it was there?"

"Certainly; I frequently carry small articles in the palm of my hand for several hours. They never fall out, and they don't bother me. I learned the trick of palming when I was a boy, and I have practiced it ever since. I can palm half a dozen coins at the same time and retain them concealed in my hand all day if I want to."

"I can eat my dinner, smoke a cigar, read a paper, and do almost everything, except shake hands, without disturbing the palmed coins. I find the palming knack very useful sometimes, particularly when I want to conceal any small article temporarily." —New York Times.

Why Ice Floats.

Did you ever wonder why it is that ice, being formed of congealed water, floats? And why, on some still lakes, it begins to form at the bottom before it does on the surface? Scientists explain these enigmas thus wise: Ice is specifically lighter than water just about to freeze, and therefore floats in it. This is one reason why the formation of ice usually begins at the surface. Another is its peculiar law of expansion. The general law is that cold induces expansion; this law holds good with water only to a certain point. When water has cooled down to within 7.4 degs. of freezing it ceases to contract as before with increase of cold and begins to expand till it freezes.

This expansion causes the colder portions of the water to rise to the surface. The formation of "ground ice" or "anchor ice," as it is sometimes called, is the only exception to the rule given above. —St. Louis Republic.

He Weighed 645 Pounds.

A very few old Philadelphians who were summer visitors to Milford, Pike county, fifty years ago, remember Lewis Cornelius, who kept the old Sawkill House, and well they may, for he was one of the big men of Pike and of Pennsylvania, perhaps the biggest of his time or any time. He weighed, without clothes, 645 pounds, measured 6 feet in height, 6 feet 8 inches around the waist, 8 feet 3 inches below the waist and throughout was in proportion. He died in 1841. —Philadelphia Press.

A Burglar Captured.

This morning about two o'clock, John Wood, the well-known plumber who resides on Main Street, was awakened by hearing glass break. On getting out of bed he received a blow on the head. He immediately groped with the burglar, and after a terrible struggle succeeded in holding him until his wife obtained help. On being searched at the station, Mr. Wood's watch and wallet was found on his person. He gave the name of Robert Terry. The broken glass proved to be a bottle of Sulphur Bitters which had almost cured Mrs. Wood of rheumatism. —Exchange.

THE CAUCUSES.

The Republican Caucuses to-morrow night ought to be well attended, as the selection of delegates to the State Convention is one of great importance, and the choice of governor may depend on the results of the Newton caucuses. The sentiment in Newton seems to be largely in favor of Mr. Crapo, although there are a great many who are ready to support either Crapo or Allen and have no particular preference either way. Then there are some enthusiastic followers of Mr. Allen, prominent among whom is City Solicitor Slocum, who is an intimate friend of the Lowell man and has a high opinion of his availability as a candidate.

The nomination of governor is more important this year than usual, as we have a Democratic Governor, and Mr. Russell showed last year his strength as a candidate, and he will have the advantage of possession. It is only fair to say that his administration has been a very creditable one, and that he has probably not lost any great part of the strength he had last year. It is always wise not to undervalue an opponent, and the Republican candidate will not have an easy task this year, whatever has been the case in the years gone by.

For these reasons it has appeared to many Republicans that the strongest possible candidate should be chosen, one whose character and reputation is established and they have believed Mr. Crapo to be this man. There is nothing to be said against him, and it might be of advantage to try what virtue there is in an ideal candidate.

The democratic papers have already opened fire on Mr. Allen and pretend to have discovered that in his career as a legislator he has always voted against the "labor interest." This is a rather important matter, and ought to be looked up before the convention meets, as, if true, it would mean the loss of a good many votes. It is always well to know just what line the opposition will take, and if this is developed before a man is nominated, something can be judged of its probable effect. Perhaps there is nothing in these charges, or if true they might have no effect, but nevertheless, Mr. Crapo seems to have more elements of strength and less of weakness, than any other candidate who has been mentioned.

THE BOSTON JOURNAL the other day proclaimed its joy over the conversion of James H. O'Hara of Northampton to the Republican fold, gave his letter in which he announces the fact, and then permitted itself a half column of moral reflections on the lesson to be derived from the conversion of such a prominent Democrat, who was to have stumped the state for the Democratic party. The previousness of the Journal makes the judicious gripe and this case seems to be no exception to the rule. The Journal omitted to state that Mr. O'Hara is now occupying a free room at the Northampton jail, having pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to defraud his landlord out of his board bill, and that he will not be able to address political meetings until quite late in the campaign. The Journal also omitted to state that he was a carpet-bagger from Texas, and that the Democrats had declined his services. This is the trouble of giving only one side of a story, and the Journal is being severely criticized because of its reticence on these points of Mr. O'Hara's record. There are many Republicans who do not share the Journal's joy over the accession of such a convert, and who condemn the Journal for the effusive welcome it extended to him. While they may rejoice that any sinner has seen the error of his ways, they would prefer not to build a bonfire and call out the band for the accession of a man whom his own party appears to be only too glad to get rid of. The Journal means well, but in its anxiety to prove itself the leading party organ of the state it sometimes exhibits a lack of wisdom which offends sensitive people.

The new rules adopted for the Republican caucuses in Boston do not seem to be much of a success, as far as arousing interest in the caucuses are concerned. The names of men proposed as delegates have to be filed a week in advance, and Wednesday was the last day. It appears that in 71 of the wards only one set of delegates have been nominated, so that these will have to be elected, no matter whether the voters favor them or not. Those who do favor these names can go to the caucuses and mark against the names, and those who do not can stay away. This condition of things has aroused considerable dissatisfaction and no wonder. The system seems to be, in its practical workings, a direct blow at the freedom of the caucus system and calculated to make it easy for any set of men who desire, and will take the trouble, to run the caucuses. There was some talk of adopting such a system in Newton, but fortunately it fell through. It is worse than the plan of having printed ballots at the caucuses, and getting enough friends of the ticket out to elect it. The latter has an appearance of fairness, as the caucus is open to the introduction of any other ticket, or even to a marking list, if it is called for. It is not probable that the Boston Republicans will follow such a system very long.

It is said that the Garden City Street Railway Company will allow the location recently granted to lapse, partly on account of sewer excavations on Walnut street, and partly because there are some serious legal defects in the organization of the company, which might lead to trouble if it attempted to do business. When the company is legally organized it will again ask for a location, but it does not desire to build until the sewer on Walnut street is completed, as there is no room for the tracks there at present. Those who hoped to ride in the cars of the new road this winter are probably doomed to disappointment. Many people do not see how a road only going from Newtonville to Newton Centre can be made to pay even the interest on the capital invested, and the road should take in Newton Highlands and connect with the West End road at Chestnut Hill, if any profit is desired from the investment.

The article on James Russell Lowell, which we reprinted last week from The Christian Union of New York, is said by many to be the best summary of the life and character of Mr. Lowell, which has been published in newspaper form.

THE Watertown Independent is a new candidate for public favor, and judging from the first number promises to be a lively one. It will be independent but not neutral in politics.

The Somerville Citizen emulates the Woburn Journal in a studied attempt to bring about a change in the incumbent

of the office of County Treasurer this fall. We would like to ask the Citizen a question on that topic. First—can the Citizen name any treasurer that Middlesex county has had who has been more faithful or efficient? Second—Can the Citizen point to any act of the present

incumbent to which the shadow of unfaithfulness or incapacity attaches? In show can the Citizen give any reason

why Joseph O. Hayden of Somerville

should not be unanimously renominated

and re-elected, save the one fact that some one else wants the office and the other fact that Mr. Hayden publishes one of the best and most successful newspapers in the country in the same city

where the Citizen is published? Is not pure and unadulterated jealousy the only objection to him?

—In the interview published in the Boston Herald, Rev. S. F. Breen of Cambridge explains at some length the plans for the Urban A. Sherman, Methodist Episcopal church in that city. The pastors of the four Methodist Episcopal churches of Cambridge and the presiding elder of the district, Rev. J. W. Lindsay, D. D., are opposed to the organization of the new church, and have practically requested Rev. Breen to abandon his project. In reference to the matter Dr. Lindsay who resides in this city says that the opposition to the new church is based upon the fact that there are already four Methodist Episcopal churches in Cambridge—two being located in the Cambridgeport district, within a comparatively short distance of the hall in which Rev. Mr. Breen proposes to hold services. Of these two latter churches, Grace church is maintained as a free church, and is now carrying a debt. The establishment of an additional church in the same territory might prove a serious injury to the interests of Grace church, and that possible result must of course be taken into consideration.

A Model Handbook.

The newest thing of the kind is the new handbook gotten out by Washburn & Barrett's Advertising Agency, of 61 Court street, Boston. It is entitled

"Hints and Helps for Advertisers," and is just what it claims to be. Besides the regular newspaper directory, which is given in a compact form, a large portion of the book is given to pointers for advertisers, descriptions of models and results of some special efforts in the advertising line, and a description of some of the best papers for advertisers to patronize, one of which of course is the GRAPHIC.

As the day of the Republican State convention approaches, there are multiplying indications that Mr. Crapo will be nominated for Governor, as he is right ought to be. The more the field is reviewed, the more Mr. Allen appears to be "not in it" this year.—Brookline Chronicle.

"Ah, Jones, old man," said Hicks, as he and Jones walked home from the club, "there's a light in the window for you. You married men?" "By George, so there is!" returned Jones. "Let's go back to the club,"—Puck.

She was very pretty! she had a narrow figure, and natural pale gold hair, rather steely blue eyes, and a winsome tight little mouth with real teeth, which is rather rare nowadays, and an innocent childish manner. Also she had a foot and ankle, and a trim habit of dressing. But there was a drawback, very slight one, Mr. Deane thought, and Mrs. Brown regarded the matter seriously—she had been attendant at

And if brother Tom had faith in himself, Dolly, we really thought her brother a very fine fellow, had not been in him implicitly. If I had, I had not been successful hitherto, it was only because of some "unlucky" condition," as Captain Costigan would say.

Chess with Living Pieces.

Although Rabelais gives a humorous account of a game of chess played with living pieces, and on the continent and in India the quaint spectacle has been from time to time repeated, often with great splendor, representations of the kind have been rare until recently in England, the show given under the auspices of Lord Brassey at Hastings having been the latest example.

At Hengler's circus a tournament of this kind was given under distinguished management on behalf of the Women's Help society. Two pretty games were played by Mr. Moresby Chinnery and the Hon. Everard Feilding, the red king and queen being the Hon. William Ashburnham and Miss L. C. Otterell, and the rival monarchs Mr. R. S. Ogilvie-Grant and the Hon. Mrs. Skeffington-Smyth.

The bishops were all ladies, Miss Ram, Miss Hilda Stewart, Lady Berth Wilbraham and Miss Taylor; while rooks and knights were represented by Mrs. Godfrey Samelson, Mr. C. J. Hawker, Mr. D. H. McLean, Mrs. Heath, Mrs. Charles Thynne, Mr. Basil Levett, Baron von Roemer and Mrs. Moresby Chinnery.

The contest was drawn, red and white each winning a game. Very charming was the general effect, owing to the splendor of the dresses and the dexterity with which the maneuvers were executed, the dainty little pawns getting unstinted applause. An excellent amateur orchestra, conducted by Mr. Yorke Trotter, contributed not a little to the success of the entertainment.—London Telegraph.

Milk as a Fire Extinguisher.

Lightning recently struck the flagpole on the Eastford hotel, at Oxford, Md., a large building which was formerly the Maryland Military and Naval academy, and set fire to the cupola, causing much consternation among the guests and threatening to destroy the house. This would have been the case but for the rain which was falling at the time and the efforts of the proprietor, who used milk as an extinguisher, it is stated, in accordance with an old superstition that water will not put out fire caused by lightning. How long this antique fallacy has clouded the minds of the superstitious is not known, but that it has come down from remote times will hardly be questioned.

The hotel proprietor, believing that water would not save his premises, was at his wits' end for an effective extinguisher until he noticed a milk wagon filled with cans of the lactated fluid standing just at the moment in front of the house, a ready-to-hand method of salvation, providentially supplied. Seizing one of the cans the nonbeliever in water lugged it to the top of the hotel and poured it out on the lightning kindled flames, and then went back for further supplies, until he had the satisfaction of seeing the last spark smothered and the burning hotel saved.—Baltimore Sun.

More Fireproof Materials.

Another process for fireproofing combustible materials is reported from Russia, the medium being described as a paste, which is said to have been tested with most satisfactory results by the Moscow Imperial society. A shanty was built entirely of straw, and after being covered with the paste, was subjected to a hot fire, the only effect being to change the straw from a yellow to a reddish brown color without igniting or even cracking.

The society referred to has consequently made arrangements, it is said, to introduce the use of this new invention throughout the empire, considering it from every point of view as of the highest value in villages or localities where the houses are, as a rule, thatched with straw, and where fires, once started, frequently make a clean sweep of the place. The cost of the preparation is very small.—New York Telegram.

In Death Divided.

An old widow lady named Martin, originally from Toul, and daughter of a former mayor of that town, has died at Vincennes under rather peculiar circumstances. She was a person in independent circumstances and was thought to be possessed of a large fortune. A few days ago her neighbors missed her, and when the commissary of police was sent for she was found dead from heart disease. Among her papers a will was discovered by which she leaves all her property, estimated at 200,000 francs, to her native city. She has left 1,200 francs for the expenses of her funeral at Vincennes, but with the express condition that she is to be buried "as far as possible from her late husband."—Gallegani Messenger.

Locked in a Trunk.

Mary Driscoll, a two-year-old Haverhill (Mass.) child, while playing, crawled into a large trunk, and the lid falling she was kept a prisoner until discovered, a few hours later, by her parents. She was unconscious when removed. After missing her a search was begun, and though they could plainly hear her voice they were unable to locate it. The floor was torn up and the closets ransacked, and every other conceivable spot about the house, except the innocent looking trunk, was examined. At last somebody moved the trunk to one side, and noticing it was rather heavy, considering it was empty, raised the lid, and there was the baby.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Myriads of fire bugs were met with near Rome, Ga., about 9 o'clock the other night, by a steamer. They completely filled the air, obscuring a neighboring island and the channel marks. At first the captain was mystified by the sight and backed the vessel and started the electric lights, when thousands of the bugs fell on the decks.

A newspaper in the Gypsy jargon, the Romya tongue, is soon to be published in England with the expectation of making it the organ of the wandering people. It will be edited by George Smith, the "king" of the English Gypsies, who counts upon getting 20,000 subscribers to it.

The New Silver Designs.

"It is not likely that another competition will ever be tried for the production of designs for United States coins," said Assistant Director of the Mint Preston. "The one just ended was too wretched a failure. Doubtless it was the first contest of the sort ever opened by any government to the public at large. The result is not very flattering to the boasted artistic development of this country, inasmuch as only two of the 300 suggestions submitted were good enough to receive honorable mention. So the affair has been handed over to the engraving force of the Philadelphia mint, which will produce the dies required according to such patterns as its own sense of the beautiful suggests."

The designs for Uncle Sam's coins hitherto have been produced at the money making establishment at Philadelphia, where the dies for all the mints are turned out. Anticipating a severe popular criticism, the chief engraver will do his utmost to render the five cameo pictures called for as unexceptional as possible, esthetically speaking. There must be a substitute of some kind, representing Liberty, for the schoolmarm on the dollar, the reverse of which requires a better type of bird than the present buzzard.

Also the unpossessing female, seated upon a cotton bale, is to be removed from the half dollar, quarter and dime. Plaster casts of the patterns evolved will be submitted for approval to the director of the mint and the secretary of the treasury, and as soon as they have been pronounced satisfactory dies will be made and small change of new and lovely mold will thereafter jingle in the pockets of the people.

No alteration is to be made in the gold coins, because they are really exquisite now, and could hardly be improved upon. It is realized that the money of a nation is expressive of its art culture. Therefore, lest posterity imagine the present generation to have been barbarous, it is desirable that our silver pieces should be as handsome as may be.—Washington Letter.

The Safe the Kaiser Took with Him.

Those who saw the emperor's luggage brought ashore at Port Victoria will remember the iron safe which formed part of it. In this safe was the large collection of jeweled snuff boxes, silver cigarette cases, diamond breastpins, signet rings, etc., which the kaiser brought with him for distribution among the members of the queen's household and many other officials with whom he was brought in contact during his visit.

These assorted gifts, which have been caused up by the emperor during the past two years literally by the gross, have now been duly distributed, and have probably—for such is human nature—caused more heartburning and disappointment than delight.

Large as the stock was, it did not prove quite large enough, and several members of the kaiser's suite were engaged for some time at the West End in buying a further assortment of trinkets to serve as presents from the kaiser. The German Orders which the latter has distributed were brought over in a separate case, and in a quantity which recalls the incident of the Russian baron in "Niniche."—London Figaro.

Two Miles a Day by Rail.

Some illustrations of modern railway speed cited before the parliamentary committee on the cross country railway bill merit special attention, showing what can be accomplished when a railway company makes an effort. A Buxton coal merchant says that sometimes the Midland company manages to convey coal from Buxton to Chesterfield in eleven to thirty-four days, and as the towns are more than twenty miles apart it will be seen that sometimes the coal trains dash along the line at the rate of two miles a day. Once the witness found a bird's nest in a truck which had been thirty days on the way, and he reasonably believes that the nest was built and the eggs laid during the month. Yet this Buxton merchant is not happy and desires a change.—Engineering.

Bugged the Dead Man's Parlor.

A curious scene was witnessed at the funeral of David Ruben, a prominent pawnbroker. Ruben started in business five years ago with A. Kline. Business falling off last winter the firm dissolved. A few weeks later Kline rented quarters next to the old place and started in opposition to Ruben, and went around asking the latter's customers for their business. This so preyed on Ruben's mind that he was taken sick and died of typhoid fever, and his funeral took place from an undertaker's establishment. When the friends were all assembled, to the surprise of everybody Kline walked into the room, and advancing to the coffin humbly begged the pardon of the dead man for the injury he had done him. Those present were deeply affected.—Helen Cor. St. Louis Republic.

Visions of a Brother's Death.

A special from Richmond, Ind., says: "Some months ago Samuel Nutting, of this city, was run down by a switch engine and instantly killed. He had no relatives here, but had a sister somewhere in the west, of whom nothing had been heard for years. Yesterday Postmaster Jenkinson received a letter from the sister, who lives near Davenport, Ia., asking for information as to her brother, and stating that she had dreamed that her brother had been killed in an accident and had felt worried over the matter, so she determined to write and learn if something had happened to him. Particulars were sent to her today of the death of her brother."

An Ugly Predicament.

John Geiss, a Michigan blacksmith, got his foot tangled in a rope attached to a balloon at Wenonah Beach, on Saginaw bay. He called to the folks to hold him when the balloon went up, but they could not. However, he got his feet untangled before he had gone more than three or four rods, and falling on soft sand, he escaped injury.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Cancer Can be Cured, and by Dr. James M. Solomon, Jr., 75 Court St., Boston, Mass.

Boston, Aug. 26, 1890.

Dr. Solomon has cured a cancer on my lip of seventeen years' standing, it was cut out twice, by what they call eminent surgeons, at intervals of six years, after being cut out each time I knew by the feeling it was still there, and it would be now if I had not been so fortunate as to have Dr. Solomon treat it, he did it without any cutting. I would urge those afflicted with cancer not delay, but to go at once and be cured permanently as I have done. My dear Doctor I thank from the bottom of my heart.

It is Good Work to Give Health. The only remedy for blood disorders is one that will expel the germs of disease, and make the blood pure and rich. That is the best effected by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., a medicine of great value in the treatment of all blood disorders and diseases of the Kidneys. It tones the system and helps to do good work.

—Rev. Dr. Twombly supplied his pulpit last Sunday for the first time since his vacation.

—Mr. W. R. Dimond and family arrived home last Saturday after a month's vacation in Michigan.

—Mr. John Fitzgerald took a trip to Portsmouth, N. H., Wednesday, returning home by carriage.

—The Hotel Bon Air, which was run at the Heckle mansion until recently, has discontinued business.

—Mr. Samuel Leland and family of Chicago, who have been visiting here, will return to their home next week.

—The Hamilton school building has undergone many improvements. New ventilators have been added and the building has an improved appearance.

—The attention of the people of Newton is called to the admirable opportunity offered by Mr. Ryder's out door class in drawing and painting from nature. See another column.

NONANTUM.

—Rev. Geo. F. Walker will preach at the North Evangelical church on Sunday. Communion service in the evening.

—John Kelly, son of Ellen Kelly, residing on Crescent street, was severely injured last Friday by the accidental explosion of a dynamite cartridge. The boy will lose the sight of both eyes.

Now in view of all these facts we respectfully propose as a solution of all differences, that the ticket to be named shall be "Rip, rap, and Allen. Why not?"

Mr. Crapo is in the prime and considerably the elder of Mr. Allen. It has been the custom in our State to promote the Lieut. Governor, numerous examples of which action we need not cite. Where there are but two candidates for the principal place, both competent and popular, this suggestion seems to us an eminently feasible and proper one.—Lynn Transcript.

Add one teaspoonful of Cleveland's baking powder and a half teaspoonful of salt to one pint of sifted flour. Sift again. Rub in one tablespoonful of butter, add sufficient milk to make a soft dough. Roll out, sprinkle with one cup of chopped raisins and a half cup of chopped citron. Dust with cinnamon, roll up and steam for thirty minutes. Serve warm with hard sauce.

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that.

The most healthful leaven is carbonic acid gas from pure cream of tartar and soda. It is the only leavening power of Cleveland's Baking Powder. That is why Cleveland's is perfectly wholesome, leavens moist and leavens best. Try it, Cleveland's.

—Mr. Chas. E. Eddy has let the contract for his new house on Franklin street to Mr. Bailey of West Newton, and work will begin at once. The larger part of the first story will be of stone, and the plans show a very attractive house.

—Truly, the boom on Brighton Hill is great! Land is not only selling fast, but even stone posts find ready purchasers. Mr. H. D. Coley has bought the posts at the entrance to Copley street, to ensure that they shall remain there.

—The attention of the public is called to the large amount of unpaid and insufficiently prepaid newspaper matter dropped in the boxes. The postmaster says the amount is continually increasing, so if a friend has not received a paper it may be found at the postoffice awaiting postage.

—The next regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Union will be held in the M. E. church on Monday, Sept. 14th, at 3 p. m. It is very important that there should be a full attendance as business of more than usual importance is to be considered. The women of Newton are all most cordially invited to meet with us.

—Music in Grace church on Sunday night: Processional Hymn, "There is a blessed Home," H. B. Day.

"O sing unto the Lord" and "Lord have mercy and bless us." H. B. Day.

Tenor solo and chorus, "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found," "Sweet Saviour bless us," Stella.

All the seats at these Sunday night services are free of charge. A notice at the front doors runs: "Take any seat you please."

—On Friday last an Italian laborer employed on the sewers at the corner of Park and Vernon streets, accidentally hit a gas main with his pick, making a good sized hole through the pipe. Extricating the pick he went at work and soon struck a rock, causing a spark which set fire to the escaping gas. The foreman was notified, an engine called on a still alarm and the fire was quickly extinguished.

—Mr. P. A. Murray won first prize for his handsome Surrey sent to the New England fair at Worcester. The honor is the greater as there were 15 other competitors, representing the leading carriage makers of New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut, and it shows that excellence of workmanship tells. The Surrey was a two-seater with light lemon running gear and dark green body, picked out with gold. If you want the best carriage to be had Mr. Murray will make it for you.

—Watertown had its epoch of fires last week, including two of a very serious character. Friday evening, the old shade roller factory on Fayette street, utilized for manufacturing purposes, was badly gutted. The loss on the building and plant and contents of the building was nearly $25,000. A 2 1/2 story wooden dwelling house on Arlington street was practically burned to the ground. The building was owned by Mr. Quinn of Cambridge, was valued at $300 and was insured. Steamer 1 and hose company 1 of this city rendered assistance at the shade roller factory fire and are credited with some good work by the Watertown people.

—Mr. N. P. Coburn is soon to retire from the firm of William Claflin, Coburn & Co., one of the oldest and largest shoe firms in the country. It was founded by Lee Claflin in 1815. Mr. Coburn retires from active business with the respect of all with whom he has ever been drawn in intimate contact. With a handsome competency, he does not retire on account of bodily disability or mental impairment. The old nearly 75 years of age, he is as hale and hearty as a man of 60, and as much in love with business as he ever was. He retires because he thinks that at his time of life he is fairly entitled to a few years of rest. The retirement will take place Jan. 1st.

—Aban, Trowbridge & Co., have sold the lot on Hunnewell Terrace at foot of Fairview street to a Newton gentleman who will build there this fall. Also the second lot on the west side of the Stevenson estate, Hunnewell avenue, to a Newton gentleman. They have rented the following house at Newton: The Ross house on east side of Waverley avenue near Washington street, to Mr. McCandlish, now at Hotel Hunnewell. At Newtonville, the Curtis house, (furnished), corner Newtonville street and Harvard street, to Mr. A. Leland Brown of Pittsfield, Mass.; also the Collins house, 24 Otis street, to Chas. E. Corbett of Boston; also the house corner New York street and Harvard street, to Mr. Duncan Bailly Blanchard, General Eastern Agent of the French Line Mail Steamers.

—Considerable interest is already manifested in the series of special meetings for young men, which the devoted committee of the Young Men's Christian Association has arranged to have conducted by Evangelist C. H. Yattman next week. Mr. Yattman seems especially adapted to just this kind of work, having had several years experience as a general secretary before entering the ministry. A correspondent of the New York Observer writes thus regarding his work in Pueblo, Colorado: "A fortnight has passed away since the close of his labors. We have had opportunity to survey the field and learn something of the results. Never man worked harder nor more persistently, prayerfully and along Bible lines than this whole-souled evangelist. Mr. Yattman impresses himself upon the hearts of his hearers. He is always appears as a messenger and people are led to 'hearken' for the voice of Him who has sent the message, and so absorbed do they become in the message, as in a large measure to forget the personality of the speaker. Mr. Yattman, therefore, lacks the offensively sensational element and puts his whole soul into his work with a downright and energetic earnestness that becomes contagious very soon and Christian workers spring up as if by magic to do something for Christ. The results, therefore, are not measured by the number of converts gathered, though in this case there were hundreds, but in an advanced religious sentiment throughout the city."

—In addition to the evening meetings, which commence at eight o'clock, Monday afternoon meetings for everybody will be held at four o'clock, the first being on Tuesday, the 15th. Mrs. Kress, a soprano soloist of New York, will assist Mr. Yattman by her singing at both meetings, and a chorus of men's voices, led by Mr. Hugh Campbell, will help in the evening services.

—Dancing Academy.
See notice of Waltham Dancing Academy, which opens Sept. 22nd. Private lessons will also be given. The grand opening ball will be held next Tuesday evening.

—Natural History Society.
This society will have an excursion under the direction of Dr. Frisbie to Hammond's Pond and vicinity on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 13. The train leaves Newton for Chestnut Hill station at 1.50 p. m. Those who have never visited this beautiful spot, have not as yet explored all the wonders and beauties contained in the "Garden City" will be well repaid for their trouble. All are invited to go, whether members of the society or not.

—It seems to me that you might make a better use of your time than loafing around saloons. "Great snake! You can't expect a man to sit in the parks such rainy weather as this, can you?"

SCHOOL BOARD PROCEEDINGS.

FIRST MEETING FOLLOWING THE SUMMER VACATION.

The school board held its first meeting following the summer vacation in the High school building, Newtonville, Wednesday evening. Mayor Hibbard was in attendance at an important meeting of the sewerage committee and chairman Hollis presided. The members present were, Chairman Hollis, Messrs. Bond, Ober, Harwood, Hale, Hornbrooke, White, Mead, Travis, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Martin.

The business of the most part was that in connection with the nominations and confirmation of new teachers. The resignation of Helen M. Rogers, assistant in the Peirce school, was received and accepted. Helen Freeman was transferred from the Bigelow to the Peirce school, and her salary fixed at the rate of $550 per annum. Mary E. Martin was appointed a substitute in the Peirce school at the rate of $620 per annum. Emma J. Tyler was appointed laboratory assistant in the High school at a salary of $399 per annum. Harriet P. Poor was appointed assistant in the High school at a salary of $900. Annie B. Blackwell was appointed assistant in the Bigelow school, and Mary S. Maynard assistant in the Oak Hill school, and the salary of each fixed at $500 per year.

On motion of Mr. Bond, orders were adopted appropriating $5009.27 and $3439.65 for department expenses of July and August.

The following communication was received:

To the Newton School Board:
During the past two or three years, I have received several requests for instruction in architectural drawing from the carpenters and apprentices living in Newton Centre, and as a result of the desire for instruction in that kind of drawing, the enclosed petition has been circulated exclusively among carpenters residing in the place named. The signatures represent, I believe, but a few of those who would attend a school of the kind. Some of the young men from Newton Centre are attending the drawing schools in Boston and paying for the privilege. If such instruction could be given in a school in Newton it would meet a real need.

EDWARD F. STEVENS.
The communication was accompanied by a petition signed by L. A. Boynton and 25 others, requesting the establishing of an evening school in Newton Centre for instruction especially in architectural drawing and building construction.

Mr. Harwood said that a real desire for such instruction existed, and that he had no doubt of the success of such a school if established. In order, however, to deal with the matter in a wise way, he added, I move the reference of the petition to the committee on evening schools. The petition was referred.

Rev. Mr. White asked if a transient officer had been appointed in Ward 2. Sept. Jones said that at present it had not been deemed necessary as the cases of truancy in the Adams and Claflin schools were few and far between.

The board adjourned at 8.30 o'clock.

ON THE DEERFIELD.

The Deerfield river is a delightful, dashing, roaring stream of clear water coming down from the mountains of southern Vermont through Wilmington, Whitingham, Readsboro, Monroe, Rowe and Florida to the Hoosac Tunnel, and there turning eastward through Charle-mont and Shelburn Falls, it lends its wild music to the valley through which the Fitchburg railroad enters the moun-tains, rivaling with its noise the thun-dering trains till it quiets down to adorn the beautiful meadows of old Deerfield, when passing under "the high bridge," it empties into the Connecticut a little below Greenfield. Until recently this fine river has been only a useless, or rather, only an ornamental stream, glint-ing in the sunshine and dancing and laughing along down its foaming rapids, or in placid places mirroring the sky and trees in its clear depths, but doing no work, or next to none, such as other rivers in New England are made to do.

Some dozen or more years ago Messrs. D. H., J. C. and Moses Newton of Holyoke conceived the idea of harnessing this wild stream and making it do its part in the industries of the country. Accord-ingly they obtained the necessary sites, built a high dam at Readsboro just above the village, securing a fall of eighty feet head, a water power of great efficiency. On this they built a very large pulp and paper mill; saw mills and other works followed for using up the thousands of logs that came down the river as soon as this market was opened for them. The product of these operations was twenty to thirty tons of freight a day which had to be carried down river 12 miles over roads to the Tunnel in wagons in no wise fitted for heavy freighting. The necessity of a railroad for this work was at once appar-ent, and the enterprising gentlemen, without waiting for the public to act, immediately took measures for building a railroad themselves to accommodate their own works and all this hitherto undeveloped region. The result is the Hoosac Tunnel and Wilmington Railroad now running up the east bank of the river from the tunnel to Readsboro and being extended to Wilmington. With the new facilities for transportation a large chair factory sprang up there; the founda-tions of another paper mill are now being laid, other industries are coming in and new buildings are going up throughout the village. Two large stores, a new Baptist church, and several dwellings are now in process of erection besides the new paper mill. An excel-lent hotel, the Goodell House, is kept there, and the air of growth and pros-perity everywhere prevails as the far reaching results of the enterprise of the Newtons.

And this is but the beginning. Five miles down the river at Monroe Bridge, Mr. James Ramage has built another dam and erected two large mills for pulp and paper and has already created a thriving village where but recently was one of the wildest places on the river. Besides mills, stores and dwellings for his work people, Mr. Ramage has built for himself, or his son, a large and hand-some residence, and is to erect this season a building for a hall and other public uses, at a cost of some $5000, the con-tract for which has already been secured with Mr. Thorpe of Holyoke. So the enter-prise and the wealth of these hard workers, the Newtons and the Ramages, are making these mountain wildernesses blossom like the rose. Between Reads-boro and the tunnel there are on this river some twenty other waterfalls, wait-ing to be utilized, and now that rail-road facilities exist at every point they are likely ere long to be taken up and used in a way to add materially to the in-dustrial interests of the state.

FINE SCENERY.

Monroe is a small town having but few inhabitants, but to those who climb its hills and look into its deep valleys and across to the blue summits which adorn the distant horizon, it affords some of the finest scenery in the state. Hereto-fore this delightful scenery has been shut in by the apparently impenetrable hills. The railroad up the river overcomes the barriers and makes easy connection with the outside world. To reach the finer points of view, a drive of some two miles from the depot up a rather formidable grade is necessary. By this ride an elevated plateau is reached which overlooks the river and the valley and affords extensive views in the distance. Seen from here the blue hills of Hawley and Cummington lie against the southern sky in unsurpassed loveliness.

The course of the river here is west-ward and southward and as you look down upon it dashing around the bare granite feet of the hills of Rowe, which along the east bank slope clear down into the river's bed, it seems to be still wear-ing its way out of its mountain prison, for far below, the hills on either side in-terlock so completely as to leave the im-pression that there cannot be an open passage for the river between them.

The edge of this plateau next to the valley is semi-circular facing both east and south and forms the brink of a precipice which rises abruptly a thousand feet or more from below. The foot of the precipice is some distance back from the river leaving a fertile level space be-tween the precipice and the river's chan-nel. This space is divided into farms and is known as "the flats." Cultivated, crossed by silver streams bordered by the hills, and embraced by the flowing river, this valley makes a picture of rare and striking interest. From a favorable point of view it is spread out before the eyes of the beholder with all its rare beauty intensified by the diminishing and leveling effect which is gained by looking down from a high standpoint. A de-scription of it has been attempted in poetry:-

Come, now! Together we will go
And from the "jumping-off-place" see
The gulf a thousand feet below,
Where hugging close the hills of Rowe
The waters of the Deerfield flow,
Leaving along the latter side
The winding valley deep and wide.
Far eastward o'er that distant knoll
The river makes a sudden bend
And where the picture seems to end
Shows the black of the river's pool.
Then turning west and southward, flows
Over its narrow, rocky bed
By which a dark green barbed grows
Whose fragrance on its waves is shed,
Till soft and low their distant roar
Is lost among the hills of Zoar.
Look down! how far below our feet
The tree-tops of the hill side meet;
And at the base the ground all green
Seems level as a threshold floor!
The buildings there like beehives look;
The cattle feeding by the brook

Scarce larger seem than creeping mice,
The white sheep look like grains of rice.

The cornfields and the new-plowed ground
With grassy riders stretching round,
The orchards and the meadows there,
Like finest carpets rich and rare,
And Leggett's flat and Stockwell's field
And Leggett's pasture soft and green
A finer view of nature yield
Than mortal eye hath often seen.

A picture of such beauty bright Framed in the border of the hill's
And shown in morning's clearest light
The soul of the beholder thrills;
And slow we are and sad of heart
To leave in this untraveled spot
A scene surpassing painters' art
While yet a painter knows it not.

This charming elevation, the south-eastern slope of the Monroe hills, where so much of interest in scenes near and distant delights the eye, where nature almost undisturbed mingles with rare effect the sublime and beautiful and ap-peals to the imagination in a voice sub-dued but most alluring, is yet to be ap-preciated, and some day will doubtless be known and enjoyed as a unique and attractive place of summer resort. Its phases of beauty and interest vary from morning to noon and from noon to night. Here are a few more snapshots from the verse of an oldtime admirer of the place which give glimpses of the changing scenes:-

Behold the morning's golden glow
Spread o'er the hills of Heath and Rowe
While in the valley winding high
The shadows of the mountain lie,
And vapors from the river rise
Like smoke of burning sacrifice.

The morn now deepens into day,
The sun pours forth a warmer ray,
Flicking up the evening dew
Sending the sap through leaf and blade,
Imparting life and growth anew.
Filling with fragrance earth and air
From opening blossoms sweet and fair
And, rising into noonday light—
No ray so clear, no sun so bright,
As over field and meadows green
It sends afar its silver sheen.

While round to North the shadows steal
That call the men to noontide meal
Can words portray the splendid sight
Of summer noon on that fair height,
When nature's silent forces meet
To make the crowing hour complete,
And day at antipodes with night
Pours out its flood of perfect light?

Now hushed to rest, the viewless breeze
Scarce moves the foliage of the trees;
The sun has drunk the dew of night,
The morning mist has passed through sight,
The teeming fields in stillness glow,
The meadow streams in silence flow,
The birds have fled to shady nook,
The trout lie basking in the brook.
Urged by the sun's meridian power,
The buds are bursting g into flower,
The ripening grain means soft and low,
Listening, you think you hear it grow.
The flowers their silent beauty yield,
No voice is heard in wood or field
Save the industrious bees' low hum
As in their toil they go and come.

Soft feathery clouds float in the sky,
Back to the earth its farewell send Along a glorious sunlit way
Where all the rainbow colors blend;
While far along the luminous sky
Bright clouds of gold and crimson lie,
Appearing to the enchanted eye
Like heavenly mansions of the blest!

Off For The Range.

On the 9th of August 1891, W. E. Higgins and C. H. Monroe started for a weeks trip up to snow. The starting place was Troutdale, Colo., and with a Burro packed with all the necessities they intended to "Make Snow or Bust."

A word should be said here about the Burro or Rocky Mountain Canary as he is called. They are all the way from thirty-six to forty-four or forty-eight inches in height and have most of the characteristics of the mule. As a pack animal through the mountains they have no equal. Walking nearly any where that any man could and smiling out the trail when it cannot be seen, and being able to carry nearly their own weight on their backs they have a great advantage over the horse. The burro that figures in this trip carried from one hundred and seventy-five to two hundred pounds. Picking his way between the trees with-out scraping the pack showed sagacity almost unequalled in any other animal.

The first day about twenty miles was made and as this was all up hill the party were quite tired. At about 4.30 in the afternoon a trail was struck which led off in a pocket or gulch. This was followed until nearly seven o'clock when the blazes on the trees suddenly stopped and left the trio at the jumping off place. They had followed a "blind trail." A blind trail is made for the purpose of misleading persons who are desirous of following others. Or some-times which is often the case, and was the case here, the trail had been made for the purpose of reaching a logging camp and as it was likely to run through another man's claim it had to be stopped and a new one begun which would pass through the loggers claim only.

At 8 o'clock camp was struck and a morning fire built for the double purpose of getting supper and later to frighten the coyotes of which there were numbers in the vicinity.

Supper over the blankets were taken from the saddle and two weary young men lay down to enjoy a much needed rest. At about 10 o'clock in the morning the coyotes began their music. Just light enough for objects to be seen at a distance of five or six yards, these animals could venture quite near the campfire without being seen. Being naturally a cowardly animal they do not, unless very hungry, attack a man or an animal. The boys were waiting for them with guns loaded and any coyote that ventured too far would have received about fifty buck shot in his worthless carcass. However none came too near but their fiery eyes could be seen looking like small balls of fire in the coming dawn.

As soon as it grew lighter they slunk away and nothing more was seen of them. It was a clear case of good rid-dance. Breakfast was eaten and the trail re-traced until another line of blazes could be seen, and after a little hunting the clearly defined trail was found. Four, five hours passed and nothing but timber could be seen. In another half hour a cabin was seen and there was the logging camp where they had been told to go. But one of the men was in the cabin and he gave them a true Western welcome. After the Burro had been unpacked and turned loose to graze the boys entered the cabin and sat down to a repast fit for a king, consisting of the juiciest part of an elk. Good was no name for it. It was simply immense. Soon the rest of the party came in and great was their surprise to see a Boston tenderfoot in camp. Being told that the tenderfoot was from Newton and not Boston they said it was near enough any way and when this person went outside to see to the Burro, a rawhide lasso shot out from one corner of the cabin and the novice settled comfortably over the Newton boy's head. He started to run but another caught him by the foot and by the time he was down another pinned his arms to his side. This was to test his grit and as he took it as a good joke they voted him all right and let him up. In the afternoon the whole party went up on Meridian Mountain. This mountain is the 105th West of St. Louis. The whole country for miles around could be seen and just below to the left could be seen several deer quietly graz-ing. The Mud Lakes could be seen, fourteen in number, lying below the moun-tain. This is some of the grandest scenery to be seen in Colorado. Next day the Eastern boys went up Mount Logan and indulged in the novel expe-rience of a snowball fight in August. Mount Logan by the way is 14,375 feet above the level of the sea. Eastern mountains are simply rest of the time as sport in shooting rabbits and grouse and in looking over the country.

The writer has climbed mountains in New Hampshire, but compared with the Rockies, they are simply "out of sight."

The timber in this part of the range is said to be the best in the state so thick that one can hardly pass between the trees. On Saturday morning the boys left the camp and after bidding the loggers good bye took the trail for home, where the outfit arrived at 7.30 p. m. Oh how good the beds felt that night and how hungry were the boys next morning. Pictures of the outfit were taken and can be seen by stepping into Bradshaw's or applying to Mr. W. S. Higgins, Newtonville.

Our Public Schools. In them are the main stay of our republic. In them are being cultivated the minds which are to be our future leaders and leaders in every walk of life. How essential it is that these minds should be united to strong, healthy bodies. So many children suffer from impurities and poisons in the blood that it is a wonder that they ever grow up to be men and women.

Many parents cannot find words strong enough to express their gratitude to Hood's Sarsaparilla for its good effect upon their children. Scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases of the blood are effectually and permanently cured by this excel-lent medicine, and the whole being is given strength to resist attacks of disease.

Deafness Can't Be Cured by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by con-stitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an in-flamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets in-flamed you have a rumbling sound of imper-fect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deaf-ness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed con-dition of the mucous surfaces.

Send for One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we can not cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Free Trade and Canadian Rivalry.

[Springfield Republican.]

Senator Hoar opens a discussion of railway questions in the Independent with a strong argument against the exclusion or undue restriction of Canadian railroads engaged in American traffic. His point of view is of course New England, whose immense business interests are so intimately connected with the maintenance of cheap transportation with interior markets and sources of raw material supply. Canadian roads do now and must ever afford the most direct way between New England and the Northwest. The Dominion territory extends far south of a line drawn from the northernmost part of Maine to the northern boundary of Washington and direct transit across the northern quarter of the United States must use Dominion territory at some point. Moreover, land in such parts of the Dominion is level and cheap, and thus the cost of railway construction and transportation is there reduced to a minimum. The distance saved may be judged by considering that from Port Huron in Michigan to Buffalo by way of the states it is 425 miles, while through Canada it is only 108 miles.

Why, then, asks the senator, should we forego so great a natural advantage? "There seems to be," he says, "no good reason why American merchandise should prefer to a short and cheap route through Canada, a longer and more expensive one, merely because the latter is wholly upon American soil." We are tempted to remind the senator right here that this is for him very heretical doctrine. It might be asked in reply why American consumption should prefer to cheap Welsh tin plate a more expensive and perhaps inferior article merely because the latter is made on American soil. Mr. Hoar thinks it would be very foolish to deprive ourselves of Canadian transportation kindly reduced below cost for us by government subsidies. Why, then, it might be asked, should we cast aside the similar advantage extended by the subsidies said to be so liberally bestowed upon foreign ships engaged in the European carrying trade, and should the subsidy burden ourselves?

However, it must be said that the senator's argument is very strong. And if it could be shown that through the interstate commerce act the Canadian roads possess no artificial advantage over the American roads, the proposition to exclude those roads or regulate their operations in respect of American traffic could not well be supported. Mr. Hoar thinks they possess no such advantage and are subject to Dominion regulations very similar to those embodied in our laws. He also says that, far from helping to build up a great military danger over the northern border, we are getting a hostage which will forever bind Canada and Great Britain, so far as she cares for Canada, to good behavior toward us. Nothing can be lost here by any policy which shall bring the people of the two countries closer together. It may be gathered from all this that Senator Hoar will not help along any of the plans now brewing to shut the Canadian roads out of the United States.

Extracts From "Puck."

"The price of that article is one dollar," says the salesman. "But, seeing that you are my best friend, I'll let you have it for a dollar and a half."

That doesn't sound exactly right, does it? But it is sound high-protectionist theory. That is the theory which is expected to work out, in practice, a future of prosperity for this country. When Mr. Harrison proudly proclaims to the world that he has no sympathy with the idea of cheap goods for the people's use, and gravely declares that a cheap coat means a cheap man, it really sounds as though he meant something. When the only possible meaning that can attach to his words is put in plain English—as it is put at the head of this column—it does not require a profound and subtle scholar to understand the real significance of the Republican cant of "keeping up prices" for the benefit of the workingman. Reduce Mr. Harrison's theory to practice, bring it down to the brief practical conversation over the counter, and the way-faring man must be a fool, indeed, if he can not read in a list of increased prices an increased drain upon the wages that, for all the talk, for all the promises, for all the buncombe eloquence of the Republican orators, never increase one cent's worth beyond the actual market-value in any given place, at any given time.

A cheap coat, Mr. Harrison "things"—or says he thinks—makes a cheap man. But which one feels the cheaper, the man who pays ten dollars for a ten-dollar coat, or the man who pays fifteen dollars for that same ten-dollar coat? Does it add anything to a man's stature to be cheated out of one-third of his hard-earned money? Is the laboring man, whose work is bought by his employers as cheaply as they can buy it—and what labor, high or low, great or small, is not, and has not always been, bought on these terms?—is the laboring man who sells his labor, his time, his whole life, on this basis, to live in the luxury of buying his necessities in the highest market, to avoid the awful possibility of Mr. Harrison's taking him for a "cheap man"? This is a hard world, and a cold world. If a man has a warm ten-dollar coat on his back, he can afford to be set down in Mr. Harrison's book as less dear than the man who has paid fifteen dollars for ten dollars' worth, to maintain the glories of the "protective" tariff.

There are men, no doubt, who conscientiously believe that this "protective tariff" is really the protection of the American workingman; and that high prices ensure him high wages. Once in a while, these men want to borrow money. It may happen that they find it difficult to get what they want. The people to whom they apply do not wish to lend. They are told that "money is tight"—"there is no money"—"ready money is scarce." Does it ever occur to them that in a country where high prices prevail, money is far more likely to be scarce than in a country where low prices call for less use of the natural volume of currency? If it ever does occur to them, by any chance, would it not pay them, and their country, if they would try to figure out for themselves whether or no the good folk who are unreasonably clamoring for an increase in the circulating medium of the nation would not be far better satisfied with a decrease in the prices of the commodities which they use that circulating medium to buy?

True to Reform.

Newton, Mass., Sept. 8, '91.
To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:
The attacks on Geo. Fred. Williams because of his attitude on the question of patronage will strengthen him among all the fair minded voters of the new eleventh Congressional district, and it also meets the expectations of his present constituents. They elected him, well knowing his record as a civil service reformer, and he means to be true to this confidence imposed upon him, even if he gains the enmity of a few office seekers that usually are unable to earn an honest living by the sweat of their brow, and therefore prostitute the public service to their selfish ends.

The majority of the people believe in an honest civil service reform. They believe it is no part of the work of a Congressman to provide or meddle with appointments. He is elected to attend to the commercial interests of his constituents and to make laws for the general welfare of the country; to do this kind of work properly taxes a man's capacity sufficiently without any such petty and disagreeable work as providing for soft snail shells.

No, all honor to the public servant that is guided by the highest motives and is willing to give his best time to the consideration of the business of the whole people and not devote his time to the one thousandth part of the people in the shape of soft snail shells.

The people of Massachusetts mean that civil service reform is not a sham, and it has reached that stage where a Congressman that is known to stand up fearlessly for the right in Massachusetts will receive sufficient aid to win the fight.

The spoilsmen must understand that civil service reformers include men of both parties.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORMER.

Veteran Firemen.
The Veteran Firemen's Association turned out in large numbers last Monday afternoon and gave their engine "Chauncy" a trial in Allen's pasture, West Newton. Fireman John Exley was in command.

The weather was in anything but a favorable condition to make a good trial, but the vets succeeded in reaching 168 feet through 250 feet of hose, playing up hill.

This was a good showing, considering the fact that the engine has long been out of service, the men for a decade or more out of practice, and the unfavorable condition of the weather. If they do equally as well at the Lowell tournament Wednesday, Sept. 23, a prize will not be impossible.

Returning to the temporary engine station, R. M. Lindley's barn on Webster street, the members were measured for regulation fatigue caps, which, with badge, will be the uniform they will wear to Lowell. The word "Newton" on black ribbon will be worn on front of cap, with officers' position attached, to designate where the association came from.

The assessment to and from Lowell from Boston, with dinner and all other incidental expenses, was placed at $2 per man, and Secretary C. T. Bartlett and W. E. Glover were appointed a committee to issue and dispose of tickets, and to arrange for dinner. W. E. Glover was appointed treasurer for the tournament excursion.

Any active or veteran fireman, whether members of the association or not, can accompany the association to Lowell by purchasing a round trip ticket at the assessment price of $2. Members only will wear uniform.

There will be another trial of engine and a business meeting at temporary engine station next Monday evening at 7 o'clock sharp.

The officers of the association and engine as recently completed are: Pres., ex-Chief R. M. Lucas, Triton 3; Vice-Pres., ex-Chief W. P. Leavitt, Nonantum 5; Sec., C. T. Bartlett, Eagle 6; Treas., A. J. Glover, Mechanic 4; Foreman John Exley, Cataract 1; 1st Asst., H. N. Hyde, Jr., Nonantum 3; 2nd Asst., Geo. Simpson, Triton 3; Steward, R. M. Lindley, Triton 3.

Leading hosemen: George S. Holmes, Steamer 1; James Keegan, Triton 3; George H. Osborn, Mechanic 4; Fred S. Burgess, Steamer 2; Horace Lindley, Steamer 1; Charles Allen, Triton 3.

Section hosemen: W. E. Glover, Steamer 1; F. A. Barrows, Steamer 2; A. H. Adams, Truck 1.

Higher than the Eiffel Tower.

The Chicago man was talking to a plain, unassuming man from Detroit about the World's Fair and what they were going to have there.

"Don't you forget it," he boasted, "we are going to have something that will overtop the Eiffel tower clean out of sight!"

"Yes?" assented the Detroit man in a meek, inquiring tone.

"Let your sweet existence," slapping him on the back in Chicagoesque style.

"I know it," continued the Detroit man. "I saw the plans the other day."

"Did you, though?" inquired Chicago with interest and surprise; where?"

"At a Chicago printing office; they were designs for hotel bills for 1893."

The Chicago man got up and went to the water cooler for five minutes.—Detroit Free Press.

Fine Treatment.

Joe—Well, Bill where have you been lately?

Bill—Oh, I've been recuperating, I've had.

Joe—Is that so? Where have you been, to the mountains?

Bill—No, they never send me to the mountains.

Joe—Never send you to the mountains? Why, what do you mean by that?

Bill—Well, the truth of the matter is I was up before my old friend, Judge Forsaith, and he thought I needed a little time at the seashore to rest my weary body.

Joe—Oh, I see. He was kind to you.

Bill—Oh, yes, he always treats me fine.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS.

ADDRESS OF CHAIRMAN W. H. PARTRIDGE OF NEWTON.

Chairman W. H. Partridge of Newton called the Prohibition State Convention at Worcester to order on Wednesday and made the following address:

Fellow-Prohibitionists of Massachusetts. This is our day and generation; not our fathers'; not our children's; but ours to serve. In the interest of brave and faithful service we gather to-day. The drink traffic which creates the vice, pauperism and crime of our state, and which every intelligent citizen acknowledges to be the most gigantic curse, and the wickedest waste of valuable resources that ever threatened the existence of this or any other nation, we are called upon by the God of battles to destroy. We alone have the courage to attack it in the political arena, where we find it entrenched. It's utter annihilation is our exalted issue, and our only ultimatum. Because every other political party is cowardly, and is in abject servitude to this monster crime of the centuries.

Our party exists to suppress it. Because the other parties legalize its existence we enter politics to kill it. The importance and magnitude of prohibition, which so concerns the morals and economics of our nation, fully justifies us in attacking the existence of the great political parties which have enjoyed the support of our people so long.

These two political parties, instead of being conservators of the nation's good, have become corrupt and dangerous political evils. They have become baser than the politicians and voters, and use them to perpetuate their hellish traffic.

Our party alone refuses to serve them, and manfully determines to assault and destroy their business. The campaign in Massachusetts has already begun, and is to be as usual a selfish struggle for supremacy. The party that has had for over 30 years almost unbroken control of our state is now at bay, with its enemy in the executive chair. It is to make one heroic effort to regain its ascendancy. It will be a war of giants.

What party will win this struggle? Only to help them destroy each other. I am fully convinced that in Massachusetts the permanent downfall of the Republican party can alone secure the speediest and most lasting supremacy of the prohibition sentiment with a party organized to enact and enforce it. The Republican party, once a powerful friend, has proved a mean traitor to the principle we exalt, and all true citizens that are not hot-headed partisans know it.

These are significant words. I mean them, and the sooner our party arrays itself in deadly conflict with this party the sooner will the only obstacle to the reign of prohibition in Massachusetts be removed. So long as there is a Republican ticket to vote the prohibition partisan Republicans will vote it, I care not who is nominated, if he be Satan himself. This party is the idol of their affections. To release these souls from their idol worship in Massachusetts is nothing less than the destruction beyond hope of their pet political god.

Brothers, it is our first duty to destroy their Baal so they cannot vote his ticket. Let us then continue to magnify prohibition as the only ideal and practical method of dealing with the liquor traffic. We must destroy any and every party that stands in the way of our righteous purpose. We are not a temperance society, but a political party and all that means. The other parties mean death to their opponents.

It is boy's play if we do not carry that spirit into our campaign. With the fact in view let us make nominations today that will weaken them. Our forces are marshalling another onslaught on our political enemies in defence of a grand principle.

We must, therefore, select standard-bearers that are brave and invincible, and proclaim our battle cry without equivocation. Let us once for all declare to the prohibitionists of the other parties that they are our political enemies unless they vote our ticket.

We take no advice nor ask any quarter from them. Unconditional surrender we must have. Let us strike home, then, in dead earnest. What they cry out against us for doing, keep doing. Weaken and cripple them, until they too exalt living principles above dead selfish issues. Today we miss in the field of battle valiant and loved forms. We listen in vain for the courageous words and wise counsel of our own Judge Pitman. They have left the army militant for the army triumphant. But I adjure you to let his parting words to our party, "the part of duty is the part of honor" inspire us today with fresh courage. Let the great animating principle of his life, that "what ought to be said be said," be our hearts today for the coming struggles.

Brothers, there is hope. The day of victory dawns. It is even nearer now than our timid ones dare dream. All along the battle lines our bayonets glisten in the gleams of the rising sun of prohibition. Our leaders pass down courageous and helpful words from one end of our land to the other. Parties whose braves are under the daisies are fast disintegrating, and we can but pity the young men of Massachusetts who unwittingly pitch their tents under the hopeless shadow of their sepulchres, when such a high and heroic leadership by high heaven just as surely as the slave's struggle was to our fathers, appeals to their best manhood for settlement.

We hear the tocsin sounding and the huzzas of the invincible and advancing hosts of prohibition, and we are amazed because the young and chivalrous souls who seek an issue worth fighting, can be so intoxicated with the quaff of the low and selfish ideals that time-serving politicians put before them.

Men and brethren, let us arise and shatter the shackles that bind our friends in the other parties to such culpable inaction and apathy. Illuminate their prejudicial vision; remove the stumbling blocks so that conscience may assert its control.

We need their votes. We must have them. Now brethren, let us do wisely and well what we do today. Then return home to your fighting grounds, and make your nominations according to law. Be sure your returns to State House are in time and are correct. Select men who know how to do such things, and let us present to our fellow-citizens a complete ticket at the polls. Don't let our enemies triumph over you through your neglect to get legal nominations on our ballot. Now up and at them!

THE NEWTON CAUCUSES.

The Newton caucuses were as usual
not very largely attended, but the usual number were present, and there was not a very exciting contest in any of the wards.

There has been a good deal of dispute
in the daily papers, over the standing of the delegates, both the Crapo and the Allen papers claiming 9. The real facts are that eight of the delegates declared their preference as for Mr. Crapo and five were for Allen, with one who refused to state his preference.

Wards One, Three and Four elected
Crapo delegates, and Ward Two elected Allen delegates, with Wards Five and Seven equally divided between the two.
In Ward Six one delegate is an Allen man and the other does not state his preference.

There does not seem to have been any great feeling in any of the caucuses, and the great majority of the Crapo men profess themselves as perfectly willing to support Mr. Allen, although they personally think that Mr. Crapo is the better man for this year on account of his being better known among the voters,
and his greater experience in state and national affairs.

The claims of the Allen men that they have already a large majority of the convention is probably not so well founded as to enable them to dismiss all doubt as to the result, but they have evidently gained the lead, and it may or may not be possible for the unpledged delegates to decide the result. The great mistake made by the friends of Mr. Crapo was in thinking that the spontaneous movement
in his favor was all that was necessary to insure his nomination. That might have been the case years ago, but in these practical days it is "hustling" that succeeds in political conventions.

We should say that the reported standing of the Newton delegates as 9 to 5 in favor of Mr. Crapo represented very accurately the preference of Newton Republicans, and that Mr. Crapo was therefore much the stronger candidate.

The political situation has become critical, as far as the governorship is concerned, and Mr. Crapo's friends have called a consultation at the Parker House at noon today. A good deal of significance is attached to this conference, as among the prominent Crapo
men who are to be present are Senator Hoar, ex-Congressman Long, Gen. Draper and others of that standing, who are accustomed to have their influence count
in the councils of the Republican party.
The latest returns from the caucuses held over the state show an apparently large majority for Mr. Allen, and it looks as though Mr. Crapo's friends had begun to move after the contest had been decided. They may feel indignant at the way they have been shoved aside, but whether they will be moved to any decisive action, or decide to endure
such buffets patiently remains to be seen. Mr. Crapo is called a "chestnut,"
by Congressman Whiting, but it can not be denied that his successful rivals in every case so far have met with defeat.
They could get a nomination but an election was something very different!
Whether Mr. Allen will be any more fortunate is the problem now to be considered.

The Searles will contest is a rather peculiar one, as it is a struggle between an adopted son and a second husband,
for the millions made by the first husband. It is a nice thing for the lawyers!

There are now only eight candidates for the position of Auditor on the Republican State ticket. Meanwhile Auditor Treffry looks on with great complacency.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

SPECIAL PRIVATE CARS ELECTRIC RAIL-ROAD.

Arrangements have been completed with the Newton Street Railway Co. whereby any special theatre party desirous of attending the Park Theatre, Waltham, will be furnished with a private car upon application to Mr. F. G. L. Henderson, superintendent.
Your attention is called to another advertisement in this paper of the list of coming attractions at this Theatre.

W. D. BRADSTREET, Manager.

As Governor of Massachusetts we may reasonably expect that Mr. Allen would ever be found at his post of duty, instead of running around the state to shake hands with men who might possibly be induced to vote for him for second term. There is little doubt Mr. Allen will receive the unanimous nomination of the convention in September, and after that, the party need have no fears.—

Newton in the 6.12 train Tuesday morning

—Newton is veritably a city of distances.
One would hardly suppose that the patrol wagon had covered 263 miles since it has been in use, but such is the fact. From July 29 to Jan. 1, '91, the distance covered was 742 miles and from that time until the present, 1299 miles. In the month of May last, the hurry-up wagon rolled over 256 miles of streets between signal boxes and police headquarters. In June, 178 miles were covered. In July, 169 miles; in August, 230 miles. These figures give some idea not only of the scattered districts of the city, but testify also to the value of the patrol wagon as a method of covering the territory. The location of another hurry-up wagon on the south side would help matters and is a requirement that must be met in the near future.

—Rev. George D. Harris of La Hava, Nova Scotia, has returned from a trip to the Western States and has been again the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Willard Carter. During his visit in West Newton

he received a very kind letter from Bishop-elect Brooks, who accorded him a pleasant interview. He has been, also, courteously entertained by Rev. Frs. Hall and Torbert in Boston, by Revs. Dr. Shinn and Mattison in this city and by Rev. Mr. Cummingham of Waltham. He has officiated at Grace church and at the Church of the Messiah and also at private residences.
He was visited while here by a large number of his old parishioners and friends
from the Provinces, and his stay among us has been a great pleasure to the many who have made his acquaintance. The Re-
Monday morning, expecting to arrive at La
Have on Thursday.

—J. C. McIntyre had an unpleasant experience with the colored gateman at the Walnut street crossing Wednesday afternoon while trying to cross the tracks and was roughly handled. The gateman used his flag stick quite freely and Mr. McIntyre received a blow in the back of the head which laid open a cut extending along the scalp. His injuries, however, were not serious. When he first started across the tracks he was grabbed by the flagman and the latter in the struggle which ensued was twice thrown down. Mr. McIntyre made no attempt to strike the gateman, maintaining his temper even under the provocation of the blows from the stick. He may not have been justified in crossing the tracks as there was a train at the station almost under way, but the right of the gateman to use his stick over a man's head is questioned by those who witnessed the affair.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. Q. Cole, Mr. Henry N. Baker and the Misses Baker were on the river last Friday evening in a fairly substantial boat and it proved a most fortunate circumstance for two young ladies who attempted to change seats in a canoe and were capsized near the boat house. The young ladies went down in deep water about 40 feet from the boat occupied by Mr. Cole and party and were rescued by Messrs. Cole and Baker after they had gone down the river. The girls were dragged out of the water sufficiently to enable them to grab the gunwales of the canoe on either side and were then towed ashore. They were cured for upon reaching terra firma and were not much the worse for their unexpected bath aside from the temporary unpleasantness of wet apparel. Both girls were of course badly frightened and fully appreciated the efforts of the rescuing party in saving their lives. They would not, however, give their names. After thinking the matter over Saturday and Sunday, Mr. Baker resolved upon a joke at the expense of Mr. Cole. In pursuance of his scheme he induced a gentleman named Teale to forget for a time that he was in the insurance business and for the nonce to take on the duties of a reporter for the purpose of interviewing Mr. Cole concerning the accident. Mr. Teale, as a reporter, secured about a column of facts for publication, he said, in Boston daily paper, but Mr. Cole has been vainly looking for an account which was to be written up in the highest style of the art reportorial. The mystery was explained a day or two ago when Mr. Cole dined with Mr. Baker and was introduced to the latter's friend and assistant practical joker, Mr. Teale.

Visitors to Boston this month should see the collection of unique pieces of furniture from all parts of the world, on exhibition at Paine's Furniture Warehouses, 35 Canal street, Boston, opposite Boston & Maine depot. —Work has been commenced on the alterations to be made in the postoffice. An entirely new postoffice outfit is to be put in and the interior of the office room and lobby is to be thoroughly repaired and painted. The work is being done by Mr. Soule.

—The list of letters remaining at the post office this week without claimants are as follows: Mr. Wm. H. Deas, Miss Bridget O'Donoghue, Miss Anne Lyman, Mrs. F. H. Metcalf, Mrs. Daniel L. McDonald, Mrs. Mary McGinn, Michael J. Morgan, Mr. John Perdut, Arthur C. Nicholson, H. A. Tucker.

—Mr. John G. Woolley, the temperance evangelist, will give an address at the Congregational church on Sunday morning at 10:30, and also at 7:30 p. m. He speaks before the Christian Endeavor Society at the W. C. T. U. The meetings are union meetings and all are invited.

—Mrs. T. C. Keener and her daughter, Mrs. Fannie Keener-Cooper and son, all of St. Louis, spent a few days this week visiting Mr. and Mrs. George E. Johnson. Mr.

Keener was formerly in business with Mr. Johnson in St. Louis some 16 years ago, and the brief visit which Mrs. Keener made was a very enjoyable one.

—Rev. T. W. Bishop of the Methodist church will return from his yachting vacation on Saturday, much benefited by his outing, and will preach Sunday morning at the Working Church, and will conduct the praise and prayer service in the evening.

—Howard, the son of Mr. George Bourne, ran the prongs of a clamrake in his foot while camping at Quisset, inflicting serious wounds. A surgeon, fortunately stopping at the Quisset Hotel was sent for who attended the case faithfully and with great success. The boy is now doing well at home.

—At the Congregational church on Sunday the pastor, Rev. Mr. Cutler, resumed his work after a month's vacation. Miss Kate Plummer was in her place at the organ. Mrs. Isabella Parker has played in her absence. Mr. Ashenden's welcome voice was heard in the song "There is a Green Hill Far Away."

—On Wednesday afternoon and evening a reception was held for Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Hume, missionaries from Bombay, at the house of Rev. Dr. Strong. Interesting addresses were listened to from both Dr. and Mrs. Hume, and a sociable evening and excellent entertainment was enjoyed by a large number of persons belonging to the Congregational parish.

—At the Church of the Messiah last Sunday evening, Rev. G. D. Harris of La Have, N. S., delivered a sermon, taking for his text, "Necessities of works in Christian life." A liberal collection was taken to aid Mr. Harris in the work of building a church now in process of construction in connection with his own parish in La Have.

—The Methodist church people are happy again in the return of their pastor, Rev. T. W. Bishop, from his vacation, who will enter upon his usual duties on Sunday next. His many friends in the Newtons will be welcome at any of the services. The Amphion quartet and the chorus of good singers under the direction of Prof. J. Walter Davis will render the musical services as they did last year so acceptably, and it is expected that this part of the worship will be most helpful and inspiring.

—As one of the young men of Auburndale was walking down Woodland avenue at about 8 o'clock last Friday evening, he noticed a young fellow shadowing him and thinking to scare him dodged behind a bush in the yard of the house to which he was going. This ruse was successful for a moment in the street starting off toward the Auburn street bridge in a hurry. On his way he alarmed a well known depot attache and both hurried to the depot and went up to Mr. Brush's store where the latter was on the street corner was vigorously pounded the boys calling for the police. The scare was probably of the sensational Almy kind. Officer Hays was called and a baloo and going up to the house indicated to capture the murderous villain portrayed to him, found the young man had come to the house where his sister was spending the evening to escort her home.

—Mr. John Rogers died in Auburndale Sunday, aged 55 years, after a illness of several years. He was for many years cashier of the iron firm of Naylor & Co., but retired from the position some years since. Mr. Rogers was a man of cultivated taste, distinguished in his personal appearance and greatly beloved by a wide circle of friends. He was one of the original members of the Apollo Club and was rarely absent from their rehearsals or concerts, only retiring from the club last year. He had been identified with several other organizations, among them the Handel and Haydn Society and the Cecilia. He has sung in several church choirs, and was a member of the Trinity church. Mr. Rogers was born in Newburyport, Mass., and belonged to a family distinguished in the annals of New England, and which he was habitually speaking, the head, and which furnished in the early generation many notable clergymen and merchants. Mrs. Rogers will remain in her house on Central street with relatives.

—The Newton Boat Club has completed arrangements for a series of promenade concerts which are announced for Saturday evenings in September. The series were initiated at the clubhouse, Riverside, Saturday evening, and attracted a fashionable company of ladies and gentlemen, notwithstanding unpleasant weather conditions. Music was furnished by Messrs. Brooks and orchestra of the American Watch Company band of Waltham, and dancing was enjoyed from 8 until 10 o'clock, about 40 couples participating. The series promises to be as successful as that of the month of June, which was attended by prominent society people of the Newtons and surrounding suburbs. The recent improvements in the clubhouse gives additional floor room and accommodations. A new apartment has been constructed in the south wing, which opens into the large promenade hall. The interior decoration of the new room is very tasteful, and it has been appropriately furnished. The committee in charge of the September concerts comprises Messrs. W. A. Hall, Sydney Harwood and Morton E. Cobb.

—Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, wife of President Harrison, together with Mr. and Mrs. McKee and Baby McKee, have arranged to come to the Woodland Park Hotel, next Saturday, and every preparation has been made by Mr. Lee, the proprietor of this popular hostelry, to receive them. Mrs. Harrison and the McKees expect to spend about six weeks at the Woodland Park, or until the renovation of the White House at Washington is completed. It is probably that Mr. and Mrs. McKee and Baby McKee will spend the winter in this city. A suite of four rooms has been engaged, and a private dining-room and private parlors will be placed at their disposal. The apartments prepared for their occupancy are among the best the house affords, and face Washington street, where a fine view of the surrounding country scenery is visible. The President is not expected to accompany them, but he will probably pay a short visit to the hotel before the party leaves. Mrs. Harrison was expected to arrive Tuesday evening and a large crowd gathered to witness her arrival, but were disappointed. Mr. Lee has made no special preparations for their entertainment as they prefer to remain as quiet as possible during their sojourn in this city. The dining-room and the other apartments which they will occupy have been finely arranged for their use and Mr. Lee is to be congratulated in having these distinguished personages among his list of guests.

Two Quick for Him.

The only man who ever was too quick for Joe Dye, the bad man of Ventura, was Petroleum Scott, the old Ventura oil man, a tall, wiry, nervous chap, who would be the terror of stenographers if he were a public speaker. Phillips Brooks is a leisurely drawer compared to Scott. Scott and Dye had a legal contest over an oil claim on the Sespe, and while the case was pending, Scott prudently avoided discussing it with Joe, whose temper and trigger finger were notoriously quick and apt to act in concert.

One day Scott and Dye met in Santa Paula and, sitting down at a table together, chatted about things in general. Scott carefully abstained from talking about oil claims, but Joe finally broached the subject and made some statement about the records that was not correct. This is the way Scott tells the story: "Without thinking, I said, 'Joe, you're a liar,' and as soon as the words were out of my mouth he yanked his revolver and stuck it under my nose. But I was too quick for him. I took it all back before he could shoot."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Curious Palm of South America.

One of the most curious palms in the world is called the "Ita," and is very abundant on the banks of the Amazon, Rio Negro and Orinoco rivers. In the delta of the latter it occupies swampy tracks, which are at times completely inundated and present the appearance of forests rising out of the water. The swamps are inhabited by a tribe of Indians called Guaranes, who subsist almost entirely upon the produce of the tree. During the annual floods they suspend their houses from tops of the tall stems of the palms. The outer skin of the young leaves is made into cords for hammocks, and the soft inner bark yields a nutritious farinaceous substance.—Interview in Washington Star.

Piper Legends.

The Wends, who, we believe, are the ancestors of the modern Prussians, are the center of many legends. The Pied Piper of Hamelin was a Wend; so also was the piper of the Hartz mountains, who appeared so many days a year, and played unearthly tunes, and whose heard at once fell into a frenzy, from which there was no escaping. All these pied and weird pipers assembled once a year at the Brocken, where there was a general carnival, the Arch Fiend leading the concert on a violin, witches rolling around and fiddling on the skulls of horses, and the pipers adding the concert of their unholy instruments.—Chamber's Journal.

—The story in the Boston Record of last week about the birth of a "Gipsy King" in Newton woods was a bad sell on the papers. A boy baby came to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McNeal who are camped in the woods near Beacon street. The mother says there is nothing in the story about its being in the line of kings and she is much disturbed by the untruthful story published.
—An ordination service was held on Wednesday evening at the Baptist church to ordain Henry W. Pinkham, a recent graduate of the Newton Theological Institution. Rev. Lemuel C. Barnes presided and the invocation and scripture reading was by Rev. George E. Merrill of Newton. The proceedings of the church authorizing the ordination was read by the clerk of the church, Mr. F. Pinkham, father of the candidate, followed by the right hand of fellowship by Prof. George Bullen, D. D. The attendance was large.
—Emerson B. Pettit died suddenly on Tuesday at his home in this place. He was in Boston, Saturday, attending to his business interests and in his usual health. Monday he was not feeling very well, but anticipated nothing serious, and the end came very suddenly. Mr. Pettit was born near Tillsonboro, Canada, where his mother is still living. His father died about a year ago. He was educated for the ministry and graduated from the Toronto University, but his natural tastes led him into a business life. He was a member of the firm of Emerson P. Pettit & Co., which has for several years done a large real estate and insurance business in Boston, with an office in the Traveller building. He has been living in Newton Centre at the home of W. A. Dole, formerly of the firm of Whitridge & Dole, shoe manufacturers at Lynn. He was to have been married this fall to Mr. Dole's daughter.

—The festival and picnic arranged by the Newton Centre Catholic church for Labor day, to be held on the grounds of the Working Boys' Industrial Home at Oak Hill, was prevented by the heavy rain. Arrangements had been made, however, for stormy weather by engaging the two halls in Associated block, and the arrangement was made known to the parish by Rev. Fr. Wholey at the Sunday service. The large hall was cleared for dancing and Barrett's Brookline orchestra furnished music from 2 o'clock till midnight, and large numbers to the hall until the rain ceased. At the end of the large hall were tables of confectionery, fruit and ice cream, under the supervision of the ladies' committee of 30, of which Miss Katie Lanchan was chairman. In the small hall was a rifle gallery and a puppet target made by one of the young men who attended it. A large proportion of the afternoon attendants were children, who left early in the evening, leaving the halls to the older persons. The event of the evening was the blackthorn contest, and the award of the prize after the close of the contest of the past by Rev. Father Wholey. The cane is a handsome stick, with an oxidized silver top. It was presented to the church to be voted upon by Mr. Edward Cassidy, who had carried it for a quarter of a century. His father carried it for 50 years and the stick was grown on the estate of Mr. Cassidy's grandfather in Ireland and is nearly 100 years old. It was won by Mr. Dennis Foley, who received 2562 votes, the other contestants, Messrs. James Vealey and Andrew Desmond receiving 1224 and 1199 votes respectively. The cane will be suitably engraved for the present owner. The festivities were continued until 12 o'clock, and the society have added a handsome sum to their fund to be used in paying for their new church now in process of construction on Centre street. The tickets sold numbered 800 for the day. The members of the committee were as follows: Dancing committee, T. W. Miller, P. Linnehan, D. F. Flanagan, J. B. Keelander, Wm. Carey, Geo. Sullivan, Wm. Butler, P. Hurley, John Dwyer, P. Niles, John Reardon; sporting, John Foley, Jacob King, D. J. Linnehan, Eugene Clifford, P. Scully, Frank Hurley, Michael Pendergast, Thomas King; gate, Daniel Hurley, John McCarty, James Vealey, Wm. Connell, Martin Greelish. The cane brought to the festival $800. Mr. Foley has been a resident of this place 38 years and his popularity is quite apparent from the large vote he received.

3 cups of flour, 1 tablespoonful of butter, 1/2 teaspoonful of salt, 2 cups of milk, 4 eggs whites and yolks beaten separately, 1 heaping teaspoonful of Cleveland's baking powder.
Sift flour, baking powder and salt together twice, chop in the butter. Stir the beaten yolks into the milk and add the flour, then the frothed whites. Whip high and light and bake in cups in a quick oven.
Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that.
Hot biscuit made with Cleveland's baking powder may be enjoyed even by those of weak digestion. Cleveland's is the anti-dyspeptic leavening agent. The leaven comes from cream of tartar and soda, nothing else; no ammonia or alum.

A trouble with many enterprises started, is that they produce nothing, they rest upon no useful thing. The No-Seam Stocking Company, offers all of the elements of business—Industrial, Commercial, Financial. Founded upon a scheme of patents, which amounts to patented security, and this again upon a greatly improved method in the production and supply of an old and most universal need—the stocking—the undertaking will easily rank among the most profitable of all sure business.
No seam, no garter, not a rip or wrinkle, not a thing of nonsense or humbug about it. "It fits like the skin—you can't kick it off—you'd never know 'twas on." Re-enforced at the heel, toe and knee, and lightened under the joints to avoid chafing. It is durable, comfortable and healthful. Every other stocking is made in pieces and of pieces. Here a thread passes into the machine and comes out a stocking substantially ready for use—amply fashioned in the process, with a genius and skill never before imparted to machinery, and all more quickly done, than any set of knitted pieces can be wrought into the similar garment, they were designed to compose. This is the unique stocking for Bicycle Riders and Sportsmen.

—The residents of the town of Needham are to be congratulated upon the fact that they are to have a Catholic church. The land is centrally located on the corner of May street and Railroad avenue and contains about 27,000 square feet and cost $2500. Father T. J. Danahy, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church of this city, has charge of Needham, and has been indefatigable in furthering the interests of his parishioners there, taking the initiative in this matter. He has contracted with Hurley & Fallick of this city to erect a stone basement with brick underpinning 48x10 feet, and a wooden structure at a cost of about $15,000. The basement is to be finished seven feet in the clear, and will seat 300 people. The main portion of the structure is to be of Gothic style, and a spire 100 feet high with room for a chime of bells, the church to contain a choir loft and a gallery seating 100. The finish will be of ash.

—The men in the Elmwood street sewer had a narrow escape, Monday. Four buckets were in use and when they were hauling up full, the fastenings gave way
and all four fell back into the ditch, but though there were some narrow escapes.

—The officers of the Social Science Club

the chapel of Eliot church, at four o'clock
of the afternoon of Thursday, Sept. 24th, conference with regard to their duty towards the public schools. Gentlemen are also urgently requested to attend.

—With the President's family at the Woodland Park Hotel, and Baby McKee not left out, it would seem that Newton is
"in it" for a season. Should the President visit them we would suggest that the members of the Reform Club get up an old-fashioned lyeum at City Hall and have a discussion on the tariff. Perhaps the President would like to attend. Saturday Gazette.

—The Watertown Enterprise says that the whisper in regard to the intentions of the Newton Street Railway Company to build an electric railway from Watertown
to Waltham, via Main street, if permission can be secured, has become more than a whisper, and we are glad to state that it is a fact that a majority of the directors of the company are in favor of building the line, and that there is some prospect that an application will be made, and active steps taken at an early date.

—The residence of Mr. Isaac D. Allen, 350 Centre street, was the scene of a quiet wedding Tuesday evening, the contracting parties being Mrs. Annie L. Allen, his daughter, and Mr. Charles M. Howell of Watertown.
The wedding was a very quiet one, because of the illness of the bride's mother. The rooms were tastefully trimmed with vines
and cut flowers, and the mantels were banked with flowers and evergreen. Rev.
Wolcott Calkins, D. D., officiated, the couple standing in an alcove framed by palms and potted plants. On their return from a wedding trip they will reside in Watertown.

—One of the summer visitors to the mountains tells a very amusing story of the bright two year old son of the post mistress
of the rural resort where they were stopping. A grave doctor of divinity was in the party that walked down after their stay.
The boy gave it promptly, but when the reverend gentleman repeated the question
the next morning, the little fellow was evidently surprised and piped out, "I Baker, just the same," to the great amusement of the party, who made quite a hero
of the small boy and his bright answers.

—The death of Mr. Henry D. Bassett
last Friday afternoon was a great surprise
to every one, as few knew that he was ill,
and even his family did not anticipate such a sudden end of the illness from which he had been suffering for some weeks. He was one of the older residents of Newton
and had many warm friends, who esteemed him for his high character and genial manners. He was born in Middleboro and was 74 years of age. For the past ten years he had suffered from a loss of sight, but the devotion of his wife and daughters seemed to compensate for this affliction, and he was always cheerful, and fond of seeing his friends. He was a prominent member of the Eliot church, where he was a regular attendant. Before his loss of sight he was a member of the firm of Doggett, Bassett & Hill, one of the largest wholesale boot and shoe concerns in the country. He leaves a wife and three daughters. The funeral was held on Tuesday, at his late residence, and Rev. Dr. Calkins officiated. The interment was in the Newton Cemetery.

—Mr. C. Philip Smith, the celebrated young china decorator of New York, has arrived in the city and is visiting his uncle, Geo. W. Crosby of Eldridge street. He was just returned from a fourteen weeks sojourn in Buffalo, N. Y., where he was wonderfully well received by press and public, the press declaring his work to be superior to any ever seen in this country.
He was the guest of several well known Buffalo families, and on his return was entertained at Syracuse for a week by Alonso C. Yates at "Renswick Castle." Mr. Smith reopened his N. Y. studio about Oct. 1st.
Among his many pupils he has numbered
Mme. Gonzalez, wife of ex-Pres. of Mexico.

Mr. Smith's studio is noted as being one of the finest in decorations in N. Y., and contains many valuable antiques. His work is of an entirely different character than that of his relative, Mrs. H. A. Crosby.
Mr. Smith was a resident of Newton for nine years, attended school here, and will always be remembered for his sweet singing at the Unitarian church.

—An entertainment of a rare character
was afforded a large crowd on Brook street Sunday afternoon. A mason entered one of the sewer manholes about 3 o'clock and pipe to do some repairing. When he entered the manhole he was evidently well loaded with intoxicants, for inquiries as to his whereabouts later led to the conclusion that he had not returned from his journey underground. Contractor Killian was sent for and upon his arrival volunteers were called for to enter the sewer pipe and ascertain where the missing man was, but volunteers were not forthcoming. Contractor Killian finally offered a $10 bill to the man who would venture into the sewer and find "Puddler" Tim Kinchla. It had the desired effect, and a clothesline was fastened about the waist of a volunteer and he descended the manhole. Crawling into the pipe for 30 feet he encountered the feet of "Puddler Tim," and getting a strong hold upon the latter's ankles, after endeavoring in vain to awake him, gave the signal to "pull away." After being pulled several feet in this manner, Tim woke up,
and instead of aiding his rescuer commenced crawling the other way. This prevented progress in the right direction, and the line being tight about his feet, he was finally drawn to the surface covered with slime and mud.

THE APPROACHING FETE.

THE LADIES ARE BEGINNING TO TALK ABOUT IT.

NEWTONVILLE, Sept. 14, 1891.

MY DEAR JEAN:—

Here we are, safe at home again, from our four month's cruising and you can imagine how surprised we are to find there have been some busy people here while we have been idling; foremost of whom are the Italians, who have been hard at work
these summer days, laying the pipes for sewers in our principal thoroughfares.
No right minded citizen would object to the disturbance such work is making if they were acquainted with the unthought
of nuisances such excavations were unearthing.

The builders, too, have almost revised
our city—such lovely new houses and so many of them in every direction.

And, do you know the new Club house
of which you have heard so much, is actually under way, in fact the foundation is almost completed and it looks as if we really were to have as fine a house as the plans have represented. What is still better, we the girls are to have our department. We could not allow anything else in Newton, for you know ladies change the whole character of the so-called "clubs."

It seems, too, we are to furnish our rooms
to suit ourselves, and in order to have our own way we are going to raise our own funds. In June the governing committee invited a number of ladies from each ward
to attend a meeting in the Club house parlors, at which meeting they asked the ladies to take the furnishing of these rooms into consideration, which they did,
and appointed officers to conduct a fete of three hundred members, which was to be table, and aside from that they were to solicit from the wives of members as liberal
a donation as possible and they have met with great success.

Every lady at all interested is hard at work and you should see the needles flying and the dainty pieces of manufacture some have shown me. The work has only just begun, for there are numerous attractions
to be brought out besides the fancy tables,
and each ward is going to see which can suggest the most attractive feature. There is work enough to keep each one of the three hundred members busy for weeks, even if all work with the vim my friends are working.
We realize if we do not accept and use
what privileges they give us we are blind
to our own interests, and for one hope
we can make the fete an unheard-of success, and that can be done only by the cooperation of every one connected with the club. Will you not come to the fete some evening and have a social time? I intend to send a ticket with my card to every friend I think liberal enough to deserve such a favor, you see how I regard them. After the fete comes Thanksgiving, then Christmas, so, early in the New Year
you may hear from me again.

Yours, till then,
MARTORIE DAW.

RECEIVED BY MRS. HARRISON.

MANY GUESTS OF THE WOODLAND PARK
GREET THE FIRST LADY IN THE LAND.

The members of President Harrison's family made their first public appearance in Newton in the handsome blue parlor of the Woodland Park Hotel last evening,
upon the occasion of an informal reception.
It was just 6 o'clock when Mrs. Harrison, leaning upon the arm of Chief Justice Walbridge A. Field, entered the reception room, accompanied by Mrs. McKee, who was escorted by Mr. E. W. Pratt. Mr.
McKee and Mrs. Joseph Lee, the hostess of the Woodland Park, were escorted by Mr. L. O. Whitney to their places in the reception room. Mrs. Lee introduced the guests of the hotel to Chief Justice Field,
by whom they were formally presented to the Harrison party. The ushers were Mr.
Irving G. Whitney and Mr. Elliott W.
Pratt.

Mrs. Harrison was becomingly gowned in a black brocade, with garnet and coral trimmings, and Mrs. McKee looked regal in a steel gray satin chadamas with silver jewel trimmings.

Mrs. Lee wore a black and jet costume with diamond ornaments.

After the reception, which lasted until 7 o'clock, Mrs. Harrison and the McKees returned to their private apartments to get in readiness to attend the Waltham river carnival committee and Mayor Mayberry, representing the city of Waltham.
The invitation was also extended to the guests of the Woodland Park, many of whom accompanied the Harrison party.

Carnival Notes.

The Newton Street Railroad carried some 8000 people to the carnival last night, and had every car in use, but even then they could not carry all who desired to go. The road was troubled by the complete blockade of Moody street at the bridge, and at the Fitchburg railroad crossing, but the company did well under all the difficulties.
Some cars carried 141 passengers at once.
When the travel home began, eight heavily laden cars were sent out at once, and others followed as fast as possible.

Bacon-Smallwood.

The wedding of Miss Fanny Lincoln
Smallwood, granddaughter of the late
Hon. Wm. Jackson, and Mr. Herbert
Manning Bacon, son of the late Rev.
James Bacon of Littleton, Mass., took place at the Jackson homestead on Thursday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wolcott Calkins, in the presence of about 75 relatives of the contracting parties, and a reception followed which was attended by several hundred guests from the Newtons and surrounding places. The guests were received by Miss Caroline Jackson, aunt of the bride, and by Mr. Edwin A. Smallwood, her father. Miss Louise Jackson Fillebrown was maid of honor, and Mr.
Edwin F. Smallwood best man. The ushers were Messrs. Walter M. Jackson and Chas. D. Kepner of Newton, Howard Jackson of Brookline and Wm. V. Higgins of Boston. The bride wore a handsome gown of white faille Francaise, cut in princess style, and her maid of honor wore pink crepe de chine. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers
and the grounds illuminated with chinese lanterns. As the bride belongs to one of Newton's oldest families, her circle of relatives and friends is very extensive,
and the reception was one of the largest ever held in Newton. The fine old homestead, which has been in the possession of the Jackson family since the early days of Newton, is admirably adapted to social occasions, and with its fine grounds presented a very extensive appearance, with the many lights and illuminations. The house has been the scene of many interesting social events,
which were recalled to many of the older guests, who remembered other brilliant assemblies of a similar nature. Mr.
and Mrs. Bacon left on the Fitchburg tour, and on their return will reside on Fairview street, where a new house has just been completed for their occupancy.
They will be at home on Thursdays,
Nov. 12th and 19th.

Howell-Allen.

The residence of Isaac D. Allen of Centre street was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday of this week. The contracting parties were Miss Annie L.
daughter of Mr. Allen, and Mr. Charles M.
Howell. The wedding was very quiet owing to the illness of the bride's mother.
The presents were numerous and elegant.
After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served by Paxton. At a late hour the happy couple departed on a short tour
after which they will reside in Watertown.

Y. M. C. A.

The evangelistic meetings being conducted by Rev. C. H. Yattman, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, have been increasing in interest and attendance since the opening, Monday evening.

Those who attend find in Mr. Yattman an energetic, vigorous, straightforward man,
preaching the simple gospel of Jesus Christ
as the Saviour of the world.

One cannot help seeing, as he listens,
that this man is in deadly earnest, not to magnify himself, not to create a sensation,
not to lead large numbers to simply profess Christ, but to so bring Jesus to the hearts and souls of those who know him not, that they may repent of and forsake their sins,
accept salvation and live unto righteousness.

His face, his eyes, his very gestures abound with Christian love for the unsaved, while by his words he just leads them to see Jesus and leaves them in His care.

The evening services, which are purely men's meetings, have been largely attended and much good accomplished.

The four o'clock Bible talks are exceedingly interesting and although the majority of attendants have been women, it is expected as the work becomes more generally known that many more of our business men will make it convenient to be present.

Not the least attractive feature of these meetings by any means, is the singing of Mrs. Kress, "the preacher's wife."

Her voice is a sweet, clear soprano, her enunciation perfect and her expression wonderfully touching and sympathetic. As she sings, mostly without instrumental accompaniment, the effect is most pleasing and shows the qualities of her voice to excellent advantage. That the services of these workers for Christ are in demand is very exclusively shown by the coming of delegations from Worcester, Watertown, Brookton and other associations to hear and to invite them to their fields, while invitations for Sunday preaching service from the other Newtons, and from Watertown,
where all the churches desire to unite for the evening service, are so numerous as to be almost confusing.

Mr. Yattman, however, refers all comers
to the Devotional Committee of the association, under whose auspices he came, and coinciding with them that it is unwise to attempt to spread out over the surrounding territory; the following program of Sunday services has been arranged, the several pastors and churches gladly co-operating.

Sunday morning at 10.30 Mr. Yattman will preach at the Methodist church; at 3 o'clock will address a meeting composed of boys between the ages of 10 and 16, in the Y. M. C. A.
hall, Bacon's block, and at 4 o'clock will conduct a men's mass meeting in Eliot Hall, giving his famous address, "Sowing Wild Oats."

This 4 o'clock meeting is for men only,
Mrs. Kress being present at the opening to assist with the singing.

If Mrs. Kress' health will permit, she will then conduct a Woman's Meeting in the Y. M. C. A. Hall at 4.30.

At 4.30 a union young people's meeting will be held in the Baptist church, which Mr. Yattman will address, and at 7.30 he will preach in the Eliot church.

The order of services for next week will be announced Sunday.

Newton Associated Charities.

A conference of visitors and a directors' meeting were held at the Central Office, on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 10.
The discussion among the directors present was chiefly upon the subject of the Employment Bureau, which it is hoped will soon be established in working order. Mary H. Martin, Acting Sec'y.

Holland Bulbs.

In another column will be found an advertisement from the well known firm of Joseph Breck & Son, of 31, 52 and 53 North Market street, who offer a fine assortment of Holland bulbs and plants for winter flowering. Their catalogue will be mailed on application, and orders can be sent by mail. See adv.

New Dress Goods

Just received at the Central Dry Goods Store, Waltham. A fine assortment of the best goods at right prices. The electric cars pass the door.

After having been referred to the committee on claims the vote was reconsidered and the protest was filed.

On motion of Alderman Hyde John L. Twigg of Newton Highlands was granted a sixth class liquor license.

NEW BUILDINGS.

Simon A. White of the Newt Carpet Cleaning Company, asked for license to build an addition on Clinton street for storage and carriage room. Michael A. ## NONANTUM HOUSE.

A message was received from the common council, stating that they had unanimously refused to concur in accepting the offer of H. W. Wellington of a lot for the new house.

An order was sent up that the house be located on land of the city.

Alderman Sheppard said the school house being directly opposite this lot was a decided objection to that location. There was another lot below that was more desirable in every way, and he thought many of the residents would subscribe to help pay for it. The lot was below the corner of Chapel street.

Alderman Harbach said he was opposed to buying any lot, when the city has one of its own that would answer.

Alderman Hyde said he disliked intruding his own business, but he was to sell at auction a number of lots in that vicinity, in about three weeks and the city would have a chance to bid for one.

Mayor Hibbard said the people of Nonantum wanted the house located in their locality, and they thought if it was placed on the Wellington lot, it would be in Newtonville instead of Nonantum.

The order to have the house located on the police station lot was then defeated.

After an executive session of a few minutes the board adjourned.

The Common Council.

The common council was called to order by President George A. Mead at 7:05 o'clock, and the councilmen present were as follows: Ward 1, Councilman Forknall; Ward 2, Councilman Churchill; Ward 3, Councilmen Dutch and Merchant; Ward 4, Councilmen Johnson and Sprague; Ward 5, Councilman Moulton; Ward 6, Councilmen Roffe and Richardson; Ward 7, Councilmen Bothfield and Weed.

An order appropriating $750 for two new horses was received from the board of aldermen and passed in concurrence after an explanation from Councilman Richardson that the horses were to be used on the new chemical B. at Newton Highlands.

An order accepting the offer of a lot of land by H. W. Wellington of the Silver Lake Co. for the location of a new house at Nonantum was opposed by Councilman Forknall, who moved to non-concur. In explanation Mr. Forknall said the location indicated in the order was not in Nonantum but in Newtonville, and that the public were very much averse to its location in that place. The old police station lot was much more satisfactory to the people, as it was more centrally located, although not so much so as could be desired. If the Nonantum Worst Company could offer a lot of their land near the centre of Nonantum the location would be preferable.

The council non-concurred.

Petitions were received for sidewalks on Columbus, Chester and Forest streets.

A petition from Judge R. R. Bishop and others for an incandescent electric light on Grant avenue near the intersection of Grey cliff road was referred.

Councilman Forknall then offered an order that when the house located in the lot indicated in the order was completed that it be located on the city lot corner of Bridge and Watertown streets.

Councilman Bothfield thought such a question should be decided by the public property committee.

Mr. Forknall said the public property committee were not in order and he presented and they were favorable to it. He further stated in explanation that the order was presented only because two locations were under discussion.

A petition for sidewalk on Paul street was referred.

Other concurrent business was done.

Early September in Northfield.

Written for the Graphic.

Bright skies following a week of torrid heat, cloud, gloom and rain, seemed the waited-for opportunity to make a long anticipated visit to the now famous town of Northfield. So, taking my "grip" and my better nineteen twentieths (I believe, from wide observation, that is about the general proportion of value) I left Boston in a Fitchburg train on this western pilgrimage. After a ride of a hundred miles, we left our train at Miller's Falls and there, as patiently as possible, we made the often wait of half an hour before we took the Vermont Central for a nine miles journey to the objective point of our visit.

As we stepped from the cars at Northfield, we were met by our friend F. S. Bemis, Esq., (his eighty years have utterly failed to make him old) and his daughter, at whose home we were to be guests during our stay. As our time was limited to less than a week, we found these kind friends had laid out a program, full to the brim, for our sight-seeing and entertainment. Here we were in the far-famed country town of Northfield, now rendered famous by Dwight L. Moody, the preacher, the evangelist and the Christian promoter of good in act and word, whose life-work must cause the angels to sing with joy, so joyful had been the life of rest and joy.

Who, through his labors have found hope and peace and the higher life. The kind Father has blessed his work and enabled him to build a living monument whose influence will last through the coming ages.

Northfield is old and restful, picturesque and lovely beyond the power of words to adequately describe. Up the Connecticut River valley a hundred miles on the east shore lies the village of Northfield stretching for miles along the banks of the gently sloping ridge.

In the early days of the town the main street was laid out ten rods wide, with village lots extending a long way back. In the middle of this ample driveway, then a wide, grassy space on either side through which run two rows of noble trees, and a people whose wide-spreading branches meeting overhead form an archway that would delight an artist's soul, and beyond these the sidewalk.

This wide avenue is lined with solidly built, old-time houses that tell of abundance and comfort in the past and no lack in the present.

A few of these houses have been remodelled and a few modern houses built, but even these fail to break the somnolent feeling of the place. It still speaks of comfort and rest and peace.

Northfield is surrounded by ranges of hills high enough to be called mountains and low enough to be called hills. The village is the highest part of the ridge on which the village is built, the view on every side, near and far away, are very fine. North, east and south the mountains rise in graceful lines, and far to the west the mountains, out the distant sky, while between at our very feet the broad Connecticut valley moves through the beauty of the morning.

At the northern end of the village, on the main street, lives Mr. Moody in a comfortable, unpretentious house close by his birthplace and his boyhood home. In this pleasant old farm house his aged mother still lives. Here only a short distance from his boyhood and manhood home he has founded a school for girls to which come pupils from every part of the country. Its success has been phenomenal.

Three miles away, across the Connecticut river on the site of the old Nonantum, he has founded a school for boys which is proving as successful as the other. Each has accommodations for about three hundred pupils. Both schools are beautifully situated on high ground commanding wide and lovely views. In these schools the moral and religious elements form an important part of the education.

Too much praise cannot be accorded Mr. Moody for the magnificent success that has followed his labors to establish these schools.

People cannot comprehend the magnitude of this work and the grand results that are following except they go there and make personal observations. Well may he feel satisfied with the success thus far and the grand promise for the future. Never till I stood on the spot had I half understood the magnificent scope of the work. And this is only a part of the grand work he has accomplished in the years that are past—work for the upbuilding of the cause nearest his heart.

On the Sabbath I attended church and listened to an excellent sermon by Mr. Moody, on "Repentance." The music was very fine. Choir and congregation together, then the choir alone with the chorus sang by the one hundred and fifty students from the boy's school.

Mr. Ira D. Sankey sang "When the Mists have Rolled Away," with all the effectiveness of years ago. His voice is rich and melodious and it is a delight to listen to it. I remember hearing him sing in the Coliseum, "The Ninety and Nine," and the impression then made has never passed away. It seems to me his voice is as pure and powerful as then.

Miss Mary C. Fox sang several hymns to the delight of every one. She has a magnificent voice under perfect control and filled the church with exquisite music.

Prof. D. B. Towner and Prof. Stebbins also sang fine selections. It was a musical treat to the audience.

There was a meeting in the afternoon at the boy's school on Mt. Hermon at which addresses were made by Mr. Moody, the Earl of Aberdeen and Lady Aberdeen. The speech made by the Earl was more an informal talk telling of his meeting and attending services held by Mr. Moody in London many years ago, and the impression made upon him by the sermon.

It was a plain, interesting talk by a modest appearing gentleman and thoroughly appreciated by the audience. If the Earl is a fair representative of the British nobility the Americans will soon learn to admire them as highly as the English people.

A visit to the farm where was the address made by Lady Aberdeen. As she stood before the audience, tall, exquisite form, fine face, bright sparkling eyes, the embodiment of womanhood, speaking slowly and distinctly, every eye was turned upon her as she frankly said her thoughts were not with them but with her own home across the water.

And as she repeated the story she told her little son, at his request, a few evenings before she was to bid him good-bye for many months absence, every heart was moved in sympathy and every soul deeply stirred.

Her noble womanly grace, her bright intellectual powers, and her winning ways won the heart and the admiration of the audience. The day had been full of delight and will long be remembered.

In riding around the town evidences of glacial action were numerous. Occasionally the rounded ledges showed the striated markings made when the powerful planing machine—the glaciers—moved southward on its way to the warmer clime and the sea. On both sides of the Connecticut the river terraces are plain to be seen. This town marks the northern limit of the narrow belt of Triassic formation. This extends from New Haven on Long Island Sound to New Hampshire line, a distance of one hundred and ten miles. The average width is about twenty miles. The Connecticut River sandstone, the red sandstone, the brownstone, the free-stone, the Longmeadow stone are names given to the stone quarries at different points on this river. Between the layers of this stone are found the fossil foot-prints of bird and reptile and fossil raindrops that have interested the scientific men for many years.

President Hitchcock of Amherst College collected over 8000 fossil foot-prints from this region, many of which are immense.

I saw one other distinguished gentleman, whom every reader of "Innocence Abroad" would be glad to meet, Captain Duncan, commander of the Quaker City that carried the Pilgrims safely on their grand excursion.

A visit to Northfield is a pleasure and a delight. The beautiful old town surrounded by picturesque hills clothed to the very summit with dark green cover; the wide, slow-moving Connecticut with hardly a ripple, like a broad blue band in the valley; the gentle slopes emerald green and the air of delicious fragrance, all make this a land of rest and joy. I had heard much of Northfield and its attractiveness, and went to it with high anticipations. I left it with regret and the feeling the Queen of Sheba expressed "That the half had not been told."

Deafness Can't Be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is, by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed for ever, and it is ten times as easy to catch cold, which is nothing, but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we can not cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

I was troubled with catarrh for seven years previous to commencing the use of Ely's Cream Balm. It has done for me what other so-called cures have failed to do, and cured me. The effect of the Balm seemed magical.—Clarence L. Huff, Biddford, Me.

Saved Her Life.

I was taken sick one year ago with what one doctor said was overflow of the gall, and another, ulcers of the liver. They thought I could not live. My mother persuaded me to try Favorite Remedy. My health was never better than it is today, and my weight is one hundred and forty pounds. Favorite Remedy saved my life. I cannot praise it enough.—Mrs. Jennie Rennie, Virgil, N. Y.

It won't cost you one-half as much. Do not delay. Send these two-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kautzmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes and home cure. Address, A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass.

How Often.

We see some young man who has squandered his money and ruined his health by excesses, and before thirty years of age is an all broken down and played out man! In all such cases I prescribe nature's tonic and nerve, Sulphur Bitters. They supply food for the brain, strengthen the nerves, and are successful in nine cases out of ten.—Old Physician.

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB.

The Tariff is a Tax.

Every person interested in the subject of the tariff, is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms, and communications of every kind, whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

Discordant Notes on the Tariff.

It is still impossible to discern any signs of an agreement among supporters of the new tariff act, over the question as to its effect upon prices. On Tuesday the New York Tribune followed up an elaborate inquiry, demonstrating that the effect had been to reduce prices, with an article concluding that "the deluge of falsehoods about the higher cost of every article needed from the cradle to the grave served its purpose for one election only, and now the millions who find that they have been cheated by these democratic untruths are preparing to make their answer." The next day it called attention to the higher prices the eastern tobacco growers are getting for a larger crop than ever because of the great advance in duties on Sumatra leaf. This extra price is placed at "several millions" for the three states of Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York alone. The advance in price, we are here told, "is just what the hated McKinley tariff was intended to accomplish." And, further, says the Tribune to the farmers, "the producers of barley know how their prices have been advanced, and the producers of vegetables and eggs for sea-board markets realize the enormous advantage of being protected this year against a competition which had rendered many eastern farms unprofitable. No considerable part of the magnificent prosperity which American farmers are to enjoy this year has been secured to them by the new tariff which demagogues have so unscrupulously misrepresented."

But the Tribune is not only at odds with itself. Its penny associate at New York takes issue with it, and declares that the price of eggs, for example, has been declining steadily since the egg duty was imposed and as a result of that duty; but at the same time it disagrees with itself and agrees with the Tribune in holding that the duty on wool increases prices for domestic wool. On the other hand the organ of the Philadelphia manufacturers' club says "it is an interesting fact, deserving much emphasis of statement, that the prices of wool are lower now than they were one year ago," and that this result was distinctly promised by protectionists during the discussion which accompanied the framing of the tariff bill. But at the same time the Manufacturer takes issue with itself, and agrees at the same time disagrees with the Tribune, in maintaining that when Mr. Blaine told the farmers the McKinley bill contained no assurance of relief for them, he made a reckless statement and aimed "deadly stab" at his party. Being finally asked by the American Wool Reporter when and where lower prices for wool were promised by protectionists, the Manufacturer now accepts Mr. Blaine's statement as true and says "It was made over and over again by the McKinley Manufacturer; similar assertions were repeatedly made by other well-informed protectionist journals throughout the country, and by numbers of stump speakers during the campaign of 1890." It would be most helpful to the cause if these people could come to some agreement, not only each with all, but each with himself, on this vital question of the relation of tariffs to prices. How otherwise can it be that with this present chaos of thought and clashing of statement the republican voter becomes bewildered and knows not what to say or think? Is it any wonder that the party leaders have concluded some other issue will be better for them in this campaign, and the New York convention has devoted as few words as possible in a long platform to a perfunctory indorsement of the tariff act that does all these wonderful things? Is the support of this measure has not become utterly demoralized, its organs are succeeding well in creating such an impression.

The republican club members in Ohio are wearing lapel buttons stamped "American tin." It turns out that the buttons were imported direct from Wales by a Martin's Ferry notion dealer. They will do just as well. The policy of idols lies not in their make or shape, but in the mind of the worshiper.

In a decision of the American Wool Manufacturers' law has justified Mr. Blaine's statement that it had been proved that the wool would have advanced if the tariff had been reduced. This seems to be obvious.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

Palmer Cox has signed a contract with The Ladies' Home Journal, whereby his amusing little "Brownies," which he made so successful in St. Nicholas and in his books, will hereafter belong exclusively to the Journal. Mr. Cox's contract begins with the October number.

The proprietors of The American Horse Breeder, Boston, have purchased the entire property of the publication known as Horse and Stable, a publication devoted to horse interests, and will hereafter publish the latter in connection with their own paper, and under their name.

The startling fact is shown by reports of the Massachusetts Commissioner of Prisons that during the last fifty years, while the population of the State has only trebled, the number of criminals has increased fifty fold. There is one prisoner to every 400 inhabitants in the State, and in Boston one to every 222 inhabitants. This large proportion, however, includes re-commitments. These facts are interpreted by Mr. William P. Andrews, for many years Clerk of the Criminal Court at Salem, Mass., as evidence that the "reformatory" conduct of prisons has caused an alarming increase of crime, and that the substitution of reformatory for punitive treatment is fast bringing us to State socialism through the attractiveness of prison-life. Mr. Andrews will contribute an article to the October Forum, containing the results of many years' observation of the working of the two systems.

Miss Alice M. Fletcher, of the United States Interior Department and the P. E.

only Museum, Cambridge, will contribute to The Century in 1892 the results of her studies of the American Indian in a series of illustrated papers. They will give an intimate account of how the Indian actually lives and thinks, his music, home life, warfare, hunting customs, etc., and it is the opinion of Professor Putnam of Harvard that they will undoubtedly be the most important papers that have ever been published on the subject, and that they will give an entirely different idea of the Indian from that now commonly prevailing. The series will be called "The Indian's Side."

Wolcott Balestier, who has collaborated with Rudyard Kipling in the new novel which The Century will publish, is a young American now living in London. He is a writer and a business man as well, being a member of the recently organized firm of Heinemann & Balestier, of Leipzig, which is publishing a series of copyrighted English and American novels on the continent of Europe in the fashion of the Tauchnitz editions.

The Earthquake City.

The Annual Review of "The News and Courier" tells a marvellous story of the progress and development of the ill-fated city that five years ago was shaken to its foundations by a devastating earthquake, destroying millions of property. Since that fearful disaster, which seemed to inflict a death blow to the business life of the city, and to paralyze our energies, the trade of Charleston has increased over $30,000,000. Five years ago the trade amounted to $60,940,000. The total business of Charleston for the year just closed was $98,500,000, a net increase over last year of $17,000,000, and of $31,000,000 on the business of the city in 1886. The average increase since the great catastrophe has been at the rate of $6,000,000 a year.

The cotton receipts during the past year were 207,016 bales in excess of last year, and the value of the cotton trade $4,433,000. "But," says the "Review," "instead of relying mainly on one branch of business, the reports show that Charleston is progressing along every line of industrial endeavor and achievement. King Cotton no longer holds undisputed sway over the destinies of this port. We are no longer carrying all of our eggs in one basket."

It has been said that the best index of the progress and prosperity of a community is the "steady and healthy increase in the number and capacity of its manufacturing enterprises." Applying this test to Charleston, we find an increase in the number of industries over last year from 330 to 333; in the capital invested from $2,747,000 to $2,750,000; in the annual products, of $2,788,000. The main increase has been derived from commercial fertilizers. Three new factories have been added to the list during the past year. The capital invested has increased from $3,790,000 to $5,323,000. The smaller industries are multiplying every year, and are all doing well.

The grocery business, wholesale and retail, amounted last year to over $20,000,000. The ice trade about $30,000. This new era of prosperity is due in no small measure to Charleston's new railroad facilities, resulting from a change in the administration of the S. C. Railway Company, and the opening of the East and West Shore Terminals. With double tracks running to the wharves, transportation is more rapid and less expensive. With these facilities for handling and transporting cotton, grain, fruit, Charleston can compete with other ports in carrying the crops of the West and South West to foreign and domestic ports.

During the past year there has been unusual activity in building. Over $400,000 have been expended, of this amount $250,000 have been spent in repairs of old buildings. Many of the new houses are owned by colored people.

The assessed value of real and personal property returned for taxation is $21,380,000. The real estate increase over last year, $73,435. The increase of the city from taxable property at 23 mills is $402,890; from all sources, $596,000; expenditures, $504,000. The bonded indebtedness of the city is $3,932,000; reduced 1890 by $4,700. The city is now supplied with water from three artesian wells, yielding about two million gallons daily. A contract for a new well has recently been concluded. The fire department consists of seven steamers, in active service, and three reserve steamers, and so perfect is the discipline that a great conflagration is almost impossible.

The sanitary condition of the city is excellent, and the year that has just closed has been one of unusual health, excepting the generally prevailing epidemic, La Grippe. The health department estimates the population of the city at 64,000; whites, 28,000; colored, 36,000. The mortality for the year 1890 was 1821, of which 511 were whites, and 1310 colored; the death rate per 1000 being 17 among the whites, and 36 among the colored, the proportion being, whites 1 in 56, colored 1 in 28. During the year 29 white persons have passed the age of 80, and 53 colored, several of whom attained the ages of 100 and 112.

The public school system of Charleston is admitted by all "says the Review," "to be far in advance of that of any other Southern City. Nothing strikes the Northern visitor with more surprise than the well conducted schools of Charleston." There are 110 teachers. The average monthly pay of male teachers is $105, and of female teachers, $49. The city owns six well equipped school houses, valued at $149,300. Steps are being taken looking to the erection of another building for the colored people. There are between 5000 and 6000 pupils enrolled at the various schools. Nearly 3000 are white and 65 per cent. are females; 2500 are colored, of whom 69 per cent. are females. The schools are supported by the state constitutional two-mill tax, the poll tax, and a special city tax. The revenue from all these sources is $80,000.

Probably Charleston was never so prosperous as it is today, and her outlook for the future is more encouraging and hopeful than ever since the war. As our Northern friends read this marvellous story of the "earthquake city" many will feel that their generosity in helping us to repair our ruins was by no means wasted. As the prostrate city now walks with a more stately and majestic step than before, she remembers with unceasing gratitude the strong, kind hands that lifted her up, and set her upon her feet.

For wounds and inflammations, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is healing and soothing.

TENNIS AT RIVERSIDE.

ANNUAL FALL TOURNAMENT OF THE NEWTON BOAT CLUB.

The annual tennis tournament of the Newton Boat Club was held Saturday at Riverside. The number of entries this year was quite small, compared with previous seasons, but some admirable work was done in the several competitions, and the games were close and interesting. The work of H. L. Fairbrother, well known to the tennis world as the partner of Campbell, the amateur tennis champion, and the winner with his associate of a number of tournament prizes in doubles, was a surprise for his friends, who looked upon him as a sure winner. He was in poor form, and unable to play his usually strong game. The prizes consisted of silver medals, suitably inscribed.

This morning about two o'clock, John Wood, the well-known plumber who resides on Main Street, was awakened by hearing glass break. On getting out of bed he received a blow on the head. He immediately grappled with the burglar, and after a terrible struggle succeeded in holding him until his wife obtained help. On being searched at the station, Mr. Wood's watch and wallet were found on his person. He gave the name of Robert Terry. The broken glass proved to be a bottle of Sulphur Bitters which had almost cured Mrs. Wood of rheumatism.—Exchange.

THE STATE CONVENTION.

The contest between Messrs. Crapo and Allen aroused considerable interest in the Republican state convention, and what promised to be a rather dull convention was much enlivened. Mr. Crapo's friends were too late in beginning their work, and they evidently labored under the impression that ability and character would render "hustling" unnecessary, but this was a mistake. Had they shown half the energy before the caucus that they displayed afterward, they would easily have nominated their candidate.

Nevertheless their campaign was well conducted, after it was begun, and the speech of ex-Gov. Long in nominating Mr. Crapo was the wisest and most sensible speech made at the convention, and his assertion that Mr. Crapo himself would be the strongest plank in the platform cannot be denied. The majority was against him, however, and Mr. Allen will now have to "hustle" if he wishes to carry the day over Governor Russell. Mr. Allen's friends are very enthusiastic, but the great majority of voters are yet to be waked up, and made to feel an interest in his behalf.

Mr. Allen as he appeared on the platform at the convention looks younger even than his years would lead one to expect, and it will evidently be a young man's campaign. He is a good looking young man, with a certain charm of manner, and Newton people will have a chance probably to see him before election, as he intends to speak at all the important places in the state.

Congressman Lodge presided over the convention, and made a speech that would fill five or six columns of the GRAPHIC, and which had in it a good deal of the spread eagle character. Mr. Lodge has contracted or inherited a strong "down east" accent, which foreigners pretend is a characteristic of all Americans, but which is seldom noticeable among cultivated people. It interferes with the pleasure of listening to him, but possibly he cultivates it as a proof of his strong "Americanism." He made quite an elaborate defence of the last Congress, and a glorification of his party and all connected with it, but it was an excellent political speech, and the convention was very enthusiastic.

The platform adopted was like all the platforms adopted this year, of extraordinary length, with stumpy speeches injected into many of the paragraphs, but the issues are everywhere much involved this year, and all the conventions have to give a diagram with their platform, to further define their position. A good hard money plank was adopted, although not quite as outspoken as that of the New York Democrats, and the convention reasserted its devotion to civil service reform, the pensioners, the laboring man, the common schools, temperance, the force bill, the governor's council and President Harrison. The document is certainly worth a careful reading.

The City Council has resumed its labors after the long vacation and a large amount of business was transacted Monday evening. Most of it was routine business, but the Nonantum house has caused a dead lock between the two boards. The aldermen had accepted Mr. Wellington's generous offer of a lot near the Silver Lake mills, but there were floods of eloquence against this in the Common Council, and it was defeated, and another order passed that the house should be located on the lot now occupied by the Nonantum police station, opposite the school house. The aldermen did not believe in this and voted it down, and there the matter stands. Many think it would be a great mistake to have such a building opposite a school house, as the small children would be sure to crowd around when an alarm was sounded, and they might get run over, while they would certainly prove a nuisance to the firemen. The Nonantum people say if they are to have a house here they want it in the centre of the village, if there is any centre in Nonantum, and not half way to Newtonville. Besides, a handsome new house on the city lot would hide the old police station, which is not a building in which the Nonantums take much pride.

Gov. HALE made an excellent appearance in his speech of acceptance at the state convention, and his hearers gained some insight into the reasons for his popularity. A sensible looking, middle-aged man, with a modest bearing, prepossesses an audience in his favor, and this impression was strengthened by his carefully weighed and conscientious words. He says only just what he means, makes no boasts of what will happen, and although in a political convention he is as careful about his statement as if he were before a court. It is a great relief to listen to such a thoroughly honest and dignified gentleman, and any one listening to him could realize how foolish any attempt would be to make him take a nomination that he had once declined. Haile will be a tower of strength to his party, and if he could be prevailed on to canvass the state he would make more votes for his party than all the other campaign orators put together. Sincerity in a speaker is a valuable quality in these days.

The Waltham River Carnival last evening was a brilliant success and attracted immense crowds of people, who occupied every point that commanded a view of the river. The Newton Street Railway had out every car it owned and all were filled with passengers from the different villages, and the employees of the road had their hands full. Many drove over in carriages and Newton was largely represented. The illumination was more elaborate than ever before, and the many boats with their gay colored lanterns presented a fairly like spectacle. The Presidential party was among the invited guests, and everything passed off successfully. In spite of the crowds, some estimating the number present as high as 75,000 persons, the best of order was maintained.

The return of Newtonians from their summer vacations finds the sewer excavations still going on, and some of the streets that were open when they went away are still displaying yawning chasms, and mountains of dirt. The work is progressing, however, although there are loud complaints about the slowness, but it can be said with perfect truth that the Mayor and Alderman Harbach of the sewer committee have done all in their power to hasten things along, and that if they had their way every street would be finished promptly. Sewering a city such as Newton is a mammoth undertaking, and the size of the job is only just beginning to be appreciated. The numerous ledges, and inexhaustible supply of water found on some streets at a certain depth have had something to do with the delays.

The census statistics in reference to Kansas mortgages make interesting reading to many eastern people. The total mortgage indebtedness of Kansas people is given as $235,485,108, while the assessed valuation of real and personal property is but $200,593,711, not including some fifty millions of railroad property. Judging from these figures real property in Kansas must be mortgaged up to near its assessed value, and it is no wonder that the Alliance prospers in a state that is so plastered over with mortgages. Alliance people say that the Chattel mortgages, which are not mentioned in the census returns, covers pretty much all of the personal property in the state.

THE SATURDAY EVENING GAZETTE has a huge job on its hands in attempting to oppose the nomination of Mr. Blaine for the presidency, in which it is almost alone among the Republican organs. It says "We believe that as surely as Mr. Blaine is nominated, so surely will he be defeated. Were he in the full flush of physical health and of intellectual power we believe the result would be the same. He has been tried and found wanting, and it is folly for the Republican party to try the experiment a second time, to say nothing of leaning on a broken reed."

The advent of the President's family at the Woodland Park Hotel has caused a great demand for rooms at that popular resort. If one can not be a member of the royal family it is pleasant to be a neighbor, and the President's family certainly could not have found a more delightful place to spend a part of the autumn.

The auction of seats for the symphony rehearsals has been the great topic of interest to many people this week. When premiums range from fifty to over one hundred dollars, purchasers of seats may well claim to be devoted to music.

The report of the City Council proceedings give some idea of the great amount of building in Newton this season. New houses are springing up in every section of the city.

THE SENATORIAL CONVENTION meets in Newton, this year, and there will be no opposition to Senator Gilman's renomination.

Change of Time.

The Newton Street Railway company announce today a change of time which goes into effect on Monday, September 21. On week days the first car will leave Newton for Waltham at 6:25 instead of 6:30 a. m., then run half hourly on the even hour and half hour until 12:30, then 12:45, 1:00, 1:30 and every fifteen minutes until 10:00, then 10:30, and 11:00 p. m. For West Newton only, 10:15, 10:45, 11:15, 11:30 and 12:00 p. m. On Sundays cars will run half hourly until 10:30 a. m. and after 9:30 p. m., the last car for Waltham leaving at 10:30 instead of 11:00 p. m. Between 10:30 a. m. and 9:30 p. m. cars will run every fifteen minutes.

Supt. Henderson states that he is an earnest advocate of and believer in fifteen minute service as a means of drawing travel to his road, and in preparing his fall schedule he has continued this frequent service during such hours as experience shows it is most needed. His company has been for the past four months giving a fifteen minute service during eighteen hours daily, but there are many trips in the forenoon and late at night that have proved unpopular and this is why they are to be omitted.

To the Women of Newton.

In this busy modern world, full of activities that interest, while they bless, it is not perhaps often enough that we stop to reflect. And yet, it is through reflection that we take the onward steps towards a higher civilization. Newton is a favored city. It is a privilege to be a resident of it. Here, good intelligence, high principle, comfort, hospitality and universal kind feeling prevail. For just that reason it is easy to rest contented with what we have.

Reflect, take heed just here. When effort ceases, the current will begin to carry us backward. One point attained, let us, on the contrary put our eye upon a point farther distant. Let us gather up our forces and consider our duties as women towards our beloved city.

When to women was given by the State of Massachusetts, the right to vote upon school matters, it was an attempt upon the part of the state to make use, in a greater degree than ever before, of the feminine and motherly element in society, of the womanly insight, patience and sympathy. Women, who are called by the state to take an active interest in the welfare of the public schools, which constitute the bulwark of protection to our liberties. Have you not failed to realize the importance of fulfilling this duty? Reflect upon the power that the lot in accomplishing the work which you wish to see done. The ballot is in your hand to-day, and by it you can gradually bring about needed improvements in the schools. The state looks to you for certain work. Is it not your duty to respond?

As noted in another column, a meeting will be held in the chapel of Eliot church, for conference upon this matter. Give the help of your presence if you value public intelligence and the liberties of a free people, which can only be attained through the public schools. It is not the dead ballot that gives life, but the awakened mind, the poised hearts, that put life into that dead ballot. Come, and confer together.

Success of "Ye Earlie Trouble."

One of the surest signs of the great success of Guy Carleton's fascinating picture of colonial days, with its delightful comedy and soul-stirring exclaims, at the Boston Museum, is, that theatre parties come in nightly from all the outlying towns and give themselves up to its two hours and a half of continuous laughter and excitement. The fact that Wilson, Barron, Boniface, Liverpool, Bond, Holt, and Abbe, and Misses Clark, O'Leary, and Campbell all have strong parts, enables the audience of "Ye Earlie Trouble" to see the members of the famous Museum company at their best. As the curtain rises at 7:45 and falls promptly at 10:30, ample time is given to catch trains for the suburbs, and at matinees the performance closes at 4:30.

William D. Howells' New Story.

Rumor says that the scene of William D. Howells' new story, not yet published, is laid mainly in Boston. This story will not appear in book form for a considerable time, as Mr. Howells has sold the right of publication in New York to a leading newspaper for a very large sum. It is reported that the author is now negotiating with the leading Boston newspapers to find a purchaser in that city and the papers are bidding against each other at a rate which will make Mr. Howells' price a very handsome one.

It is hoped to make the meetings more interesting and helpful, and the help and encouragement of all the young people is desired.

—The School Suffrage meeting in the Methodist chapel on Wednesday afternoon was an animated and interesting one, Mrs. Geo. F. Hill presided. A thoughtful and suggestive essay was read by Mrs. Ellen Dietrich, who gave some startling statistics relating to educational matters in the United States, and brought forward many reasons why women should be especially interested in school suffrage, and represented on school boards. Mrs. Walton followed, urging the duty of women to vote for school committee, and explaining the necessary steps to be taken to qualify themselves. Mrs. Wellington of Newton made a stirring speech on the importance of mothers visiting the schools, acquainting themselves with the condition of the building, and making friends of the teachers. Mrs. Andrew Wellington said there could be nothing unwomanly in performing a duty that so closely concerned the welfare of our children. Further remarks were made by Mrs. Heath, Mrs. Carter, Mrs.

Webster, Mrs. Guman, Miss Grant, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Martin and Mr. Urbino, who thought there should be a larger proportion of male teachers in Newton, that a female teacher should be paid as much as a male teacher for the same work, and that teachers generally are not treated socially, with the respect their position demanded. Arrangements were made by which a number of ladies could go together to the City Hall to be assessed.

—Arrangements for the annual tournament of the N. H. S. Tennis Association are almost completed. Entries are coming rapidly and already about 25 have been received. The tournament will be held on the grounds of the Newton Tennis Club, Richardson street, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. Season tickets at 25 cents may be obtained of the following gentlemen, who will receive entries to ladies and gents singles, and gents' doubles: H. A. Stone, '92, H. F. Page, '92, W. Partridge, '92, H. L. Crafts, '92, Williams, '92, Jordan, '93, Wiggins, '94, and Barker, '95.

—Residents of Otis street are very much put out by the appearance in that thoroughfare of a line of large and rather unsightly looking telephone poles, and a largely signed petition has been sent to the city council requesting their removal. It is claimed that the poles were rather shily put in position during the absence of the masculine gender of Otis street, who returned home from business and were confronted by the objectionable "hello" sticks. The residents claim that they have a special cause of grievance as they were given no opportunity to remonstrate. Indications now point to a pretty lively hearing in the City Hall.

—A very pretty dancing party was given on Saturday evening at the residence of Mrs. H. H. Bradley, Walnut terrace. The ladies present were charmingly gowned in evening dress and many of the prominent Newtonville society people were included in the company. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight, and a dainty collation was served. Among those present were Miss Mary D. Dyer, Herbert Chase, Miss Alice Cobb, Miss Mabel Park, Mr. and Mrs. Bullens, Mr. Pigott, Miss Lena Blaikie, Mr. Charles Daniels, Miss Lottie Lambirth of Boston, Miss Louise Blaikie of Jamaica Plain, Miss Morse of West Newton presided at the piano.

—Miss Flora Macdonald, the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald, has inherited great artistic and business qualifications in the stained glass profession, and at the request of many prominent architects and influential business men throughout the West, has opened an office at the Lumber Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn. She has had a large experience in Boston and New England, and her ability has been deservedly recognized by the architectural profession. The good wishes of her numerous professional acquaintances and friends will follow her in her new field, where it is hoped that she will meet with a full measure of success.

—Chas. Ward Post gave a reception to Company B of the 4th Mass. Vols., last evening, at Newtonville, which was very largely attended. Company B held its annual reunion the same evening and elected these officers: President, C. C. Soule of Brookline; vice-president, Capt. John A. Kenrick of Newton; second vice-president, S. T. Snipe of Bath, Me.; secretary and treasurer, George L. Keyes of Newton; corresponding secretary, J. S. Barrows of Boston; representative to the regimental association, Col. W. J. Gillespie. At the reception a large number of invited guests, prominent citizens and the ladies of their family, were present and after addresses of welcome supper was served in the banquet hall. Among the after dinner features were speeches from many veterans, and an amusing speech and poem by Mr. Bradshaw, the latter of which is given in another column.

—The Fall Exhibition at Paine's Furniture Warehouse, 45 Canton street, Boston, takes place this month. No one should visit Boston without attending it. All the new styles can be seen and studied. Grey was a plain, blunt man, of simple tastes and domestic habits. The show and pomp of courts were detestable to him. Plumes, sashes, epaulettes, had no charm for him. Marshal MacMahon, on resigning the presidency, petulantly exclaimed: "If you want a president in a black coat, try one!" M. Grey was a president in a black coat. He even eschewed the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor, and actually voted on one occasion for the abolition of that famous order. —New York Tribune.

THE GIRL'S THEORY.

"Lucy," said her aunt, with a pleading emphasis on the first syllable, "you will dust the parlor this morning, won't you?" And she held forth the duster, hoping that the young girl would relent, as she sometimes did.

"No, Aunt Jane, I couldn't," and then she turned and ran upstairs to her room. Miss Jane was an intelligent-looking young woman of perhaps thirty years.

She expected company to-day, and she must make the cake herself and straighten out the house from top to bottom, in order to be free afterward to entertain her guest. But that was not the worst of it. Aunt Jane was troubled about Lucy's morals. A tall, active, rosy girl of fifteen full of energy and capacity, and yet so selfish as to refuse to lift a finger for the good of others! It was melancholy enough.

While Aunt Jane whisked and dusted, and made the parlor shine all over, Lucy, up in her room, cheerfully hummed a tune as she took from her writing-desk a sheet of paper, sharpened a pencil and then sat down, determined to write a story. She felt under obligation to do something remarkable to pay for having been so disobedient. Lucy had a theory that useful people were always uninteresting, but that if she economized herself, as it were, and kept herself free from the toils and moils of the ordinary mass of mankind, she would become a remarkable person in the course of time. She had never confided this theory to her aunt; if she had it would have cleared away numerous mysteries which at present weighed heavily upon Miss Jane's mind. Miss Jane never imagined that Lucy's conduct was based upon a theory. She supposed that each refusal came from momentary laziness.

The scenery out of doors was beautiful, this morning, and Lucy's desk faced the window. It was impossible to help looking out on the sunny fields and feathery elms before her, so that after two hours had gone by Lucy found that just half a page of manuscript lay on her desk, as the fruit of her morning's work; and this she had read over so many times that she could not possibly tell whether it had any meaning in it or not. A ring at the door gave her an excuse for jumping up joyfully from her seat, tossing away her tiresome paper and running down stairs.

"I'll go to the door, auntie," she called. This was a part of the household-work which Lucy enjoyed, for she possessed a lively curiosity, and objected to having anyone call at the house without her knowing it.

Her aunt's expected guest had arrived, and a very bright and attractive vision she was. She seemed a young woman of twenty-five, and Lucy could not help feeling at once that this young lady knew and did everything that was brilliant and admirable.

Perhaps, in her worldly little heart, Lucy drew a contrast between the shining figure and that of her commonplace and merely useful aunt, who now came hurrying forward and threw her arms warmly around the newcomer.

"This does me good," she said, looking into the fresh face she had just been kissing. "Come in here and let me look at you. Why, Angela, you look younger every year!" For a moment the two friends quite forgot Lucy's presence, and then her aunt drew her forward and introduced her as "the niece of whom you have heard, who has been with me the past month, and is, I hope, to be my companion for a year, while her mamma is in Europe getting well."

Lucy did not enjoy this prospect in the least, still she greeted Miss Angela very prettily. Her thoughts, meanwhile, ran on this wise: "Miss Angela, you must see at once how unbecomingly companion my aunt is for a bright girl like me. I look forward to receive great sympathy from you."

Lucy was obliged to confess to her aunt and to herself, however, that just at present the guest seemed entirely absorbed with Aunt Jane, and had a meagre amount of attention to bestow upon the most charming of nieces. And Aunt Jane certainly looked better than usual. Upon her face glowed such an expression of pleasure that Lucy wondered at it. It was, indeed, the same kind look which had caused a momentary warmth in the young girl's heart when she first arrived in Longdale, a month before; but in the disappointment following the discovery of the plain dress, the faded complexion, and the simple and industrious domestic economy of the household, Lucy had forgotten to look for the pleasant expression in her aunt's face, and it had apparently disappeared.

Lucy had said to herself: "I must take a firm stand against all this; if I do not, I shall soon be the ordinary person, and I shall be quite unfitted to go back to city life."

There were two things that made it somewhat difficult to produce an impression upon Miss Angela Lane. One was a little fact in philosophy which Lucy could not but expect to have yet discovered; namely, that an impression can be made more easily when the one making it is doing something else. The other fact was that Angela was so devoted to her friend, Jane Brown, that she seemed almost unconscious of the existence of Lucy Lane.

Lucy had drawn around her a circle of friends of her own age. To these she confided frankly how uninteresting she considered her aunt, how surprised she was that Miss Angela seemed to like that plain individual, and also how she, Lucy, found the visitor "how evidently knew 'what was what' very congenial."

Miss Angela had been in Longdale for a week. It was another beautiful June morning, and Lucy was ready to dance with the delight of living. She tripped lightly into the parlor to see what was going on, and there she encountered Angela, her prim dress tucked up, and her cheeks glowing, while in her hand she wielded Lucy's dingy enemy, the duster.

"Oh, Lucy, I'm glad you have come. If you will finish dusting the parlor for me I can go and be making the beds and then we can all get through earlier."

Lucy caught her breath. "Just the parlor for you?" she began, and she was tempted not only to seize the duster but to kiss the little white hand that handed it to her.

Angela continued rubbing the leg of a table as if she had no time for talking; that being finished, she held by implement toward the hesitating girl. "By this time Lucy's self-possession had returned.

aunt, and found there the odor of sponge-cakes just out of the oven.

"Oh, Lucy, dear," said her aunt, "my friend and I are going away for a day in the woods. You may have any two pounds you please to take dinner with you and keep you company while we are gone."

But Lucy did not like to be "shed" in this matter-of-course way; besides, she could not bear to think that Miss Angela would be gone so many hours and give her no chance to explain why she had seemed so disobliging; so she said wistfully:

"I wish I could go with you, Aunt Jane."

"Why, dear child, so you shall, if you wish. I thought it would be dull for you, with two elders like us."

"Not with her," murmured Lucy. "How glad I am that you like her so much," said Miss Jane, and her niece went bounding to her room, full of anticipations for the day. Perhaps she should have a chance to tell Miss Angela about her desire to write a story, and perhaps Miss Angela would ask her to read what she had written, and in this way she should be able to show Miss Angela how inappropriate it was to expect her to do such drudgery as if she were a common girl!

Lucy's room was across the hall. On the other side were the guest-room and her aunt's. Lucy left her door open as she went in, but happened herself to be just behind it in the closet when she heard the two ladies come chatting upstairs.

"Jennie?"

"Yes?"

"Forgive me for being so frank, but what an uninteresting child your niece is!"

A great wave of crimson surged into Lucy's face as she heard this, and she weakly sank into a chair and became still as a mouse.

"Oh, no, not uninteresting," called back Miss Jane's voice, with anxious tone in it; "not uninteresting, but—"

"I must be firm," answered Miss Angela's silvery tones. "For you know uninteresting and uninterested are synonymous terms, and—now, what is she interested in?"

There was a pause.

"Well," said Miss Jane presently, "I don't quite know yet."

"She's old-fashioned," announced Miss Angela's voice, accompanied by the shutting of a bureau-drawer, "behind the times you know."

Lucy winced—the very thing she was sure that Angela would say. "You haven't," you noticed, though, that sometimes the dear little thing has the brightest look on her face?"

Lucy could bear no more. She slid into the closet, where she shut out the voices by burying her face in the skirt of her dress. Whether she was grateful to her aunt for defending her, or whether she was angry with the whole world and every one in it, she did not know. At all events, she never should have the courage to issue forth from that closet any more. Nevertheless, she knew that the time would come when she must show herself.

"Oh, Aunt Jane, I've decided to have the girls to dinner, and stay at home after all."

"Very well, dear. Goodbye."

The garden-gate swung together, and Lucy had the day before her. She gazed after the departing figures as they moved along the shady road. Miss Angela's hair catching the sunlight and glistening under her hat, and Miss Jane moving in an elastic fashion, which spoke of a daily familiarity with exercise. She saw Miss Angela stop and gather a branch of wild roses, which she pinned to her companion's dress with the air of one doing her homage to a superior. Just after that they passed out of sight in the bend.

Lucy felt perhaps more uncomfortable than ever before in her life, it is so very unpleasant to hear one's self spoken of in uncomplimentary terms! She felt like an outcast, misunderstood and unappreciated. The day was spoiled. How should she employ it? Pleasure was quite out of the question with the words "uninteresting" and "old-fashioned" ringing in her ears. Had they really been applied to her? She felt outraged, and then puzzled, and then hurt, and then wretched; and this succession of mental phases, ending in a long cry, occupied the morning. The afternoon brought into her mind a furious determination to write something perfectly wonderful, and address it to Miss Angela and deposit it on her bureau, that she might find it on her return and be filled with remorse and shame. If Lucy's life had depended upon convincing Miss Angela of her mistaken judgment, her passionate determination to do it could not have been stronger. "Uninteresting and old-fashioned!"

The little rhyme which Lucy wrote that day was really good, but it was not laid upon Miss Angela's bureau. It was hidden away in the desk, and only shown to Miss Jane weeks afterward, when she and her niece had become very intimate and devoted to one another.

After Lucy had written her rhyme she was calm, and catching up her hat she started out for a walk. She had not gone far before she met a gentleman, one whose appearance announced him a stranger in the village. As Lucy approached his pace slackened, and he accosted her with an apology, asking her if she could tell him where Miss Brown lived.

"Which Miss Brown?" asked Lucy, glad to speak after a day of silence.

"Miss Brown, the great authoress," answered the gentleman fluently. "The one who has written the novel of the year." He spoke as if she must, of course, know all about it. She was much puzzled.

"There are only two Miss Browns in this place," she said presently; "one keeps a little baker's shop, and the other is my aunt."

"May I ask the way to your aunt's?" he said in a business-like way.

"You must be in the wrong town," said Lucy, positively.

"I must see Miss Jane Brown of Longdale, and I don't believe she is a baker," he remarked, with an amused smile, and Lucy obediently showed him where the only person she knew of that name lived; but she believed that the gentleman would be much disconcerted when he returned and he discovered his mistake.

"Is Miss Brown whom you are looking for really a great authoress?" asked Lucy.

"Oh, very successful, indeed," he answered. "They've just brought out her tenth edition, and that, for an unknown writer is something unusual."

"Well," said Lucy, meditatively, "my aunt is just such a person, just a common, ordinary person, you know."

"She doesn't carry a pen behind her ear, or wear an ink-spot on her thumb, eh?" said he lightly.

Lucy meditated for some moments and ended in a positive tone. "She can not be the lady you are looking for."

In a short time the lady in question walked in, and the gentleman greeted her with a very low bow, and seemed somewhat awestruck. Miss Jane was dignified and quiet, though her eyes betrayed a certain gleam in their serenity, as she heard the words which he used in regard to her writings. Lucy also, in a dazed way, made mention of large sums of money. Evidently this, after all, was the authoress. Angela drew the astonished young girl away to the piazza.

"Miss Angela," said Lucy, in a low voice, "I never knew till this moment that Aunt Jane was anything."

"Oh, she's written you a poem about the young girl kindly," but your aunt is so wonderful, of course no one can expect to be considered interesting when she is near. Truly, Lucy, I should not be at all annoyed if you said it to me. It is to be expected."

"But what did you mean by old-fashioned, Miss Angela?"

"Well, Lucy, to tell the truth, I meant that you did not seem to be very useful. That used to be the old idea of a lady you know, to be helpless, but I thought times had changed. But, dear child, it must have sounded harsh, hearing it in that way. I am sorry."

Lucy was so relieved. She had feared that the term "old-fashioned" referred to her manners, or her figure, or her taste, or her dress, or something she could not help; whereas now she had the matter all in her own hands. It occurred to her that if her aunt could be at once useful and great, why so could she! What a discovery! Her theory was broken to atoms, and Lucy, instead of going into mourning for the loss of it, felt as if a burden had been taken off her shoulders.

As soon as she had a chance she caught her aunt and threw her young arms impulsively and tightly around her.

"Oh, Aunt Jane, do let me confess to you, it wasn't because I was disobedient, nor because I was lazy, nor even because I disliked it, that I wouldn't dust the parlor. It was because I had a theory!"

"And that was that?" asked her aunt, greatly delighted. "It takes a brain to have a theory, so I am proud of you."

"I thought," said Lucy, laughing, "that if I made myself useful, I could never be great. Wasn't it funny?"—The Churchman.

How She Made Him Remember.

On several occasions her husband had carried about him in his pockets for some days important letters which she had asked him to mail for her. Recently she gave him a letter addressed to himself, with the request not to read it until it reached his office, says the Philadelphia Times. Although this struck him as a very strange proceeding, he nevertheless concluded to comply with her wish. Arriving at his place of business he opened the letter and read as follows:

My Dear Husband: I must here inform you of a circumstance which will prove to be very disagreeable to you, but it is my bounden duty to tell you of it. I have, once for all, determined to bring this matter to your notice, let the consequences be what they may. For a week past I have foreseen that this must be done, but I have thus far restrained. The supreme moment has at last arrived, and the crisis is at hand. I am compelled to speak out. Do not judge me too severely, and bear up like a man! By the time he had read thus far his hair stood on end with horror, and with a trembling hand he turned the leaf and read on further:

"We are completely out of soap! Please go at once to our grocer and order a box of—soap and have it sent home in the course of the afternoon. I also want a dozen of—five-cent package starch. I have adopted this mode of asking you to do me this favor so that you may not forget it."

Nor did he forget it.

THE OLD ARMY HARD TACK.

At the reunion of the veterans of the 39th Mass. Vols., Monday, Sept. 7, in Lynnfield, their first meeting, the following poem was read by Sergt. Bradshaw, Co. H:

How dear to this heart is the old army hard tack As fond recollection restores him to view. When eaten with pork or fat in his doughnuts, The rations that beat him across ring and few.

How oft on our marches he's braced up our courage, As with knowing and growling we've hobbled along. Oh well may the hard tack, the old army hard tack, Prove a classical theme for an old vet's song.

I have eaten high banquets at Yang's and at Parker's, I have tasted their soups, blue points, and roast lamb. But all of those viands flat and insipid, Beside the old hard tack of dear Uncle Sam.

For the old army hard tack is seasoned with memories Of battles and hardships when wearing the blue, Of marchings, and flankings and digging of trenches, And loving communion with old comrades, too.

The old army hard tack speaks too of dear comrades Whose faces are missing, today, in our line, Their battles all fought, their marchings all ended, But whose virtues still live in memory's pure shrine.

Then cheer the old hard tack, the old army hard tack, Who was dainty and wormy at times, I must own, But when at the hard tack, he took a vacation, We missed the old hard tack with a cavernous groan.

CHORUS.

The old army hard tack, the iron bound hard tack, The thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is in favor with all classes because it combines economy and strength. 100 Doses One Dollar.

All Secrets Revealed.

This modest and retiring hamlet has been startled by the publication of what purports to be a list of those paying a poll tax on May 1st, but which is in reality a mine of horrors.

Why are our most hallowed secrets spread before a censorious and unfeeling world? Was it necessary to publish our names in order to identify us?

Some of us are sensitive about our age. When we are saluted by our neighbor's small boy with, "Say! I know how old you are. You're 63," and we over-hear our neighbor's wife say, "Poor man! how well he bears his years," we feel sad.

Was it necessary to publish our occupations, and if so, could we not have been labelled without making such invidious distinctions? Some of us are labelled "gentlemen," and some not, and it is past the wit of man to find out what constitutes the difference, in the meaning of this word.

Why is it necessary to publish to our neighbors that some of us live in the houses of our wives, and some of us live in the houses of other men's wives?

Were all the statements in this book true, it were well to remember that the truth should not be spoken at all times, but when necessary is piled on error the result is a roaring farce.

It is sweet and proper to die for one's country, but it is gall and wormwood to be ridiculed for one's city, and all for the whim of whom?

Who is responsible for our wounded feelings, the sapient city fathers, the past and future of Boston, but Boston, the weaver, seized the reins of government?

—At the Methodist church last Sunday a large audience welcomed the Rev. T. W. Bishop upon his return from the summer vacation. There remains no doubt as to their appreciation of the new pastor as was shown by the members of the congregation at the close of service in their cordial greetings. The railing about the platform was almost hidden in wild flowers of great variety, most artistically arranged, reflecting great credit upon those who thus added to the pleasure of the service. Next Sunday the Amphion Male Quartet will sing and Prof. Davis will have charge of the music.

—The clubhouse of the Newton Boat Club, Riverside, was the scene of a fashionable gathering of society people Saturday evening, upon the occasion of the second in the series of September promenades. ## Veteran Firemen.

The Newton Veteran Firemen's Association held a special meeting and trial of engine at West Newton last Monday evening. The engine in command of Captain John Exley did excellent, making a better record than that on Labor Day.

It was decided to go to Lowell via Boston, and send engine the day before, via South Framingham.

All who have not ordered caps are requested to do so at once.

Each person buying a ticket will also receive a handsome blue ribbon badge, a memento of the occasion. The tickets are in the hands of W. E. Glover, West Newton, and C. T. Bartlett, Newton Centre, price $2 each, which entitles holder to round trip from Boston, including a dinner at a private cafe. There will be another trial of engine and a special meeting at Lindley barn, Webster street, next Monday evening at 7 o'clock sharp. It was decided to dispense with music.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—William H. Crane, the popular comedian, will begin a week's engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre next Monday evening, in "The Senator." This will positively be Mr. Crane's last visit to Boston in the character which he has played so successfully for the past two seasons. In fact, he will not be seen in Boston again for at least a year, owing to a long engagement in New York, and then will produce a new play. His company is stronger than last season and includes Misses Hattie Russell, Anne O'Neil, Katherine Florence, Gladys Wallis, Isabelle Everett, Mrs. Augusta Foster and Messrs. James Neill, Henry Bergman, T. D. Frawley, Adolph Jackson, George F. Devere, William Herbert, Henry Abraham, J. C. Padgett, Thomas Delmar and J. J. Gilman. No other New England date will follow the engagement.

GLOBE THEATRE.—The American melodrama, "The Power of the Press," has won the highest commendation from the Boston amusement public. The elaborate character of the production has attracted general attention, and the excellence of Manager Pitou's company has served to enhance the good work done by the authors in the principal scenes of the play. It has been most gratifying to have the prominence given to the production of the daily press so heartily approved at each repetition of the lines touching upon the subject, and the results of the engagement thus far have been most satisfactory both sides of the curtain. "The Power of the Press" holds the Globe Theatre stage for two weeks longer, being followed on the 28th inst. by Mlle. Rhea in Mr. Alexander's new play, "Judith."

BOSTON THEATRE.—Notwithstanding the great size of the Boston Theatre sign "Standing room only" has frequently been displayed there since the opening of the engagement of "The Old Irishman," and the same pleasing condition of affairs promises to continue for several weeks. Mr. Thompson is more popular than ever, and his clean, bright, delightful play succeeds as it deserves. Those who want good seats must apply for them early.

BOSTON PRESS BICYCLERS.

THEY DINE AT AUBURNDALE—PRESENTATION OF A HANDSOME PENNANT.

The Press Cycle Club, comprising members of the Boston Press Club, wheeled out to the Woodland Park Hotel Sunday afternoon and enjoyed one of Landlord Lee's dinners.

The club left the Boston Press Club rooms on Bosworth street, a few minutes before 1 o'clock and wheeled out through Brookline over the Chestnut Hill reservoir route and by way of Waban to the hotel, arriving at 2:45 o'clock. After registering and brushing up, the party seated themselves around the tables and did full justice to the various courses, the 12-mile run from Boston proving a good appetizer. President B. W. Isfort and the guests of the club occupied seats at the head of the table. After cigars had been lighted, Mr. W. W. Stall of Newton, one of the guests, addressed the club in a few words, at the conclusion of which he presented the club with a handsome pennant, President Isfort responding in a few well-chosen words. The pennant was then given in charge to J. T. Thompson, the color bearer, by Capt. W. P. Kennedy. The banner is of red silk, three-cornered in shape, with blue satin centre, on which is the word "Press" in gold lettering, and it is bordered by heavy gold fringe and secured to an ash staff by gold cord with tassels. Mr. Stall receiving a hearty vote of thanks from the club for his gift. The club wheeled away from the hotel at 5:12 o'clock, after a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon, returning to Boston through the Newtons via Washington street and out over the Milldam.

The guests of the party were Messrs. W. W. Stall, C. E. Cullerly, E. W. Fisher, of the Transcript and H. L. Wood of the Globe, and the club mustered 23 men. The committee of arrangements were Lieut. J. C. Kerrison, and Messrs. A. J. Ochs and J. T. Thompson.

Mrs. Gregg had one of the prettiest weddings that ever took place in the Massachusetts town in which she lives. But there was one odd incident of the occasion which a few of her friends who are in the secret recall with much amusement. Although a lady of quiet taste, Mrs. Gregg wore something which certainly no bride ever wore before.

Her wedding present from her old friend Dr. Jameson was an exquisite affair of lace, embroidery and white satin ribbon, which he had brought from Paris. It came just as the wedding party were starting for the church.

"What a lovely bag!" exclaimed the bride: "I am going to wear it. That will please dear Dr. Jameson;" and slipping the white satin strings over her arm she thought no more of it until after the ceremony.

"That is a beautiful bag, and so odd." "I never saw a bag like it. The material is beautiful," commented some of her friends.

"I suppose the style is new," replied Mrs. Gregg. "Dr. Jameson brought it to me from Paris. I am delighted with it."

"Did you put anything in it?" asked Dr. Jameson, who had been listening to this conversation with a smile that was suspiciously near a laugh.

"No," replied Mrs. Gregg. "I'll put my handkerchief in. What—why—why, there's no bottom in it. What is it, Dr. Jameson?"

"Well," replied Dr. Jameson, "I bought it for a lamp shade!"

And it was a lamp shade, edged with lace and drawn up at the top with white satin ribbon.—Youth's Companion.

"My, how the breaker roared!" said Jennie, on the beach. "Yes. That fat man in bathing stepped on his undertow," answered Harry.—[Harper's Bazar.

What Was It, John.

That made your face so free and clear from pimples, said his sweetheart. Why, don't you know, Eva? For over a year I took everything I could think of without helping me, then I bought two bottles of Sulphur Bitters, and now I haven't a pimple on my face. It is the best blood cleanser I ever saw.

Cancer Can be Cured, and by Dr. James M. Solomon, Jr., 75 Court St., Boston, Mass.

Dr. Solomon has cured a cancer on my lip of seventeen years' standing, it was cut out twice, by what they call eminent surgeons, at intervals of six weeks, and being cut out each time I knew by the feeling it was still there, and it would be now if I had not been so fortunate as to have Dr. Solomon treat it, he did it without any cutting. I would urge those afflicted with cancer not to delay, but to go at once and be cured permanently as I have done. My dear Doctor I thank from the bottom of my heart.

A Story of General Logan.

"That is a remarkable story about Mrs. John A. Logan," remarked a gentleman to a party of friends the other evening. "A few months before her husband's death she had been with him to New Mexico for his health, and when they had returned to Chicago a young girl of twenty, who had been a favorite with General Logan since her childhood, came in to see them in the evening, and he jokingly asked her what she had learned since he saw her last. She said she had been studying palmistry, and he held out his hand and laughingly told her to read his 'fortune.' Her face became serious at the first glance and she told him that death was marked in it, and that unless he changed his method of living and working and got rest he would be in his grave speedily."

"Mrs. Logan, who stood by, observed that this revelation had a disturbing effect on her husband, and with some reassuring remark and a laugh held out her hand and told the young lady to read her hand. The girl took it, looked at the lines an instant, and burst out crying. 'You will be a widow within six months,' sobbed the young palmist, dropping the hand. And in less time than that the nation was mourning the loss of Senator Logan and Mrs. Logan was a widow."—New York Truth.

Every one suffers from Catarrh in the Head. Those who don't have it suffer from those who do. It's a disease you can't keep to yourself.

Here are some of the symptoms: Headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody, putrid, and offensive; eyes weak, ringing in ears, deafness; offensive breath; smell and taste impaired, and general debility. But only a few of these likely to be present at once.

The cure for it—For Catarrh itself, and all the troubles that come from it—a perfect and permanent cure, is Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. The worst cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties. A record of 25 years has proved that to its proprietors—and they're willing to prove it to you.

They do it in this way: If they can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, they'll pay you $500 in cash. Can you have better proof of the healing power of a medicine?

—The granting of a location to the Garden City Street Railway some seven weeks ago to run tracks to Newton Centre from Newtonville has again opened to serious discussion the question of the feasibility of running tracks by way of Beacon street to Chestnut Hill reservoir, thus opening up an electric road the entire distance from Newton Centre to Boston. It will be proposed to widen Beacon street 100 feet from Station street the entire distance to the Chestnut Hill reservoir. This will give a wide street similar in character to the Brookline section of Beacon street.

—The matter is now being taken hold of by a number of prominent and moneyed men in this vicinity, and a paper petitioning the city government to widen the street is now at Councilman G. F. Richardson's provision store. This petition is receiving the signatures of interested citizens, and with such men as Mr. E. R. Knapp of Brookline and others, at the head of the enterprise, it is hoped the work may be done.

—President Henry M. Whitney of Brookline has some time since offered to run the West End tracks to Newton Centre if the city would widen Beacon street 100 feet, but his offer was never taken up with. It is now in the hands of men who feel sure of success because they know how the public sentiment favors such action, and but for the continued opposition of three or four of the heavy land owners living at Chestnut Hill the road would have been running before now. Public convenience requires electric cars to Boston with a five cent fare, and their needs should be paramount to the fancies of any individual.

FIELD DAY.

NEWTON NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY.

This society will hold its next Field Day in Hammond's Woods on the border of Hammond's Pond, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 19. This is one of the most romantic nooks found in the vicinity of Boston, high, perpendicular escarpments of rock, jagged cliffs and primeval forests. It is a region wonderfully picturesque and full of interest. Persons wishing to go on this excursion can take the 1.30 train by main line or 1.05 via Brookline, leaving the train at the Chestnut Hill station, walking up the railroad track about half a mile to the path entering the wood on the south, and then following the wood-path to the Pond and the heights beyond.

Any one wishing to accompany the society is cordially invited to do so. Should the day prove stormy or unsuitable the excursion will be postponed. The party will be conducted by Dr. J. F. Frisbie, of whom further information may be obtained. Persons wishing to go by carriage can enter at the wood a short distance above the ice houses.

Confirmed.

The favorable impression produced on the first appearance of the agreeable liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs a few years ago has been more than confirmed by the pleasant experience of all who have used it, and the success of the proprietors and manufacturers the California Fig Syrup Company.

Newton Street Railway.

The public can hardly complain of not knowing what attractions there are going on at Waltham, as the Newton Street Railway keeps them well informed by means of its dash-board posters.

All the entertainments to be given at the Park Theatre are duly announced on the day they occur, as are also the Band Concerts, which have proved very popular this season and drew immense crowds from Newton. This week the handsome signs announcing the River Carnival for Thursday evening, attracted wide and favorable notice, and many were led to witness this great event through this unique method of advertising. There is no doubt but that the management of the Newton Street Railway know how to get business, the result being that the road is gaining in popularity daily.

Small Fresh Fish

Baked in a Crust.

BY MRS. D. A. LINCOLN,
Author Boston Cook Book.

Use small fresh fish, like trout, scup, perch, etc. Clean them and wipe dry. Cut gashes one inch apart through the thick flesh on each side. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper. Make a rich crust, with 1 quart flour, into which mix thoroughly 4 level tea sp. Cleveland's baking powder and 1 tea sp. salt. Moisten with thin cream sufficient to make a dough to roll out. Divide into two parts, and roll each part 1/4 inch thick. Lay the fish on one part, leaving two inches space between each fish. Put the other half of the crust over. Cut through the crusts around each fish; pinch the edges together tightly, and lay them some distance apart on a baking tin. Bake about 1 hour. Serve with egg sauce. Cook 1 tea sp. minced onion and 2 table sp. flour in 2 table sp. hot butter, and gradually 1 pint hot milk. Stir as it thickens, and season with 1 tea sp. salt, 1/2 salt sp. white pepper and 1 table sp. lemon juice. Add the chopped whites of three hard boiled eggs, and the yolks mashed and sifted, and serve very hot.—(Copyright, 1891, by Cleveland Baking Powder Co.)

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for that. Cleveland's Baking Powder is wholesome, leavens most and leaves best. Try it.

—Mr. L. F. Ashley of the News, City Market had a narrow escape last Monday by making a mis-step and falling into the sewer trench at Newtonville. Fortunately he received no serious injuries, although the clothes were a very bad step one.

—Mrs. Doughty fell 35 feet from Mr. Whittier's new house on Maple avenue yesterday, striking on his shoulders. He was carried to his home on Clinton street. Dr. O'Donnell was called and found that the lady was unhurt, although she had received severe bruises and a severe shaking up.

—Mrs. William J. Follett's friends in New York and Brooklyn have sent some very valuable and elegant articles which will be displayed on the Ward 7 table in the fetes under the new table in the hall of the Newton Club. The Ward 7 table will be right in it and promises to be one of the most attractive booths in the fair.

—Music in Grace church on Sunday night: "O Mother dear Jerusalem," Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, two anthems by Statham.

Bugs, solo and chorus, "How lovely are Thy works,"

"Hark! hark my soul angelic songs are swelling."

In its less than two years work it has leaped forward to the position of a well established choir. It is understood that in the course of the year another concert will be given similar to that which filled Elliot Hall one evening last week. Mr. Marshall's success as a trainer has been remarkable.

—Mr. C. S. Marshall of Newton for the past seventeen years salesman for Zeuss Sears, 25 High street, has severed his connection with that house to take the sole property of the Hallway Mf. Co. Lacing factory of Providence, R. I., in his new quarters in Boston. Mr. Marshall, with his popularity with the trade, combined with the high reputation of the Hallway Mf. Co.'s products, is well fitted to make a most gratifying success of his new venture.

Follett and Mr. Henry W. Baker, who will be assisted by a large number of contributors. It promises to be a thing of the year and those who miss it will be very unhappy in the contemplation of the many pleasures

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

A LONG HEARING OVER THE NEWTON CARPET CLEANING FACTORY.

The Board of Aldermen met Monday evening, Mayor Hibbard presiding. All the members except Alderman Crohore were present.

The Newton Street Railway asked to have four additional conductors appointed as special policemen; referred to the Mayor.

L. G. Pratt and some thirty others asked to have the main sewer extended to Ward Three as soon as possible and also to have such lateral branches constructed as public health demanded. Alderman Luke said that Mr. Pratt and the signers were very earnest about the matter, and hoped immediate action would be taken, as they considered that it was necessary for health. Referred to the sewer committee.

Chas. Cameron asked for street lights on Waban avenue.

W. H. Gould and others petitioned to have Beacon street repaired near the Boston & Albany bridge at Waban, as the grade was changed when the bridge was built and pools of standing water now spoil the road.

T. F. Nolan was granted a license to build barn 25 by 17 on Watertown street, Ward Three.

George F. Stone, Chestnut Hill, was granted license to build greenhouse, 105 by 23, on Hammond street.

W. H. Furber gave notice of intention to build house 38 by 36, corner Centre and George streets.

J. A. Wilson gave notice of intention to build house 20 by 30, on Lyman street, Ward 3; M. Martin, house 34 by 35 on Woodward street; T. F. Nolan, house 35 by 42 on Watertown street.

Two junk licenses were granted.

Henrietta G. Wardwell asked for sidewalk on Irving street.

The order was passed establishing the polling places for the state and city election.

MR. WHITE'S CARPET CLEANING FACTORY.

A hearing was then given on Simon A. White's petition for license to build addition to his Carpet Cleaning factory on Clinton street, corner of Hawthorn.

Harry W. Mason appeared for the petitioners and Jesse C. Ivy for the remonstrants and the hearing lasted an hour and a half and bade fair to have lasted all night, had not Mayor Hibbard been resolute in continuing the testimony to the question at issue.

The remonstrants were heard in turn. Michael Walsh said he moved into the house within thirty feet of the factory a year ago. The windows could not be kept open on account of the dirt, and they were troubled by it in the evening. When the factory was built there were only a few houses, but now there are 25 or more in the vicinity.

Alderman Fennel asked if he did not know the factory was there when he built the house.

Mr. Walsh said yes, but he did not know it was a nuisance.

In reply to Alderman Hyde he said he was against the factory, and also against any addition, especially as he had heard the addition was to be used for a machine to saw and split wood.

After some discussion with Mr. Mason about the injury by the dust and smoke the witness withdrew.

Mr. Hannan said he owned the house Mr. Walsh lived in and the folks were always complaining of the dust.

Peter Foley said he lived 100 feet from the factory, had lived there two or three years, was much troubled with fear of sickness caused from the factory, but none of his children had been sick.

Edward O'Halloran lived 75 feet from the factory, considered it a nuisance. Had lived there 20 years, and there were too many living there to have a carpet cleaning factory in the midst. In reply to the Mayor said he had objected to the factory being located there but couldn't get any one to sign a remonstrance. Thought the place injurious to health as carpets were brought there from all over the city.

In reply Mr. Mason said he thought there was disease in all carpets. Mr. Mason said no carpets were ever taken from houses where there had been contagious diseases.

E. J. Healy said he built a house 400 feet from the factory about three years ago. The dust was a nuisance, and dirt from the factory was dumped within 30 feet of his windows; thought it dangerous to health. Thought Mr. White had worked at night at least ten times a year.

P. McLaughlin had lived near the factory since last November, and had found a good deal of dust, and smoke; better if the factory was not there.

James M. Cameron lived farther away, so that the dust did not annoy him, but he was afraid the carpets might bring disease. In reply to Mr. Mason said he never knew any sickness being caused from the factory.

Thomas L. Williams said the dust spoiled the beds, so the neighbors said; he owned a lot near on which he had intended to build. Refused to answer when Mr. Mason asked if the factory would keep him from building.

Even junkies said the dust did not trouble him as he did not live near.

Timothy Kuchel said the smell was bad, and couldn't leave his windows open.

John Buckley, Jas. Hart, and Patrick Malloy did not live near enough to suffer any trouble.

Timothy O'Leary made one of his eloquent speeches, having been such a regular attendant at the meetings that he is quite at home in the council chamber; said he had lived there 14 years, and that the land was sold under restrictions, which forbade any offensive trade being carried on.

Mr. Ivy said the restriction in the deed of O. W. Turner, who had formerly owned all the land, and sold to O'Leary and others.

Martin Quinnan said he lived 300 yards away, was afraid his children would catch some disease.

Mathew Dougherty lived on the opposite side of the street and had lived there 18 or 19 years. It was expressly understood when he bought that no offensive trade was to be carried on there. The steam and smoke filled his house and spoiled the clothes on washing day. Had to often shut the windows. Didn't think Mr. White would carry it on if he knew how it troubled the neighbors.

His son, a student, also testified as to the trouble caused by the factory.

Mr. Mason said there seemed to be two questions, one the factory and one the addition. Mr. White was to build the addition of three stories, the basement for heavy wagons, the first story for his carriages, and the upper story for the storage of carpets.

Mr. White said he did intend to have a machine to saw and split wood for his own use but he would give that up. He had never worked Sundays, as had been charged, save once when his neighbors had helped him on a Saturday night to set up his new boiler, and had not worked after 5 o'clock more than three nights since he had been there. He never took carpets from any houses where contagious diseases had been. As to the dirt, the dust was conducted from the machine to a close room and then wet down and he was not aware that any escaped to trouble his neighbors. Never had any complaint.

In reply to Mr. Ivy, said he took carpets from the Newtons, Brightons, Naticks, Wellesleys, Walthams and other places. He had to store many carpets during the summer for his patrons. Never used camphor, but a preparation of his own.

When asked if there had been any contagious diseases in his family, he said yes, the younger children were first taken and they caught it in school, and some of the older members took it from them. Never had any disease that came from the factory.

In reply to Mr. Ivy, said there were no restrictions in his deeds, and Mr. Mason vouched for this. Started the factory in 1887.

In reply to Mr. Ivy, who asked if the addition was not a virtual enlargement of the factory, said he did not intend to put in any additional machinery. Did not intend to build before next year.

After some cross-questioning from Mr. Ivy as to the method of cleaning carpets and the refuse left therefrom, which the Mayor ruled out as irrelevant, the hearing closed.

OTHER MATTERS.

J. E. Hollis asked for concrete walk on Washington street.

Mrs. E. M. Houdlett, and Mrs. M. F. Mehan were granted a license to build stables.

On motion of Alderman Harbach, sewers were ordered laid on Arlington street from Pembroke to Belmont. The sewer committee reported in favor of laying a sewer across private lands from Canton to Emerson street and a hearing was ordered for Oct. 5 before the aldermen, Oct. 12 before the councilmen.

The sum of $5000 was appropriated for settling claims against the city in consequence of constructing sewers.

The board then went into executive session over the granting of Mr. White's license.

After the door was opened the board voted to grant Mr. White's license and adjourned.

SCENES IN EUROPE.

Schereningen, Holland, Aug. 30, '91.

We found Paris in holiday attire on her annual Fete day, July 14th. Lausanne was flagged and draped for the games of the athletic clubs of Switzerland; Geneva was celebrating the same fete, Naples was radiant with floral arches and gas wreaths and gateways, in honor of the feast of the Assumption, when the image of "Our Lady" is carried about the streets of all Catholic cities, bedecked with jewels and garments of cloth-of-gold. Venice held its gondola illuminations and Wiesbaden fired off its finest display of fireworks for our delectation.

Antwerp was gay with flowers and perpetual chiming. So that when we reached this charming summer resort at a late hour and retired to bed, lulled to sleep by the sound of waves so dear to our hungry ears, we were accustomed to unusual demonstrations, and we fully expected the display of celestial fireworks which greeted us.

Sunday rose, fair and clear, though the wind was colder than our August sea breezes. The Little Man made a Bee line for the sea beach and I followed meekly after. It was pleasure enough to me to sit in the high terrace in front of the elegant Kurhaus, and watch the gradually increasing crowds of every nationality, who were out for the holiday attired in fine laces and silks.

The tourists were chiefly conspicuous for the variety of her parasols. The French, German, English and American markets must have been thoroughly ransacked to supply such variety. Red parasols with single and double stripes, and with stripes enough for a barber's pole; white, pink, blue, with lengthways stripes sometimes evenly matched in patterns on the ribs, often unevenly mismatched, shaded, plaided, checkered; black lace covered, satin, silk gauze, pongee; decorated with anchors, polkas, blocks, wheels, fruit, flowers. One square, one with all stages of a horse-race depicted on a yellow background; ruffled, scalloped, lined and unlined; sun umbrellas; coaching shades and carriage shades of every sort and nationality, gave an agreeable and endless variety to the scene. I sat and watched them and my bare-legged wader, chatting occasionally with a pretty fair-haired German lady who occupied the other end of my seat. She spoke no English, but between French and German we managed to become quite confidential. She told me her husband is a doctor in Rio Janeiro, and she had come home to Ben, on the Rhine, with her two little children, to her father who is an officer in the army. We wandered up and down the beach together, buying views, fruit, milk, of the Dutch vendors, hunting through the forest of Bath Chaises for the Little Man, who when found, earnestly desired to try the switch back, the donkeys and the goat teams. We watched the arrival of bathers who ascended glibly into the big covered wagons which serve as bath rooms, where they undressed while a horse towed the cast to the water's edge, and then descended their little steps into the surf, to be held under by ancient dames in short blue petticoats and white caps and kerchiefs. I saw no swimming, though the surf was no higher than our own dear Nantasket beach, not as high as usual my informant said. At noon, after mutual compliments were exchanged, and when in lieu of cards we exchanged names, I found I had spent the morning in company with "The Baroness Something or other," my first and only opportunity of hob-nobbing with nobility this year.

The quaint friarlike caps, surmounting the silver and gold head plates were very odd. The metal parts being quite costly, remain in families and descend from one generation to another; with the plain, full gathered skirt and inevitable three cornered little shawl, all women look of an age, and are quaint and odd enough, until the cap is surmounted by an English or French hat or bonnet, when the effect is ludicrous.

I heard of no great Lords or Ladies here. We Americans are very little for the presence of such dignitaries. The place was more to me than the people, and I did hate to leave it. But I wanted much to see more of Holland, so I mounted to the top of the tram car, and was soon bowling along a fine boulevard, miles long, under eight or nine rows of old warded trees, with a high dyked walk on one side, beyond which seemed nothing but primeval forests, and on the other side stretched miles of elegant villas and pleasure gardens. The nascent walked quietly along, by twos and threes. The males were conspicuous by their absence, as at our sea side resorts. We came out of a huge gateway, turned a corner, and lo! another stretch of shaded carriage and car roads, and innumerable pleasure seekers walking and driving. We entered the Hague, drove through its clean and regular streets, miles of light brick houses, much alike, all with fine plate glass windows and marvelous lace shades and draperies.

The car landed us a long mile from the railway station, at a gentlemanly looking guide stepped up and offered, for a shilling, to show us the way. He took my bag, led us rapidly through the densely crowded streets, talking all the way of his six children, his linguistic powers, the town and its beauties, and interesting subjects. Then I opened my portfolio and drew from him much needed information as to my journey, the hotels of Amsterdam, the rates of carriages and steam trams, etc. He assisted me in purchasing my tickets and put me aboard my car, touched his hat and murmured, "one guilder, forty cents," and disappeared. I was glad to pay him the overplus for the sake of the six little ones at home.

Then began an enchanting ride through historic dykes, the dykes and canals and windmills, and the chocolate starting us from each fence and barn wall. The fields were full of the thick fleeced sheep and black and white Dutch cattle. The windmills were all flying merrily, but we saw no other signs of work. The windmills had been idle since the war, and that is a novelty after our summer's work. We came at once from the grand and elegant station to the Bible Hotel, which was recommended by our gentlemanly guide in The Hague, and which we find the most perfectly satisfactory of any I have ever had patronized since we left America.

It is the little Queen's eleventh birthday and banners are flying and chiming ringing all day. After breakfast we drove to the Poste Restante for letters, and then to the house of the "Dames de la Camp," in whose company we had breakfasted, and where we were to have a very dainty and liberal repast, served by an old family servant in dress suit and white gloves, we were invited to inspect a real Dutch house. Few indeed are the housekeepers who would dare take critical strangers all over a house, on the second day after return from a week's vacation at home.

But we went from garret to cellar, from the clean shining kitchen to the maid's chambers, and saw only and everywhere cleanliness and elegance. The sixteen year old nephew had his turning lathe and a very dainty and liberal repast, served by an old family servant in dress suit and white gloves, we were invited to inspect a real Dutch house. Savings are not all made for the purpose of putting money in the bank, but often for some particular object, as, for instance, several boys are saving for a "Safety," and not only the children, but older persons, often express astonishment that the small sums that would have gone they could not tell where, have amounted to so much money so soon.

The success of a station depends very much upon the character of the local agent, and the nature of his business. It is essential that the station should be central, and easily accessible. It is better that it should be in a place of business, than in a private house. In one very successful station the fact of there being a laundry agency in the store has been very fortunate, but much more of its success has been due to the thorough good-will and the enthusiasm of the lady in charge.

No stations are yet established at Newton, the Lower Falls or the Upper Falls. It is earnestly hoped that in each of these places some suitable person will become, through this article, interested enough in the Savings System to come forward and offer to take the agency. The director at the Lower Falls is Mrs. Allen Jordan; at the Upper Falls, Mr. Hiram A. Sherman; at Newton, the Rev. Wm. A. Lamb.

It is necessary that the local agent should be actuated by a philanthropic desire to do a good work, for there is no money to be made in it, and it takes some time and some trouble, though no large amount of money is required. The local agent as yet has complained of the work as burdensome. On the contrary, the more the business increases, the more the agent seems to enjoy it.

The local agent should be ready also either himself or through some other person, to advance the purchase of stamps. This is idle money so long as he keeps the agency, but can be called in at any time when the agent wishes to retire. The original advance has in several cases been made by the director for the ward in which the station is established. But those desiring complete knowledge of the system should apply to the president or to Mrs. Mary R. Martin, Newtonville. Circulars explaining the work will be sent to any one desiring them.

The stations at present established are two at Newton, one of these, very largely patronized by Mr. Russell, is a large drug store; one at Tainter's real estate office, Newtonville; one at Mr. B. F. Houghton's grocery store, West Newton; one at Mrs. Markham's dry goods store at Auburndale, in charge of Miss Emma Soule; one at Miss Locke's ice cream parlor at Newton Highlands; one at Newton Centre and one at Thompsonville, conducted by private individuals.

Between three and four hundred dollars has been deposited since the System was started in Newton in May. The movement has succeeded beyond expectation and the interest in it is steadily growing. Every effort will be made to multiply stations for small deposits in every part of Newton. The officers and directors ask the co-operation of the citizens in all possible ways, confident that the method of inducing habits of saving will prove a most practical benefit to our city.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

BOSTON THEATRE.—The Boston Theatre has been crowded at every performance of "The Old Homestead," and the sign "Standing room only" has been frequently displayed. Those who know what a big theatre the Boston is know what a remarkable success this piece has now made here. The same condition of affairs will continue for some time, and those who wish to see Denman Thompson and his interesting play must apply for seats early. The engagement is limited, and it seems as if the receipts for this play would far exceed any ever taken in this house, where large receipts are not a novelty.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—Miss Rose Coghan will begin an engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre on Monday, Sept. 28, for one week only. Miss Coghan will appear in "Dorothy's Dilemma," a new play by Leopold Jordan, in which she expresses such confidence that she declares it will be her only play for the season. As Dorothy Miss Coghan will be on the stage almost continuously, and in one scene, a revolving one, showing an exterior, with a view of the Thames at Twickenham Ferry, she will ride a horse in the uniform of an officer of the British Dragoons. The plot of "Dorothy's Dilemma" is taken from the German of Von Moser, but George Wetherspoon, Miss Coghan's business manager, says that only the main idea of the German play has been retained, the dialogue and complications being original. Miss Coghan's supporting company includes John T. Sullivan, William Redmond, Thomas Whipple, John S. Marble, Edward Peiper, Helen Russell, Adele Palma and Beatrice Moreland.

GLOBE THEATRE.—After a most successful engagement, "The Power of the Press" retires from the Globe stage amid the plaudits of the theatre going people who pronounce it one of the best attractions presented in Boston this season. Commencing Monday evening next, Mlle. Rhea will present Mr. Alexander's new play, "Judith." An excellent company has been engaged which includes William Harris, Errol Dunbar, E. L. Walton, Burr Caruth, J. R. Amory, Laura Rees, Gracie Sherwood, Lillian Laurence, Una Abell, Florence Sherwood, Frank Wright and Mr. C. Bowers. The advent of such a star with a strong company of supporting players is sure to attract large and fashionable audiences and Mr. Stetson's popular playhouse will undoubtedly be crowded during the engagement.

TREMONT THEATRE.—On Monday night next, September 28, the comedian, Stuart Robson, will come to the Tremont Theatre. Mr. Robson will inaugurate his engagement here with a revival, in what he modestly terms an "adequate manner," of Goldsmith's immortal comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer." Next week's production is to be on a scale of magnificence and historical correctness, as regards costumes and scenic embellishments, never before attempted. It will be a deep pleasure to all lovers of the "legitimate" to again see this glorious work and it is a rare treat in the wreath of Mr. Robson's honor that he affords us the opportunity. Mr. Robson will himself be seen in the role in which he should be superlatively excellent, that of Tony Lumpkin, the graceless scamp who makes a victim of every one. The company has been especially organized for this revival, and the most famous scenic artists have painted the scenery. The costumes, also, will be absolutely accurate reproductions from old plates. The original epilogue, slighted by modern managers, and not spoken from the stage since the first production of the comedy at Covent Garden Theatre, London, 1773, will be delivered in this production by Miss Waldron, Miss Busby, and Mr. Robson. "Is Marriage a Failure?" and "The Henrietta," are also in preparation for this engagement.

"Don't Care To Eat." It is with the greatest confidence that Hood's Sarsaparilla is recommended for loss of appetite, indigestion, sick headache, and similar troubles. This medicine gently tones the stomach, assists digestion, and makes one "real hungry." Persons in delicate health, after taking Hood's Sarsaparilla a few days, find themselves longing for and eating the plainest food with unexpected relish.

United States Sugar Bounties—As They Were and as They Are.

PAST.

The United States bounty on the export of refined sugar was unique. It arose out of the act of 1861 allowing drawbacks upon the export of products made entirely from imported materials. Under the original act the duties were to be paid as on all imports, but upon the exportation of the product 90 per cent. of such duties were to be repaid as a drawback. By the law of March 3, 1875, it was provided that only 1 per cent. of the import duties on sugar should be retained by the Government. Under the provisions of this act it became the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to fix the amount of the drawback to be allowed. On July 1, 1883, when the present tariff laws came into operation, the Secretary of the Treasury fixed the drawback on refined sugars at 2.7081 cents per pound net, and on molasses at 3.0 cents per gallon net. The duty on a ton of raw sugar testing 95 1/2 degrees, was $40.728. A ton of sugar yields 1004.92 pounds of refined sugar, 172.48 pounds of syrup, and 72.8 pounds of waste. The drawback on the refined sugar and molasses amounted therefore to $56.116, thus making the bounty $5.00 per ton of raw sugar imported, refined and exported. From July 1, 1883, to September 28, 1886, when the drawback was changed, we paid in bounties $1,882,103. On September 28, 1886, Secretary Manning, in the face of great opposition, reduced the drawback on refined sugar to 2.574 cents per pound, which still left a bounty of $2.044 per ton of raw sugar refined and exported. When raw sugar was made free the payment of this bounty ceased.

PRESENT.

A new system of bounties was inaugurated by the McKinley Tariff. The main provisions covering bounties are as follows: "That on and after the first of July, 1891, and until July 1st, 1905, there shall be paid from any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated under the provisions of Section 3580 R. S. to the producer of sugar testing not less than 90 degrees by the polariscope, from beets, sorghum or sugar cane grown within the United States or from maple sap produced within the United States, a bounty of two cents per pound, and upon such sugar testing less than 90 degrees of the polariscope and not less than 80 degrees a bounty of one and three fourths cents per pound."

No bounty shall be paid to any person engaged in refining sugars which have been imported into the United States, or produced in the United States, upon which the bounty therein provided for had already been paid or applied for, nor to any person unless he shall have first been licensed as herein provided, and only upon sugar produced by such person from sorghum, beets, or sugar cane grown within the United States, or from maple sap produced within the United States."

The essential provision of the law outside of that fixing the rate of bounty to be paid is the latter which prescribes that to get the benefit of the bounty each planter must make his own sugar. Now, it is a well known fact that only the largest planters do this. The small planters cannot afford the expensive machinery required. As soon as the law went into effect capitalists applied to the Treasury Department for an interpretation of the law to determine whether they would be permitted to erect sugar houses for making sugar from the cane produced by the smaller planters. The Treasury Department directed that on sugar so produced no bounty could be paid. For the same reason if the small planters were to sell their cane to the large concerns the sugar produced from it could not claim the bounty. The bounty, therefore, is not for the small planters, who most need it, but for the large and powerful ones. Being unable to compete with the large planters, the small growers will be forced to the wall and compelled either to sell or lease their lands to the big concerns or cease producing entirely.

This effect of the law has already been shown in the number of applications for licenses sent in to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The total number of applications from cane sugar growers is 730, but many of these are from the same planters since the regulations require a separate application for each plantation. All told, therefore, there are only about 600 planters who will receive the bounty. According to the estimates of the Commissioner these 600 concerns will divide among themselves a total of $10,350,000, or $17,250 each this year. Seven beet sugar growers will get $584,200, or $83,455 each; three sorghum planters, $58,000, or $19,666 each, and 3,932 maple sugar makers $150,000, or $38 each—a grand total of $11,134,200 to be paid out of the money in the Treasury collected by taxation.

Not until 1905 can this law be repealed, and by that time there will have been paid to such concerns as the Caffrey Central Sugar Refinery and Railroad Co., which will this year get $240,000 in bounties, a total of $197,000,000, if the present rate of production is maintained. It will, however, on account of increased production, be nearer $200,000,000.

This bounty law was not passed for the small planters, for as we have seen they have been denied its privileges, but was enacted in the interest of the large syndicates, especially that which was formed some time ago in Philadelphia the home of those fed by Government contracts—to grow sugar in Florida. In this, as in other things, Government has brought up its capitalists, especially in Pennsylvania, in the doctrine, that they ought not to undertake anything without first having its assistance, either in the form of tariff protection, bounties or Government contracts.

Meaning of Sugar "Reciprocity."

In 1890 we consumed 1,522,731 gross tons of sugar, or over 25 per cent. of the estimated total production of the beet and cane sugar of the world for 1890-91. This is equal to 64 per cent. of the world's production of cane sugar. In 1890 we imported 208,356 gross tons of beet sugar, and 1,041,372 gross tons of cane sugar.

We used, therefore, besides all the sugar produced in the United States, over 40 per cent. of all the cane sugar grown in the world in 1890, or about 50,000 tons more than the total production of the Western Continent. The "reciprocity" provisions of the McKinley Tariff are to the effect, that unless sugar producing countries shall give equal reciprocity to our agricultural or other products, the old duties shall be imposed.

Were reciprocity treaties made with every sugar growing nation on the Western Continent, and not with countries of Europe or Asia, and if we should use all the sugar they produce, we still would be forced to buy other sugar and pay the duties.

The question, therefore, is, will Germany, France, Austria, and our agricultural products free for the privilege of sending their raw sugar to this country? If not, why does not President Harrison make them do so? or was "reciprocity" only intended as a sham?

Field Day.

The Newton Natural History Society Field Day last Saturday afternoon was a most delightful outing. The afternoon was as perfect as a bright September afternoon can be; just cool enough for a tramp.

The company gathered at the Chestnut Hill station, the appointed place of meeting, and through fields and pastures walked back towards Newton Centre till the old road leading into the woods was reached, and then along this meandering, overgrown path they wandered to Hammon's Pond. From there the party followed the foot-path beside the escarpments of solid conglomerate with here and there plants, bushes and even tall trees growing from cracks in the almost perpendicular walls, which sent their roots down the side to the humus at the foot, for food and water, and on to the rock-bound amphitheatre where the exercises took place. Prof. S. E. Warren gave an interesting description of a few of the peculiarities of plant structure, showing that plants like the cornstalk have a certain internal structure with parallel veins, the veins of the leaves, while those having an internal structure like the hard woods, have net-work veined leaves. He illustrated his remarks with specimens taken with him and cuttings from the trees near by.

Dr. J. F. Frisbie followed with a little geological lecture on the manner of the formation of the conglomerate rocks, so abundant all around, and also how the steep escarpments of conglomerate came in the positions they now occupy. Long beaches of water-worn pebbles or finer rock-grains on the ocean shore were depressed and fine silt or mud spread over and mingled with the pebbles and sand; other deposits took place on top, till sufficient depth was obtained and then from pressure above and the heat below they were baked into solid rock. Thus the conglomerates were formed.

Long axes after, through convulsion of nature, a fracture of the earth-crust took place. One side was upheaved and the other subsided, and here the beetling cliffs are exposed and the bed of the pond formed. The wearing away of the rim and the washing down of the debris is slowly but surely filling up the pond, and before many centuries this will be transformed into a meadow, rich and fertile.

The little amphitheatre is also the result of the forces of nature. Water and frost have torn one huge fragment from the solid edges and forced it some distance away, leaving a lecture-room with high rock walls having a narrow "Notch" on one side and a wider opening on the other.

The party next went over the ridge to the belt of gigantic hemlocks in the ravine beyond the "the forest primeval," to the "murmuring hemlocks" if not the place, and then along the western slope of the conglomerate ridge, where the power of water and frost has torn thousands of huge fragments of the cliffs away, leaving them piled up like those on the cone of Mt. Washington. Everywhere the lichens and mosses, plants and trailing vines are clothing these rocks with beauty.

Mosses, plants and flowers gathered as the party wandered, and on the return it looked like a travelling botanical exhibition. Before the sunset the party was on its way home, having had a most delightful "Field Day" and hoping for others before the cold winds of autumn come.

A Burglar Captured.

This morning about two o'clock, John Wood, the well-known plumber who resides on Main Street, was awakened by hearing glass break. On getting out of bed he received a blow on the head. He immediately grappled with the burglar, and after a terrible struggle, succeeded in holding him until his wife obtained help. On being searched at the station, Mr. Wood's watch and wallet was found on his person. He gave the name of Robert Terry. The broken glass proved to be a bottle of Sulphur Bitters which had almost cured Mrs. Wood of rheumatism.—Exchange.

I was troubled with catarrh for seven years previous to commencing the use of Ely's Cream Balm. It has done for me what other so-called cures have failed to do—cured me. The effect of the Balm seemed magical.—Clarence L. Huff, Biddleford, Me.

THE CHAPMAN CASE.

The Boston Herald's expose of Chapman has been the sensation of the week, and has caused quite a stir among the friends of the police commission and of Mr. Osborne, who fortunately was not involved in the Republican platform. The stories are given with a good deal of detail, and with testimony from all kinds of men, and certainly the affair should be fully and openly investigated by the Boston police commission. At any rate, the stories will not aid the Herald's scheme of making a greater Boston out of all the suburbs. Our police force is respectable, and the department is openly and wisely managed, and Newton would hardly care to encounter the danger of having its police system managed after the pattern of Boston, if all these stories are true. The accomplices of pickpockets, blackmailers and burglars, would hardly be chosen in Newton to guard its citizens and their property. Newton and other cities will be content to remain small but select, rather than be merged in any greater Boston.

Ever since the revelations made in the case of Reporter Kingston, it has been the general impression that all was not as it should be in the police department of Boston. Officers who plainly gave false testimony received no punishment, and as far as the public could see suffered in no way for their perjury. But that was a trivial matter compared with that given in the Herald disclosures of the past week. The people will hardly be satisfied with anything but the fullest and fairest investigation of the whole matter, even if such work has to be done by a legislative committee.

The first Republican campaign meeting in Boston on Tuesday night was a brilliant success in numbers and enthusiasm, and Music Hall in Boston has rarely been so crowded at a political meeting in recent years. There was a great array of oratorical talent, including Col. Chas. H. Allen, the candidate for governor, Lt. Gov. Halle, Hon. W. W. Crapo, Senator Hoar, Congressman E. P. Allen of Michigan, Ex-Congressman Greenhalge, Congressman Walker and Lodge, and Willard Howland. The issues that received chief attention were protection and a sound currency, with the exaltation of Governor Russell for his alleged disparaging remarks about the Commonwealth in New York last winter. These were the main topics, and the immense enthusiasm at the mention of Mr. Blaine's name was one of the striking features. Mr. Crapo was received with great enthusiasm, caused doubtless by his generosity in always being willing to help the successful candidate, although perhaps the rumor that he is to be in the field for the Senatorship had something to do with the expression of the favor with which he is regarded. He is probably the ablest man that has been talked of for that position, and such a man would give the state greater influence at Washington.

The Republicans will open the campaign in Newton, Oct. 5, with two mass meetings, one in Eliot hall and one in Associates' hall, Newton Centre. Col. Allen, the candidate for governor, will speak in both places, and Congressman Lodge will hold forth in Newton and ex-Congressman Greenhalge at Newton Centre. Col. Allen will, if the sewer excavations allow, be transferred from one village to the other, so as not to cause any break in the oratory. There will probably be other attractions, and the Republicans will do their best to wake up Newton, which, in the words of Col. Allen, has been rather "drowsy," politically. Meetings in the other villages will follow later.

There is no probability of any change in representatives, this year. Messrs. Chester and Howard have each served one year with credit to the city and to themselves, and they should be re-nominated without opposition. The Democrats, it is said, will run one candidate, the same as last year. It is whispered that they will bring a very strong candidate.

Judging from Mr. Crapo's speech at the Boston rally, there need have been no fear about his being able to meet Governor Russell on the stump. It was a wisely conservative address, full of force and argument, and a proof, if any proof were wanted, of Mr. Crapo's ability and progressiveness.

The School Board.

The school board met Wednesday evening in the High school building Newtonville, Mayor Hibbard in the chair.

Miss Julia Grant, teacher in sewing, was granted leave of absence; Miss Sarah Ayres was appointed a teacher of sewing dating from Sept. 14, at a yearly compensation of $240; the salary of Miss Sarah L. Dix was fixed at $480 per annum dating from Sept. 14.

Edward F. Stearns was appointed principal of the Prospect evening school of mechanical drawing at Upper Falls at a compensation of $3 per evening, and Miss Martha M. Dix was appointed his assistant at $2 per evening.

Alonso R. Weed was appointed principal of the Jackson evening school at Nonantum with Miss Alice E. Macomber as teacher of mechanical drawing and the following assistants: W. M. Jones, Misses Florence Sampson, Sarah Dorney, Anastasia Peters and Mabel Longley. The principal's salary to be fixed at $3 per evening, teacher in mechanical drawing at $2 per evening and of the assistants at $1.50 per evening.

Michael Cummings was appointed janitor of the new Waban schoolhouse and the matter of changing janitor's salaries to conform to the number of rooms under their charge to a certain amount per room was referred to the committee on salaries.

An order to increase the salary of the secretary of the school board to $500 dating from Jan. 1, '91, was referred.

The report of the committee on accounts showed an expenditure from the annual appropriation of $82,886.03 leaving a balance of $20,213.37. An estimate of the appropriation necessary for 1892 was placed at $133,000, and an order was passed requesting the Newton city council appropriate that sum. This is an increase of $1,000 over last year's figures made necessary by the work being done on the different houses in the city. The sum of $9,834.27 was appropriated for department expenses the current month.

A technical change in the rules and regulations suggested by Dr. Lawrence was referred to the committee on rules.

The superintendent submitted his first annual report in which he gave a concise history of the work of the schools for the year past.

The whole number of pupils enrolled in 1890-'91 was 4487 and the number of children attending schools May 1, 1891 was 4493, an increase of 105 over the preceding year. The number of teachers male and female is 115 and the school-houses number 28. A schoolhouse has been completed at Waban to be ready for occupancy in September, two rooms only being finished at present until more are needed. Needed repairs have been made in the Adams, Hyde, Underwood, Hamilton, Prospect and High schools. A new heating and ventilating apparatus of improved type has been adopted and works very satisfactorily with the exception of considerable noise which it is hoped will soon be overcome. There were 63 graduates from the High school during the year, twenty-five in general course, nineteen classical, three institute and thirteen in merchant course. The evening schools have been a successful feature of the department and a total of 193 pupils ranging in age from thirteen to twenty-four years have attended during the year. The total cost of the two schools for the year was $804.75 and for each pupil $9.58.

Relative to the recent change in scholarship for entrance to the High school the superintendent said:

The order of the board permitting pupils enter the High school from the eighth grade classes of the grammar schools under certain conditions was accepted in September 1890 by thirty boys and girls. The conditions imposed were that pupils should choose the five year classical course and waive all privileges to change to other courses during their connection with the High school. The class began its work on September 1, 1890, and has accomplished as much as could well be expected during the year. The conditions and delinquents are no more in proportion than in the Fourth class.

There is no evidence that the pupils who remain to the close of the High school course, will not have done as well as if they had continued a year longer in the grammar school. A modification of the order was adopted in June for the benefit of the eighth grade pupils of the present school year. A scholarship standing of 75 per cent. average in all studies for the year was required, the restrictions as to course and length of time in the High school were removed. This privilege has been accepted by 86 pupils who enter the High school this September. Their choice of studies does not appear different from those of the eighth grade pupils just entering. The average age of the class entering last year was 14 years and 6 months; that of this year is 14 years and 7 months. There is little doubt that this action of the committee is a wise one and will be beneficial every way to the boys and girls accepting its privileges.

The course of study for the primary and grammar schools is for pupils by one year or takes one year more to accomplish it than is necessary. Theoretically children enter school in this state at five years of age and remain three years in the primary schools or grades, and six in the grammar schools or grades so that when they begin their High school work are expected to be only 14 years old. Last year the average age of the eighth grade class was 13 years and 3 months; this year the average age is 13 years and 8 months. The following table shows by schools the average age of the pupils in the 8th and 9th grade classes September 1890. Add one year for their present age.

	VII	IX
Bigelow, Sept. 1890, age	13.10	14.10
Eliot, "	13.2	14.11
Cliff, "	13.4	14.1
Adams, "	13.6	14.11
Pierce, "	13.7	14.2
Williams, "	13.1	14.9
Hamilton, "	13.5	14.11
Prospect, "	13.7	14.5
Hyde, "	14.3	14.5
Mason, "	13.6	14.3

Average age " " " 13.7—14.8

From this it will be seen that if pupils begin school at five as most do, or a few months older, we should expect they would enter the High school on finishing the work of the 8th grade. The facts are they are kept a year longer. Recognizing that this was a weak point in the grading of the lower schools my predecessor hoped to correct it by mid-year promotions. The complaint is a just one that boys and girls are kept too long in our grammar schools, that grammar school pupils should accomplish all that is desired or required in less time than they may enter upon the broader and closer work of the High school at an earlier age. There is a mistaken idea prevalent that grammar schools are an end in a child's education. Why not primary schools? There can be no more reason why one particular year or division of school work should be selected as an end in the schools of Newton than in other years. Why the ninth grade more than the third grade is not apparent. There is some reason why the close of the High school work may be considered an end so far as the majority of the Newton pupils are concerned, since it is all the Newton public feel they can offer in the education of their children, and because too, the completion of the High school work fits a boy or girl for other duties in life beside college. The class that left the High school in June had an average age of 18 yrs. and 9 mos., and when they enter college this fall, will be 19 years old.

If we add to this age the time necessary to complete a college and professional course, these boys and girls will be 26 or 27 years old, too late to begin their real life work. These pupils have been wronged.

A study of this problem shows me that there should be but eight years to the High school, and that the theory that boys and girls benefit school at five, take up High school work at thirteen should be made true by earlier and more frequent promotions, for the facts show that even promoted at the end of the 8th year Newton pupils are 14 years and 7 months old on entering the High school. How shall we remedy this? By regrading the schools according to the following schedule and by making a few changes in the present course of study.

The grading of the Newton schools and of most New England schools is into three departments, the primary covering three years of work, the grammar school requiring six years to complete the course prepared and the High school divided into four grades or classes of one year each. A more logical and symmetrical grading would be to make each department cover a term of four years. This extends the primary department through the fourth year of the pupil's school life. The grammar department will then include the fifth to the eighth years inclusive where the pupils will graduate to the High school, which remains unchanged in its grading.

PROPOSED GRADING OF NEWTON SCHOOLS.

Dept.	Primary				Grammar					High School
Years.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12

This arrangement eliminates the ninth year and places the pupils in the High school earlier by one year. The terms primary, grammar, and High school have no significance only as indicating some special four years of school work, for the step from the primary to the grammar, or grammar to the High school is and should be no greater than between any other contiguous school years. The proposed grading is into twelve years of twelve classes. In those towns where this grading obtains, the terms primary and grammar are seldom used by pupils and teachers to designate the advancement of a pupil in his course towards graduation. The terms 1st grade, 5th grade, 8th grade, etc., being used as these terms represent the year as well as class. The terms may be retained however, as in a way representing certain changes in methods but not in studies. The first four years represent the years devoted more to oral work and instruction, than the second four or grammar schools, where text books are introduced and pupils are taught their use. In these years, if instruction is properly given, the pupil learns to study and why he should depend on himself. The step into the High school is to work requiring still greater personal effort for the benefit of greater mental strength and confidence acquired. These many matters suggesting themselves that might be discussed here, but which I must defer to special reports the coming year.

Some of these points are as follows:

1. The practice of granting the Grammar school graduates both a diploma and a certificate the latter of which only is accepted for admission to the High school.
2. The matter of a careful revision of the course of study for the primary and grammar grades.
3. The purchase, care and distribution of books and supplies.
4. The necessity of an examination of the school furniture, seats and desks, now in use in some of the schools. Many of these seats and desks are too small for the pupils in a large number of the rooms.

The question of the supply of teachers and the best method of securing them,—a matter demanding serious consideration.

I wish to express my gratitude to the board for the uniform kindness and courtesy shown me during my short connection with your schools, and to the teachers and officers who have given me their sympathy and assistance in my efforts to become acquainted with the duties of this office. I beg a continuance of all the coming year.

A vote was passed that the report be printed with the annual report of the school board.

In his quarterly report the superintendent recommended the adoption of new text books.

—Newtonville people are always in it. Some of them were in the tipped over cars

deralle of the bus avenue station of the Boston & Albany railroad, Tuesday noon. They made their escape as usual and will undoubtedly be on hand at the state election. Mr. J. Frank Curtis gave the following account of the accident to a reporter.—He said he was sitting at the rear end of the last car but one. He felt a jar and the car went over. His idea is that the rear car went off first, and pulled the car in which he was after it. He said the conductor was on the rear platform, and, at the first sign of danger, seized the bell rope and held on to it until the train stopped. This, in his opinion, saved many lives, for it resulted in the prompt stoppage of the train. He thinks it was not five seconds after the lurch before the train was at a standstill. The ground does not show any indication that the cars ran off any distance. They simply toppled over. Mr. Curtis said there were many people slightly bruised and shaken. One lady, dressed in a light suit, he thinks was quite badly hurt, and two other ladies seemed to be suffering considerably. These were the only ones he saw who were much worse for the accident. Messrs. J. C. Fuller, J. G. Kilburn and C. H. Tainter were among other Newtonville people on the train.

—The Newton Veteran Firemen's Association attended the firemen's muster in Lowell Wednesday, and made a good record with the hand tub "Chauncy." Among the West Newton members of the association who went to Lowell were R. M. Lucas, F. G. Humphrey, W. E. Glover, Charles Allen, Patrick Keegan, Wm. Simpson, A. F. A. G. After their meeting and banquet at the Woodland Park Hotel they were shown about the city, visiting Echo Bridge, Chestnut Hill and Waban Reservoir and some of the elegant churches. The visitors were very much pleased and expressed their admiration of the beautiful residences and buildings. Seaver of West Newton photographed the company on the lawn in front of President Barbour's residence. Dr. Nott the Medical Examiner of the Association assisted in the entertainment of the visitors.

Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. evangelistic meetings under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, have been increasing in size and interest during the week, and the Association hall proving too small, the lower Eliot hall has been used for both afternoon and evening services.

Of the six services advertised for last Sunday the boys' meeting in Y. M. C. A. hall, the men's mass meeting in Eliot hall, and the evening preaching service in Eliot church were the most largely attended, and productive of the most practical results.

After the boys' meeting more than fifty signed the "covenant cards," accepting Christ as a personal Saviour.

The address on "Sowing Wild Oats" at the men's meeting was very effective and held the closest attention of the audience that fairly crowded the hall, while at its close a number of inquirers stopped for a personal conversation with Mr. Yatman.

The Eliot church service, which was very largely attended, was a disappointment to some of Mr. Yatman's friends, who had hoped he would preach one of his powerful sermons. He, however, thought best to give a simple talk on Jesus the Saviour, taking for his text, "And he shall be called wonderful."

Though different in character from what had been expected, and being illustrated by stories of the conversion and uplifting of men low in social and criminal life, in deep contrast to his audience, it was very effective, and while not perhaps in strict accord with the taste of many of his hearers, served the purpose of not only sowing the wonderful power of Jesus to save, but also to reveal something of the depth of degradation and sin to which men can sink.

Considerable change has been made in conducting the meetings this week, all but those in the afternoons of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, being open to everybody, it being found that the strictly men's meetings of last week had attracted about all that could reasonably be expected to meetings of that kind, and it was necessary in order to reach more men to invite the ladies in also.

On the three afternoons mentioned, special "Bible Talks" for women only, were given by Mr. Yatman on "Woman and Her Special Work."

On Saturday afternoon, an "Illustrated Flag Sermon" for children and grown folks will be given, and Saturday evening an "Illustrated Chart Sermon" for everybody.

Sunday's programme includes a boy's mass meeting in Eliot lower hall at 3 p. m., and a men's mass meeting in Eliot upper hall at 4, at which Mr. Yatman will give his address, "Lamb or Tiger, which?" And at 6.30 a union young people's meeting will be held in the Methodist church, and a work which a union farewell service in Eliot church at 7.30, Sunday being Mr. Yatman's last day in Newton.

The singing of Mrs. Kress is very impressive, especially as a close to one of the sermons or in invitation to accept and follow Christ, and her work, which musical training shows to most excellent advantage even in these simple Gospel songs.

Tuesday evening, Rev. S. Hartwell Pratt, the evangelist of Springfield, Mass., was present for a portion of the service.

Friday, the young boys' evangelist, John M. Dick of Chicago, will be here to remain over Sunday, and will probably assist Mr. Yatman at the boys' mass meeting.

Mr. Dick was one of the first converts through the work of the Young Men's Christian Association, and is now the organization of our present general secretary, who had but just entered the work in a similar position in that city four years ago. Mr. Dick was then a student there, and being attracted to the association by its baseball and other athletic privileges, was, through his companionship in them, led into Christianity, and a work which has since resulted in the conversion of hundreds of boys and young men.

Reception.

—Dr. and Mrs. Coley held their "at home" at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Lancaster, yesterday, and there was a very large attendance of friends. The handsome residence was prettily decorated, and the front parlor where the couple received was decorated with ferns, potted plants, trailing vines, etc. A bank of cut flowers adorned the mantle, and the fireplace was hidden by a mass of ferns, potted plants, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster assisted the young couple in receiving the guests, and during the hours of the reception hundreds of the society people of Newton, Brookline, Boston, Cambridge and elsewhere thronged the rooms. Mrs. Sidney Harwood and Mrs. C. Peter Clarke, sisters of the bride; Miss Emery, Miss Angier, Miss Cobb, the Misses Hull, Miss Widdell and Miss Potter of Newton and Miss Stott of Lowell also assisted in the reception. Mrs. Coley was attired in white crepe lisse embroidered with pink and green. Mrs. Lancaster wore a costume of heliotrope and gray satin brocade. After a week's stay with the bride's parents Dr. and Mrs. Coley will return to their home in New York city.

Fall Millinery.

We take pleasure in again calling the attention of the ladies of this city to the Millinery Establishment of Roland W. Maerdy in the Farmer's Block at 20 Moody Street, in our neighboring city of Waltham. Mr. Maerdy has just returned from New York, where he has been for the past ten days in attendance on the Wholesale and Private Millinery Openings, and while there made purchases of the very choicest of the Season's Goods, always avoiding a similarity of styles.

On Wednesday and Thursday of next week, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, will occur the Fall and Winter Opening, to which the ladies of this city will be most cordially welcomed. Many of the ladies of this city have already availed themselves of this establishment, and pronounce themselves well pleased. Electric cars pass the door.

Accident on the Boston &amp; Albany.

The 12 o'clock train for Newton on Tuesday met with an accident just after leaving the Columbus Avenue Station.

As the train was going at a slow rate of speed the accident fortunately was not a serious one. The rear cars were the only ones which left the track, the engine, the forward car, the smoker, remaining on the rails. The train was well filled at the time, and it was fortunate that but four persons were seriously injured.

The names of those hurt are: Miss Margaret Conway, No. 944 Parker street
Roxbury, injured in the back; Annie Swallow of Newton Lower Falls, injured in the right side; Mrs. Mary Kane of Newton Lower Falls, injury to the back and foot, and Mrs. Nathan Crocker of Marshallfield, Me., whose ankle was injured. The three latter were assisted to the forward car and continued on their way to Newton, while Miss Conway was taken back to the city on another train.

The sufferers were given timely medical assistance by Dr. Francis Curtis of West Newton, who was on the derailed train,
and by Dr. C. P. Thayer of No. 34
Boylston street, who was promptly summoned.

The two cars were partially overturned,
and one of them had the steps carried away, the floor broken in four places and one window torn out. The last car was more badly damaged, all the seats
being more or less broken, the windows
knocked out, and otherwise damaged.

How no more people were injured is a mystery, as the cars were full, and the excitement was something appalling.

The trouble was caused, it is thought,
by a switch that did not work properly.
The 1 o'clock train was delayed about half an hour, before the tracks were cleared.

ON WATER AND TENNIS COURT.

INTERESTING SPORT UNDER NEWTON
BOAT CLUB AUSPICES.

A series of interesting boat and canoe races took place on the Charles river at Riverside last Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Newton Boat Club.

The events were witnessed by a large number of fashionable people from the balconies of the boathouse, and from the shores of the stream, which were completely hemmed in with light pleasure crafts containing gaily dressed ladies and their escorts.

The occasion was especially honored
by the presence of Mrs. President Harrison and Mr. and Mrs. McKee, who occupied reserved seats in the upper balcony of the boathouse, surrounded by a notable company of Newton society people.

The President's family were driven to the scene of the festivities in the handsome barouche of Mr. Charles W. Richardson of Auburndale, who accompanied the distinguished visitors from the Woodland Park Hotel. The presidential party were received at the boathouse by President Eaton and Capt. W. A. Hall of the Newton Boat Club, and Mr. and Mrs.
Henry E. Cobb of Newton.

After the races the President's family
and the receiving party boarded a steam launch and enjoyed a trip up the river and return.

The start in the first race for double-
end rowboats was made shortly after 3 o'clock. The course was won by Robinson of Cambridge near the Newton boathouse of the Boston Canoe Club, and return, a distance of about half a mile. In the opening competition there were only two entries, Higgins and Crane, both of whom gave a clever exhibition of rowing. Higgins' stroke proved the most effective, and he won the race by a distance of two lengths ahead of his competitor, amid the cheers coming from the throats of fully 1500 spectators.

In the second race for 16-foot cedar canoe, Ballou and Linder, Potter and Angier were the contestants. The latter pair, after making a good start, capsized
and lost the race.

Burrage and Drake and Hovey and Higgins were entered for the third race
for 18-foot canvas canoes, but the latter pair withdrew. Burrage and Drake paddled over the course and were given the race.

The tandem canoe race—three men in each boat—was the most exciting contest of the afternoon. It was contested only by two crews, one comprising Cobb, Potter
and Angier, and the other Ballou, Higgins and Drake. From the start, and around the stakeboats for some distance toward the finish, the crews were very close together. Ballou and mates made a final spurt, and won by two lengths.

The amusing event of the series was a tug-of-war between two canoe crews, Cobb, Potter, Angier and Ross, and Drake, Ballou, Linder and Higgins, the match being won by Cobb and mates.

The first and second heats, in the second heat the Cobb crew was capsized,
and their dip in the stream was generously applauded by the spectators, who seemed to rather enjoy that sort of sport.

The concluding race was a tipover for canoes. It was won by Ballou and Linder.

Capt. W. A. Hall acted as referee and Mr. H. C. Churchill as judge at the turn.

While the races on the river were in progress, the finals in singles in the annual tennis tournament were played on the club's courts, Davis at Page, 6-1, 1-2, 1-2, and the match was won by Davis.

The prize playing between the latter two being the best tennis that has been seen on the Riverside courts this season.

Spear won the match, 12-10, 5-7, 5-7, 6-2, 7-5. The features were the placing of both men along the side lines and the brilliant volleying of the ball.

Men played a back court game, Spear,
however, coming up to the net quite frequently in the last half.

The prizes in the tennis matches and the boat races consisted of silver medals
appropriately inscribed.

In the evening, following the events of the afternoon, a promenade concert was given in the boathouse, and dancing was enjoyed from 8 until 10.30 o'clock. The interior of the boathouse was brightly lighted, and the grounds were illumined with Japanese lanterns. There was also a pyrotechnic display.

know, Eva? For over a year I took everything
I could think of without helping me, then I bought two bottles of Sarsaparilla, and now
I haven't one pimple on my face. It is the best

—the life that is fighting against Consumption.

Only—act promptly.
Put it off, and nothing can save
you. But, if taken in time, Dr.
Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery
will certainly cure.

It must be done through the blood—and the "Discovery" is the most potent blood-cleanser,
strength-restorer, and flesh-builder
that's known to medical science.

The scrofulous affection of the lungs that's called Consumption,
and every form of Scrofula and blood-taints, all yield to it. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all severe,
lingering Coughs, it's an unequalled remedy. It's the only one that's guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

"We promise to cure your Catarrh, perfectly and permanently,
no matter how bad your case or
of how long standing—or we'll pay you $500." That's what the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy say to every sufferer from Catarrh. And they mean it.

prise. Don't fail to be there if you would save yourself disappointment.
—Following is the list of letters remaining in the post office: Mrs. C. A. Davis,

Gus White, Mrs. A. D. White, Mrs. John White.
—The Indian children are coming to appreciate good reading as much as many white people do, perhaps they already appreciate good pictures even more. A superintendent of one of the Indian schools
in Washington Territory writes, "We have a few stray copies of Harper's Weekly that are read and re-read by old and young, even the most prosy (or serious) articles are spelled out by our little fellows because of the pictures. Some of our boys read them with as much avidity as most boys would "Wild Bill." Others enjoy the "American Agriculturist." Any and all good clean, illustrated papers, it matters not what so that the tone is good and clean, are welcome."
—There is to be in Newton Centre, Oct.
28 and 29, an entertainment and sale in aid of the Indian Library Department Fund.
This sale, besides having tables of books,
fancy articles, etc., will have the unusual feature of an Indian table. The entertainment will be a treat to those who care to hear the best rendering of famous authors, for Mrs. Erving Winslow has consented to read for the benefit of the work. The mention of her name is enough for those who have heard her and for those who know her great success in Washington, Newport and elsewhere. It is only because she so kindly gives her services that it is possible to hear her for the price of the present tickets. The sparkling comedy etta, "My Uncle's Will," played last winter by the Kendalls, is generously offered for the benefit of the cause by members of "The Theatians." It is not because it is made up of native talent that its name has a power. It deserves the place it has won.

Those who promise themselves something worth seeing will not be disappointed.
Lovers of music will be especially interested to hear that the "Banjo Club" has promised to help with its attractive music.
The entertainment will be held two afternoon and evening sessions. Those who wish to go in the afternoon and remain through the entertainment will not find themselves compelled to literal fasting in order to enjoy the feast of reason and the flow of soul.
—It will be remembered that early in July an announcement was made by the management of the "Newtons" that they would "pass the hat" at the game on July 4th for contributions, with which to meet running expenses. Out of deference to the preference of the entertainment committee for the day, the hat was not passed. An opportunity is now offered the friends of the club to make good the financial losses incurred by several storms on several Saturdays and again on Labor Day, necessitating the cancelling of games with clubs which would have proved a source of income. The management has arranged for an entertainment to be given in Associates Hall on Wednesday evening, Oct. 7th, which will include so many attractive features, that liberal patronage by the friends of the club is confidently expected. The Apol-lon quartet, (Ladies), whose selections were rendered with such excellent taste and finish at the graduating exercises of the Class of '91, N. T. I., commended themselves at that time to so large a company of people, that further introduction would seem unnecessary. Entirely new numbers will be given, and violin and piano solos will add to the charm of the program. An unusual privilege will be secured to the patrons of the concert, in the privilege of listening to Mr. Geo. B. Ford, an eloquen-tialist of rare talent, and whose inimitable
rendering of dialect and humorous selections, marvellous expression and general excellence of style, won for him the most unqualified praise from the few who were so fortunate as to hear him at an entertainment given in the Baptist church in the early summer. Do not fail to secure seats early of Noble. The whole house will be reserved at the uniform price of fifty cents.
Make a note of the date and reserve the evening of Oct. 7th unconditionally for the Newtons, thereby insuring them of a packed house.

The Riverside School
will open Oct. 1st, and is in an excellent place for girls desiring to prepare for Wel-

pupils are under the care of an experienced principal, who has met with great success in her chosen vocation. The school is located in one of the most attractive por-

glass ware it is always best to visit a store entirely devoted to those articles, as the assortment will be found to be far better,
and the prices are more satisfactory.
To visit such a store as that of Jones,
McDuffie & Stratton, corner Franklin and Federal streets, Boston, is a liberal education in art. All varieties of china can be found there, from single articles costing moderate purses, which are equally good of their kind. The variety is almost endless, as the firm occupy the whole building, and every taste can be suited. A notice in another column calls attention to some of their specialties.

Breakfast Vanities
ORIGINAL No. 46.
BY MRS. DEARBORN,
Principal Boston Cooking School.
Mix and sift together 1 pint pastry
flour, 1/2 tea sp. salt and 1 heaping tea
sp. Cleveland's Baking Powder. Mix to a stiff dough with milk, using only sufficient to make it stiff enough to roll.
Toss out on a slightly floured board,
roll out very thin, cut into small squares
with a sharp knife or pastry wheel and drop into boiling lard.
Shake the kettle gently to facilitate their rising, and when well puffed up turn them and brown the other side.
Drain on paper. They should be cooked in fat hot enough to brown a piece of bread while counting sixty, and are quite hollow when cooked. Serve with maple syrup if liked. (Copyright, 1891.)
Use only Cleveland's baking powder,
the proportions are made for that.
